

FLYING CLOWN—The clown on the flying trapeze is a Lesselli Marionette. He floats through the air defying laws of man and gravity.

Communities Vie For $500 Prize

Six communities from Douglas County have entered the community booth competition in quest of the $500 first prize being offered by the Douglas County Fair.

They are Roseburg, Myrtle Creek, Winston-Dillard, Glendale, Canyonville and Reedsport.

The communities are each furnished a 12-by-20 foot area in the sheds south of the main entrance. The purpose of their exhibits will be to show the attributes their communities have to offer.

Scoring for the contest is done on the same basis as that for the Granges. Points are given for the clarity of message presented, visualization, originality.

In the past two years, when Winston-Dillard and Myrtle Creek were winners, the top award was $1,000, but this year because the winner is not being asked to take the exhibit on to the state fair, the prize is $500. However, any exhibit which scores 60 or more points will win $200 for its community's efforts. Last year all entries scored more than 60 points.

For the first time this year, all available space has been filled. Manager Bert Allenby reports that the area available may be increased in the future, but this depends on interest shown.
