Tennessee School Begins Desegregation Plan Today

By United Press International
A second rural Tennessee school begins a program of voluntary desegregation today.

Five young Negroes, both boys and girls, are scheduled to attend Livingston Academy for the first time. Ten Negroes quietly began classes Monday at Clay County High School in Celina, Tenn., to inaugurate the South's first desegregation of the 1963-64 school year.

Schools in the neighboring Tennessee communities began classes early so students can leave school in the spring to pick strawberries.

At Chicago, a fourth Negro family moved into a racially-troubled South Side neighborhood Monday and police increased their vigil. In another part of the area Monday, integrationists picketed a mobile school site in a protest against alleged "de facto segregation."

Six demonstrators shackled themselves together with a chain and padlocks at New York Monday and blocked the gate to a hospital construction site for more than an hour until they were freed and arrested by police. The pickets are protesting job discrimination on city construction projects.

About 250 Negroes marched on the Atlantic City Hall Monday in a demonstration against alleged discrimination. More than 300 Negro youths staged demonstrations at segregated restaurants, lunch counters and theaters at Athens, Ga., Monday.

Elsewhere in the nation:
Chattanooga, Tenn.—Six Negroes demonstrated at a city-owned swimming pool Monday and their leaders promised more of the same. It was the first demonstration here since early June gatherings at downtown restaurants. Since then most of the city's restaurants have announced a desegregation policy.

Gadsden, Ala.—Fourteen Negroes were arrested for contempt of court Monday after staging a sit-in at a restaurant. Circuit Judge A. B. Cunningham issued an injunction last June prohibiting Negroes from remaining in restaurants when asked to leave by the management.

Memphis, Tenn.—U.S. District Judge Bailey Brown today begins hearing a plan for gradual desegregation.

Space Agency Has New Front Runner

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The space agency has a new front runner in its weather satellite stable.

The honors go to Tiros 6, launched Sept. 17, 1962 and still going strong.

Tiros beat the record of its predecessor, No. 2, which went into orbit on June 19, 1962 and kept functioning through May 4, 1963.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said Monday the new champ is taking excellent pictures of the earth's cloud cover and is expected to go right on doing just that.

Hope For Columbia Treaty Ratification See By Canadian

PORTLAND (UPI)—Hope for ratification of a treaty between Canada and the United States for development of the upper Columbia River was seen here Monday.

Paul Martin, Canadian minister of external affairs, said Monday that the Canadian government felt the treaty, in its original form, was not in the country's best interests. However, he declined to say what revisions his government felt were necessary before it can be sent to Parliament for a vote on ratification.

Until negotiations on the treaty have been completed I cannot discuss the content of the negotiations," he said.

The U.S. Congress has ratified the treaty. Canada has sought higher prices for sale of downstream benefits. Martin said that given a protocol which respects Canadian interests and a respectable price for downstream power he was certain the treaty would be ratified.

Martin and his group were to visit The Dalles Dam today before returning to Ottawa.

Ike Is Making Film Of Normandy Invasion

CAEN, France (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower today flew to Portsmouth, England, to be filmed in the map room of the H.M.S. Dryad, where he issued the orders 19 years ago for the Normandy invasion.

Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, arrived in France by ship Monday. He is making a film for the Columbia Broadcasting System about his role in World War II as supreme Allied commander.

Eisenhower was expected to return here later in the day to appear in shots on the Normandy beaches.

Negro Gets Job

PORTLAND (UPI)—Samuel Macon, a Negro student at Lewis and Clark College, went to work for the Portland Park Bureau Monday.

Macon and Nathan Jones, also a Negro Lewis and Clark student, had claimed job discrimination against the city.

Jones also was offered a job but said he had a better one.

PROOF that some things do grow big in Texas is shown by this 70-pound watermelon being weighed in Monday at the SP freight depot by Mrs. Clarence Ray of Tenmile. The whopper and the little 47-pounder next to it were sent from Ft. Worth, Tex., by the Ray's 16-year-old daughter, Virginia, who is vacationing there with relatives. Virginia says that Texas timber looks like matchsticks compared to Oregon's, but the melons grow just as big as her mother had said. The Rays are formerly from Texas and Oklahoma. It'll be a dripping good time tonight in Tenmile as 8-year-old Sally Maria Ray and a group of lucky friends stage a big watermelon feed. (News-Review photo)

World Leaders Hail East-West Treaty, But China Poses Threat

LONDON (UPI)—The East-West nuclear test ban treaty was hailed today by world leaders and editorials as the foundation for further cold war settlements, but many warned of the threat of an isolated Communist China.

Japan, which marked the 18th anniversary of the atom bombing of Hiroshima today—the first use of nuclear weapons in warfare—considered the agreement one of the outstanding events of postwar history.

Communist China, which has denounced the nuclear agreement repeatedly and announced it will not be bound by it, had no immediate reaction.

Pope Paul VI said the treaty shows "a promise of a more serene future." In a statement Monday, the spiritual leader of the world's half-billion Roman Catholics said the agreement "has very intimately touched our heart."

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said at a reception after the signing Monday night that "the most important thing now is not to rest content with what has been achieved, not to stop the struggle against the threat of another war."

