

Retraining Of Idle Workers Said Better Than Extended Unemployment Benefits

By ZAN STARK

SALEM (UPI)—It is more important to retrain workers displaced by automation than to extend unemployment benefits, the Legislative Interim Committee on Technological Employment was told here Wednesday.

"Give people a skill to sell to employers," Ray Ziegler of the State Bureau of Labor told committee members.

The interim group has launched a study of the impact of automation on Oregon's labor force, and will make recommendations to the 1965 legislature.

Labor Commissioner Norman Nilsen said his department was "facing a challenge to help the work force to adapt to the change which is sweeping Oregon and the entire nation."

Ziegler, who on his own time began a series of evening counseling programs to aid unemployed workers, said most displaced persons don't know how to look for jobs, and don't know their skills or shortcomings.

Executives Have Problem

He said displaced executives have the toughest problem getting a new job, while those who work with their hands are more easily retrained.

He said persons under 20 and over 40 face the most difficulty in finding jobs.

Nilsen said it was the labor commission's job to get the work force to recognize the skills it had to offer, and the department of employment's job to get the potential employee together with a prospective employer.

It was pointed out that the Oregon work force was above the national average in intelligence, and had one of the lowest rates of illiteracy.

Nilsen said this was a great advantage because the labor force was better able to adjust to technological advances.

It was pointed out that the state civil service recently listed 206 job openings, and more than one-third of them were open to out-of-state residents. This was because there was a shortage of people in Oregon to fill the positions which required a high degree of technical skill.

Realists Admit March On Capital Didn't Alter Votes In Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional backers of civil rights legislation today joined leaders of the march on Washington in voicing hope that the massive demonstration strengthened their cause.

But the realists admitted it probably did not change a single vote in Congress.

The congressional delegation of almost 100 who sat on the sun-scorched steps of the Lincoln Memorial to attend the huge rally were basically disposed toward the aims of the march before they went.

They were unanimous in praising the demonstration—and in voicing relief that the disorders, which no one wanted but many feared, did not occur.

But they went back to Capitol Hill to face the sobering fact that major parts of President Kennedy's civil rights package still face an uphill fight in Congress.

Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., summed up the dilemma when he told reporters that the demonstration itself probably changed no lawmaker's mind.

However, he said, it could have an effect on the people of the nation and indirectly on Congress is responsible.

Other congressional news:

Space: Congress completed action Wednesday on a bill authorizing the space agency to spend $5.35 billion during the current fiscal year. Both the House and Senate approved a compromise version of bills passed earlier by each chamber. The legislation now goes to the White House.

Shelters: The House Rules Committee cleared for House action legislation to start the government on a five-year, $2 billion program for fallout shelter construction. The bill would authorize appropriations up to $190 million for a one-year trial run of a plan to eventually put up 250 million shelter spaces in new and old buildings.

Boy Scouts Are Active In Glendale-Azalea

Azalea Boy Scout Troop No. 84 held a Court of Honor recently around a camp fire up Quines Creek. Badges and awards were presented and Mike Murphy, LaDon Snyder and Stephen Cleveland were given their Star Scout rank.

Following the Court of Honor, the boys camped out for the night for Glendale Scout Troop No. 16, was in charge of a recent camp-out at Camp Melakwa on the McKenzie Pass when three boys from the local area were initiated into the Order of the Arrow, an honorary order for which the best campers are chosen.

Receiving the award were John Fotheringham and Rickie Major of the Glendale Troop and Mike Murphy of Azalea Troop 84, correspondent Mrs. Gerald Fox reports.

Tito, Khrush Intend To Call Summit Meet

PULA, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Tito intend to call a summit conference of Communist parties to stand up and be counted for either Moscow or Peking in the ideological dispute, veteran diplomatic observers said Wednesday.

The observers said the two Communist leaders have worked out a joint policy for battling a Red Chinese bid for leadership of the Communist camp.

During Khrushchev's current 15-day visit to Yugoslavia, the Soviet premier and Tito have reached an understanding for a new "collaboration" between their two countries. Both have been targets of bitter Chinese criticism.

