

Problems Of Smaller City Airports

A most interesting discussion of the airport problem of the smaller city is contained in a booklet issued recently by the Air Transport Association.

The association which embraces the various service airlines of the country—airlines serving the smaller communities and acting as feeders—contends that one of the major handicaps to growth is the failure of federal agencies to furnish navigational aids which would allow flights in marginal weather.

Furthermore, it is held, federal regulations governing flights in and out of smaller airports are much too rigid. A change in minimum standards is proposed.

The Roseburg area presently is threatened with discontinuance of air service. It is feared that Roseburg will be erased entirely from West Coast Airlines schedules when the DC3, with which service now is conducted, is taken out of service in favor of the P27's, the turbo-jet plane to which WCA is turning as rapidly as possible.

Only one other airfield in Oregon has higher flight standards than Roseburg, according to the list prepared by Air Transport Association. Landing at Baker requires a 1700-foot ceiling. However, visibility is limited to only one mile. Roseburg's minimum ceiling is 1400 feet, but the visibility requirement is two miles.

Air Transport Association contends that the minimum standards for the Roseburg airport could safely be reduced to 1100-foot ceiling and one mile visibility, given proper navigational aids.

Cancellation or overflights of the Roseburg airport last October were 23.65 per cent, 8.88 per cent in November, 34.41 per cent in December, 25.81 per cent in January and 13.39 per cent in February, the association reports.

While many factors must be considered in a determination of the reason for cancellation and overflights, estimates of Air Transport Association would lead to the conclusion that Roseburg would have had at least 25 per cent more flights had the field been given the suggested navigational aids and had minimums been reduced to the proposed standards.

The analysis made of the problem concerning smaller airports is indeed interesting. It shows quite conclusively that much more business could be generated for the service lines if available instrumentation could be given the smaller fields.

It fails to take into consideration, however, the factor chiefly threatening Roseburg.

It mentions that installation of navigational aids hasn't kept pace with the development of airports and travel demands, but the problem in Roseburg is that our facility isn't adequate for the type of plane West Coast Airlines is putting in service. At least the facility will not meet demands the Federal Aviation Authority places upon airports used for turbo-jet landings and takeoffs. Whether different standards would make use of these planes safe and practical is another matter.

The fact remains that West Coast Airlines, which started out in a small way, is growing vastly bigger in the area it serves. Thus it needs faster planes. The need can't be disputed. Roseburg is a borderline station. It barely comes within the "use-it-or-lose-it" formula.

Perhaps we're only suspicious, but the Southern Pacific company deliberately killed off the passenger train service for Southern Oregon by making the service so lousy no one would use it. Then it secured permission to discontinue passenger trains by showing that no one was riding the trains.

Now we hear complaints that the same policy is being applied by service airlines to the borderline stations.

The Roseburg stop was an important factor to West Coast Airlines when WCA was trying to get federal approval for organization. But now WCA has outgrown the limited local service it was designed to render. It has grown so big it no longer must cater to the needs of the small units making up its flight map. In other words, Roseburg probably is more of a financial handicap than an asset and can well be eliminated. One way to eliminate it is to make the schedule so unsatisfactory that we'll drop below the need formula. Another way is to make the minimum standards so severe we can't meet the requirements.

In either case prospects aren't too bright.

THE LIGHTER SIDE:

Plan Won't Work; Quacks Think Big

By DICK WEST United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—Not long ago I read a report to the effect that this country has, or soon will have, a shortage of doctors.

And not long after that a physician friend of mine told me that a lot of a doctor's time is taken up with cases "that any good quack could handle."

Putting two and two together, which I can do with the aid of an electronic computer, I almost made a dreadful mistake. I was on the verge of proposing that the United States adopt a system of licensed quackery.

It was my idea that hypochondriacs, malingerers, cry-babies and others with psychosomatic or inconsequential ailments would go for treatment to their friendly neighborhood quack.

Relieve Shortage This would leave the real M.D.'s free to treat actual illnesses, thus greatly relieving if not eliminating the doctor shortage.

The plan looked good at first, but I can see now that it wouldn't work. What opened my eyes to the fatal flaw was an exhibit of quack medical devices that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has put on display here.

It is obvious from this exhibit that the quacks wouldn't be satisfied with treating imaginary or picaresque maladies, as I had envisioned.

Quacks may be crooked, but they think big. One of the devices in the display is called a "sonus film-sonic." It was supposed to cure various illnesses by translating music into electric impulses.

Cure For Cancer For example, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" was represented as a cure for cancer and "Holiday for Strings" for arteriosclerosis.

How anyone could have been taken in by such humbuggery is beyond me. The thing is ridiculous on its face.

I mean, everyone knows that "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" can't cure cancer. That is the cure for myopia. For cancer you use "I've Got You Under My Skin."

Another device seized by the FDA is the "microdynameter," which was represented as being able to diagnose diseases by measuring electric current given off by the body.

FDA investigators became suspicious when they attached the machine to a corpse and it registered "healthy."

A somewhat similar machine, the "oscilloclast," was exposed when agents gave it a drop of red ink to analyze. Back came a diagnosis of "systematic toxemia contributing to lowered vitality and anemic tendencies."

So now I know what is wrong with me. I'm a victim of "tired ink."

Some players never false-card. Others false-card every time they get a chance. The winning technique lies somewhere in between. In addition there are many occasions when a false-card is downright silly.

South concealed his nice club suit in the bidding and when West got off to a club lead things looked bright indeed. East played the nine and South promptly false-carded himself right out of game and rubber.

South won with the ace of clubs, led the nine of diamonds and finessed. East took his king and looked around for the right lead. A club return appeared hopeless. Obviously West had not led from either queen-jack-ten or king-queen-jack-ten of clubs so South was marked with at least the ace-king-queen of that suit. A spade shift did not look very good either, but WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Baker Thomas Walters was fined $28 (10 pounds) Wednesday for selling bread that was not up to standard.

A woman testified she ate a slice of Walters' bread and found a glass thermometer in it.

Area Churches Slate Guest Soloist Sunday

Mrs. H. James Jenkins of Portland, wife of the former pastor of the Roseburg First Methodist Church, will return to the area to serve as guest soloist Sunday morning at both the Tenmile and Camas Valley Methodist churches.

She will sing at 9:30 a.m. services at the Tenmile church and at 11 a.m. at Camas Valley. The Rev. J. Thomas Dixon, who pastors both churches, invites the public to attend. His sermon topic for both services will be "Spiritual Observance."

ESCAPE TRY FAILS

MANSOURA, U. A. R. (UPI)—Mohamed Zaki Abdullah jumped from the third-floor window of his house Friday to escape police searching for narcotics.

He landed on top of the police van outside and broke his leg.

South Hoisted by Own False-Card

(Written For NEA) By OSWALD JACOBY

The heart suit showed distinct possibilities. East led the two of hearts.

South's Jack lost to West's queen and the ace dropped his king. A third heart lead gave East tricks with the ten and eight and left poor South high and dry on the rocks.

If South had simply won the first club with the jack East would have had a tough problem. The three of clubs lead could easily have been fourth best from a suit headed by ace-queen-ten or ever, ace-king-ten.

In either of those cases a club return would be the winner and East would surely have made it where upon South would romp home.