Danish Premier Jens Otto Krag said the treaty "may become the first step in a development which may gradually replace the cold war by a peace built on agreements."

The man on the street expressed similar sentiments. An unidentified Moscow citizen told an American newsmen he hopes the partial test ban "is a harbinger of other good steps to come."

In Frankfurt, West Germany, white collar worker Martin Knoppik said the next step "should be to discuss a non-aggression pact between NATO and the Warsaw pact countries. Thereby efforts could be made to bring about the disappearance of the Berlin wall."

But the West German government was hesitant about signing the treaty because it fears it would imply recognition of Communist East Germany, which has announced it will sign.

Japanese officials indicated that Japan would sign the treaty this month.

"Japan will use the treaty as a step for greater efforts toward a ban on all nuclear weapon testing," Chief Cabinet Secretary Yasuhiro Kurogane said Monday night. The Moscow treaty does not cover underground nuclear testing.

Japanese newspapers bannered the news of the signing. Socialist party official Hiroo Wada said it had eliminated distrust between Russia and the United States and was bound to improve their relations.

British newspapers warned of a new cold war involving Communist China.

"Fortunately, the new enemy hasn't got the A-bomb, and doesn't look like getting one for quite a while," the London Daily Sketch said.

The Guardian of Manchester said the treaty was a "most encouraging achievement" but warned of trying to isolate China.

City Sets Bid Opening For Airport Ramp Job

The city of Roseburg will open bids next Monday afternoon on a ramp improvement scheduled at the municipal airport.

City officials said the project involves installing 1,700 yards of rock, paving of 1,540 square yards of asphaltic concrete and other appurtenant work at a site west of the present hangar building.

The work is being undertaken in support of the airport operator's plan to construct additional hangar and shop space, officials explained.

A $5,000 aid-to-cities grant has been received from Douglas County to be applied to the ramp development.

Reedsport Eyes New County Garbage Dumps

Douglas County's new program of establishing land-fill garbage dumps has gained the attention of the Reedsport area.

Petitions bearing several hundred signatures addressed to the Douglas County Court urge that the county establish such a garbage disposal area in western Douglas County, according to Grover Woods, Reedsport City Council member.

Disposal sites have already been set up near Glide, Camas Valley, Tiller and Glendale. Woods said another is needed in the Reedsport area. Woods called attention to the prevalence of unsightly rubbish dumped on beaches and dunes and fire hazards caused by unauthorized dumps scattered throughout the area.

The site of the present privately-operated garbage dump was included in the land sale by R. J. and John Hubbard to the International Paper Co. woodlands department. The site is rented from Hubbard by the Hahn Sanitary Service, holders of the garbage hauling franchise granted by the City of Reedsport.

County Commissioner R. A. Doerner said that he welcomes the petition as evidence of general public interest in the problem. Doerner has been negotiating with the city of Reedsport for help in procuring a suitable site for the land fill project.

Astronauts Study Survival Technique

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Nine new astronauts practiced desert survival techniques in a remote sagebrush and sand area of Nevada today as part of an intensive five-day course to prepare them for the Gemini spacecraft programs.

The spacemen, working with mockups of the two-man space capsule, were expected to turn it into a shelter, fashion an Arab-style hood to protect them from the sun, travel, signal and find food and water.

They also faced snakes, scorpions, spiders and other hazards in the area, where temperatures at sand level recently have reached 130 degrees.

The astronaut trainees are civilians Neil A. Armstrong and Elliot M. Sze Jr.; Air Force Maj. Frank Borman; Air Force Capt. Edward H. White II; Air Force Capt. James A. McDivitt; Air Force Capt. Thomas E. Stafford; Navy Lt. Cmdr. John Young; Navy Lt. Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr.; and Navy Lt. Charles Conrad Jr.

Five Small Forest Fires Brought Under Control

By United Press International
Five small fires broke out and burned over 15 1/2 acres on state-protected land in Oregon Monday. All were brought under control.

Four of the fires were man-caused and one was set by lightning. Largest was a 10-acre blaze near Dallas.

Meanwhile, firefighters continued to work on a 500-acre timber and brush fire near Klamath Falls. The man-caused blaze on state-protected land began Friday and was contained Sunday.

There were no fires reported in national forests in Oregon.

Truck Tax Payments Up

SALEM (UPI)—Record weight mile tax payments were made by Oregon truckers during July. Public Utility Commissioner Jonel C. Hill said today.

During the month the truckers paid $1,713,373, the highest amount in any month during the 39 year history of the tax.

The payments were $187,404 more than a year ago.

Best place to fill 'er up.

Your car, too, with one of the three Chevron gasolines.

Why three? So you can choose a gasoline made to fit the requirements of your car—without paying for extra power you can't use.

All three gasolines have Methyl* power—a research breakthrough in antiknock compounds that stands up under the extreme temperatures of high compression engines. Unlike others,

Methyl spreads evenly to all cylinders, giving uniform antiknock performance. And it combines with all the other ingredients required for the best performance a car can deliver.

For the very highest-powered cars, use Custom, highest-powered gasoline in the West. For all other high-compression cars, fill up with Supreme. For cars designed to run on regular, choose Chevron. You'll get on-the-road proof that we take better care of your car.
