Soviet Troops Join Americans In Quake City

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet troops today joined American soldiers who arrived ten days ago to aid this city shattered by earthquake.

About 500 Russian soldiers brought 125 bulldozers and other machines to help clear away the rubble from the July 26 earth quake which ruined the once model city and killed an estimated 2,000 persons.

Yugoslav officials said the Soviet army unit came after an agreement was signed with the Soviet government. A 250-man U.S. Army hospital unit arrived only two days after the disaster and has been treating injured survivors ever since.

The American medics said they will stay as long as they are needed. Today, Lt. Col. Vladimir Gunkov, the commander of the Soviet unit, told newsmen his unit also will stay as long as it is necessary.

The U.S. Army medical team began treating patients as soon as it arrived. Gunkov no sooner arrived by train with his bulldozer unit than he, too, said he wanted to start work immediately.

There is a great deal of work to do. Yugoslav officials, having ended their intensive hunt for bodies in the rubble, mapped prompt plans for rebuilding the city. They announced this morning plans to throw up prefabricated houses for 12,000 persons before winter sets in.

The 12,000 will form the nucleus of the workers rebuilding a city which lost 85 per cent of its dwellings in five seconds of trembling earth. About half the pre-quake population of 200,000 have fled or been evacuated.

Public Hearing Scheduled For Umpqua Basin Project

Public hearings on a tentative plan for water resources development in the Umpqua Basin are scheduled for Aug. 1963. It was announced this week by the Corps of Engineers.

Speaking on "Water Resources Planning for the Umpqua River Basin," Stewart stated that the goal is to develop a plan for comprehensive development of Umpqua River water resources. Post-Mortem Is Conducted On Body Of Playboy Medic

LONDON (UPI)—Dr. Donald Teare, the Home Office pathologist, conducted a post-mortem on the body of Dr. Stephen Ward today to determine officially what drug the play-boy oosteph used to commit suicide.

The operation lasted little more than a half hour, but its results will not be made known until the official inquest into Ward's death. The inquest will be held Friday.

Meanwhile the British press continued to hammer away at the case which at one point threatened to topple the government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

There is deep disquiet among the public, M.P.'s (Members of Parliament) and lawyers at the Daily Herald said in an editorial today.

Ward, 50, died last Saturday from an overdose of barbiturates. He had swallowed the drugs the previous Wednesday, hours before an Old Bailey jury convicted him on two counts of living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Ward faced a maximum possible sentence of 14 years in jail. But he died without regaining consciousness, and never even knew he had been found guilty.

Ward left behind notes saying he was sorry to "disappoint the virtues" he felt were making him a scapegoat for the sex-and-security scandal still reverberating through Britain.
