

Kennedy Gets S. Viet Nam Report Of McNamara, Gen. Taylor Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was back from the front lines of the South Viet Nam guerrilla war to give President Kennedy a frank appraisal of the situation. McNamara and Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spent a week on a fact-finding mission for Kennedy to clear up some of the confusion over whether the South Vietnamese war effort had been diluted by its domestic religious crisis. McNamara declined on their arrival at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. today to give newsmen any inkling of what his report contains. He saved it for a conference the two Pentagon leaders had with the President at the White House, only a little over three hours after their return. On their departure from Saigon Tuesday, McNamara issued a statement saying he and Taylor had traveled the "length and breadth of this land" and had spoken with several hundred persons during their visit. Assess Situation Kennedy sent McNamara and Taylor to South Viet Nam Sept. 23 to make a first hand assessment of the progress of that country's war against the Communist guerrillas, a war in which 12,000 to 15,000 U.S. servicemen are involved. The President gave the two investigators a three-way assignment. To assess the military situation now, compared with the period before late August when the Vietnamese government cracked down on Buddhists and threw the country into a political turmoil. To assess the probable effect of the Vietnamese government's repression of the Buddhists and other policies on the future progress of the war. In the light of the first two findings to recommend what action the United States should take. Policy Isn't Question U.S. officials said it was not a question of deciding U.S. "policy" in Viet Nam—the policy is and has been to see the war won and help the Vietnamese economically toward a better life. Kennedy has stated this country would not pull its forces out of Viet Nam, whose defeat he believes would ultimately mean the loss of all Southeast Asia to communism. The question, officials said, is one of tactics—how forceful the United States should be in trying to persuade the Vietnamese regime to make reforms, what U.S. aid policy should be, how the Vietnamese war effort should be organized and what its working relationship with U.S. military officials should be.

Park Campgrounds Close October 27

Overnight campgrounds in Oregon state parks will close Oct. 27, State Highway Engineer Forrest Cooper said today. Four overnight camps on the Oregon Coast will remain open as usual throughout the year. These camps are in Cape Lookout, Beverly Beach, Jessie M. Honeyman and Harris Beach state parks. Picnic facilities in all state parks will remain open to the public, Cooper said, although drinking water, and electric stoves may not be available in many parks. The season generally is from May through October. Weather figures in the variation of closing dates in some overnight camps. This especially applies in the high altitudes of the Cascades and in Eastern Oregon, where cold weather could make an earlier closing date necessary. After camping areas are closed, park and highway maintenance crews drain water lines, store removable facilities, and repair and improve the park. In some areas, restrooms have to be closed. In the valleys and coastal areas this disruption of service may be for only short periods.

Haggard, Frightened Christine Hears Accusation Of Frame Up

LONDON (UPI)—Haggard and frightened Christine Keeler, the girl in the Profumo scandal, stood in the prisoner's dock today and heard herself accused of framing a discarded West Indian lover. In an eventful life since she came to London from the country five years ago, the 21-year-old redhead has often skirted the edges of trouble. She has been a witness in three court cases and the central figure of an episode that rocked the government. War Minister John Profumo resigned because of his misconduct with her. One of her numerous West Indian lovers is serving seven years for shooting at her. Her protector, Dr. Stephen Ward, society artist and osteopath, committed suicide when he was convicted of living on her immoral earnings. But this is the first time she herself has been faced with the possibility of punishment by the law. And she looked as though she realized that the charges of perjury and conspiracy against her—if proven—might add up to years in prison. Her shoulder-length hair could have used the attention of a hairdresser. She nervously scribbled notes in a book as the prosecution named the mystery man who beat her last April 18 as John Hamilton - Marshall, brother of her best friend. Miss Keller is accused of attributing the injuries to Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, a West Indian jazz singer who received a three year jail sentence as a result. Today's session was the first of a three-day hearing to determine if she must stand trial on the charges.