The quarrel revolves on Khrushchev's policy of peaceful co-existence based on the belief that communism will overcome capitalism without resort to a nuclear war that could destroy the world. The Peking regime insists on a more militant policy calling for armed rebellion to spread communism.

An announcement Tuesday night said Khrushchev and Tito had discussed the international Communist movement, with emphasis on "strengthening the unity" of the movement.

Communist China has split the movement with attacks on the Soviet Union and specifically on Khrushchev. Peking lumps Khrushchev and Tito as "running dogs of Western imperialism."

Khrushchev, currently on the ninth day of his visit, has gone out of his way several times in public to slap the Chinese.

There are about 80 Communist parties in the world. Most follow the Moscow line, and would be expected to appear at the projected summit conference, probably in Moscow.

Safety Council Sees Heavy Traffic Toll

By United Press International
The National Safety Council has estimated that as many as 520 persons may die and 21,000 suffer injuries in Labor Day weekend traffic.

Last year's Labor Day weekend claimed 501 lives in traffic accidents, a record for the 78-hour period.

The council estimated Wednesday the total number of traffic deaths during the three-day holiday would range between 430 and 520. From 17,000 to 21,000, it said, would be injured during the holiday, which begins at 6 p.m. (local time) Thursday and ends at midnight Monday.

Howard Pyle, former Arizona governor and council president, said Labor Day this year follows two summer holidays that set records for traffic deaths, Memorial Day and Independence Day.

"On these two long weekends alone—only eight days—more than 1,000 Americans were killed on our highways. All of us can and must exercise greater caution if we are to make sure this frightening performance is not repeated over Labor Day," he said.

Effect Of Trip To Cuba Worries Students Who Defied Government

MADRID (UPI) — A group of 54 American students who defied a government ban on travel to Cuba now were reported worried about the effect the trip will have on their future.

Several have refused to give their names or home towns to reporters on the ground they might face dismissal from colleges or be barred from enrolling.

They were expected to fly to New York Thursday and face removal of passports by the State Department and possible prosecution for violation of the Cuba travel ban. Maximum penalties are five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Some of the group, which flew into Madrid Monday night, talked glowingly of the seven-week tour of the Caribbean island. The group was invited by the Cuban Student Federation and the Cubans paid the expenses.

One member of the group, Clinton M. Jenks of Monroe, La., said Tuesday the trip disillusioned him about Cuba under Premier Fidel Castro.

"I don't know how they lived before in Cuba," he said, "but I am sure the people of Cuba never lived worse than they do now."

"They told us the people were better off now but I don't believe it."

The 20-year-old drama student made the trip with his wife Clara. He grew a beard during the trip but had it shaved off here Tuesday.

Other youths, who declined to give their names, said "Cuba was great. Castro has given his people much better living conditions than before."

Richard Thorne of Berkeley, Calif., said the group traveled all over Cuba. "What impressed me was the thousands of schools," he said. "Castro is certainly trying to educate the people."

Robert Kaifka of San Francisco said the State Department ban on travel to Cuba and Communist China didn't worry him.

One member of the group, Christian Lee Rainer, 23, of San Francisco, was arrested by Spanish police on arrival because he had no passport, but was released Tuesday night when the U.S. Embassy intervened. Rainer said he lost his passport in Cuba last week.

Q. Why give your favorite student a really fine pen when he'll just lose it?

A. PARKER won't let him lose it. If he does it will be replaced free*

GUARANTEED AGAINST LOSS

FOR ONE FULL YEAR!

(*See details inside Parker 45 box)

Now there's no excuse for not giving students a really fine fountain pen.

And the Parker 45 is just that. Solid 14K gold point that comes in seven widths, extra-fine to broad.

The 45 is "convertible," too. Load it with a cartridge, or slip in an ingenious converter and fill it from an ink bottle. (Great for students who are afraid of running out of ink during a tough exam.)

For only $5 you get the pen, a giant cartridge, the converter PLUS Parker's loss guarantee. But hurry—the free replacement offer applies only to pens bought before Oct. 31, 1963.
