

HAPPY NEWS — Relatives of trapped miners in Shepton, Pa., are overcome with emotion as they heard the news Monday that the big drill was through to their loved ones. Left to right are Mrs. David Fellin, Mrs. Henry Throne, and Mrs. Louis Bova. A volunteer was scheduled to be lowered into the mine Friday afternoon in search of the still-trapped Louis Bova. Throne and Fellin were removed from their underground prison Wednesday.

THEY'RE THROUGH! Was the shout of mine rescue workers Monday as they call to stop the massive drill, and wave hats in joy, as the big bit bites through to David Fellin and Henry Throne, trapped more than 330 feet underground in Shepton, Pa., coal mine. Fate of a third miner, Louis Bova, trapped apart from other two men, still is not known.

CIVIL RIGHTS MARCHERS jam the area in front of the Lincoln Memorial and on either side of the reflecting pool Wednesday during the biggest march on the capital in history. In picture, taken from atop Lincoln Memorial, demonstrators are massed at the pool all the way back to the Washington monument.

REV. MARTIN LUTHER KING delivers his address at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. Wednesday during the civil rights march on the U.S. Capitol. He said the March was the "greatest demonstration of freedom in the history of the nation."

HIDDEN CAMERA caught this photo of young bandit Monday after he forced female tellers in a Decatur, Ill. bank to put $19,000 into a bag; then turned and fled. He's still at large.

SEN. MAURINE NEUBERGER chats with army and navy personnel atop amphibious landing vehicle at Camp Rilea Monday. She viewed practice assault staged by 498th Engineer amphibious support command as part of Operation Cascade Columbia in which Army, Army Reserve and Navy took part.

ALL EYES ARE ON FRONT of the potash mine in Moab, Utah, as rescue workers, relatives and newsmen await fate of 25 men trapped in an explosion Wednesday. Seven of the 25 men in the mine were rescued. Eighteen were dead. An Interior Department investigation has been launched to find reason for the blast.

WELLS FARGO, 6, great grand nephew of William G. Fargo, founder of the famous Wells Fargo bank, met Ransom Cook, the firm's president this week when his grandfather brought him in to buy him some of the bank's stock. Boy was promised a job whenever he is ready to take it.

MRS. ELSIE FARLEY and her oldest son, She (left), will be arraigned on murder charges for slaying the boy's father Thursday in El Monte, Calif. The mother and four sons beat the father, smothered him and held him below water in the bathtub until he ceased to struggle because "he had been a brute for 12 years," detectives said.