Liberal Cardinals Boost Plan To Enhance Power Of Bishops

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Liberal cardinals from North America, Western Europe and Africa assured the Ecumenical Council today that no threat to the primacy of the Pope is involved in a proposal to enhance the powers of bishops.

A parade of prominent prelates strongly defended in council debate the idea that bishops of the church constitute a "college" or sacred body which shares with the Pope responsibility for the government and welfare of the whole church. Some conservative council fathers have voiced fear that the concept endangers papal supremacy.

Another highlight of today's debate was a vigorous rebuttal by Julius Cardinal Doepfner, liberal archbishop of Munich, Germany, of a speech delivered last week by Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York.

Spellman had attacked a provision in the document on the church which would permit the ordination of married deacons in missionary territories which have a shortage of priests.

Doepfner disputed Spellman's contention that the proposal would threaten the tradition of priestly celibacy. He said the deacons would be carefully chosen to meet special circumstances and would not be merely "second class priests without the obligation of celibacy."

Strong statements in favor of the "collegiality" concept were made by Albert Gregory Cardinal Meyer of Chicago, Paul Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal, Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Vienna, Joseph Cardinal Lefevre of Bourges, France, Bernard Jan Cardinal Alfrink of Utrecht, Netherlands, Laurean Cardinal Rugambwa of Tanganyika and Patriarch Maximov IV Saigh of Antioch, of the Melchites.

Giuseppe Cardinal Siri of Genoa was the only conservative cardinal to take part in today's debate, and he acknowledged the desirability of some council recognition of the importance of the College of Bishops. But he warned that the bishops have no existence as a joint body and no power "except in union with the Roman pontiff."

Cardinal Leger said that no one should be afraid that the enhanced role of the bishops would in any way weaken the doctrine of papal primacy.

Study Set By BLM On Animal Damage

As part of a five-year study of wildlife damage to forest tree plantations in Oregon and Washington, the Roseburg District of the Bureau of Land Management will install eight test plots on areas planted with fir and pine this winter. The project is being carried out by four public agencies and nine private timber companies under Northwest Forest Pest Control Council direction.

A total 116 test plots will be set up in randomly selected areas in the two states. Thirty-one of these are being established on BLM land. One of every 10 seedlings on each test plot will be ringed by a wire screen to protect it from hungry wildlife. By annually comparing the growth with that of unprotected seedlings, the foresters hope to determine dollar losses to forest plantations and to obtain information leading to control methods.

Wildlife damage is considered one of the most serious management problems in starting new timber crops on newly-harvested forest lands, reports Roseburg BLM Forester Muri Storms. He says one major industrial tree farmer estimated annual wildlife damage to its timber land at a million dollars. The animals playing leading roles in the damage are rodents, deer, elk, porcupines and bears.

Unpassed Hand Jumps to Four

(Written For NEA)
By OSWALD JACOBY

Although most systems still play the jump to three of partner's suit by an unpassed hand as a game force, the examples are always in the major suits. Somehow or other no one really likes to play the minor suit jump as anything, but a strong invitation to further bidding. For years the western players have all played the bid this way and it is only with the majors that they are just coming around to playing limit bids.

It is necessary to have some way to handle the forcing raise of a major and after years of experimentation I have come around to using two no-trump as this forcing raise by an unpassed hand.

This means that the normal two-no-trump response can't be used, but I have never found any great use for it anyway and it does come in mighty handy as the forcing raise because it leaves lots of room for exploration below game.

In the Jacoby system the jump to four by an unpassed hand remains just as in other systems. A hand that should produce game and that has little defense against the opponents and little chance for a slam unless opener really has lots of control cards.

South has 17 high card points and a pretty good six card suit. Most any strong bid by North should suggest a slam, but not the jump to four spades.

South misses three aces and there is little chance that North will hold two of them, so South passes and settles for the game.

Q—The bidding has been:
North East South West
1♣ Double 1♥ 1♠
Pass 2♠ ?
You, South, hold:

What do you do?
A—Bid either three or four clubs. Four clubs is a very slight overbid, but I would prefer it to bidding merely three clubs.

SHORTAGE OF MEN

LONDON (UPI) — Raymond Blackman, editor of Jane's Fighting Ships, said recently that a shortage of 20,000 men in the Royal Navy has kept 129 warships out of full commission.

"So many men have to be on shore undergoing nuclear and technical courses that there are not all that many men to commission ships," he said.

... Sunday school teacher of his stops in the West. He will later travel to California and other Southwestern U. S. points.

The Rev. Mr. Gerig has been given the title "Mr. Sunday School" by the association. His talks will be geared to the advancement of Sunday schools and teaching with an evangelistic appeal.

The Rev. Mr. Floth reports the talks will be of special interest to Sunday school teachers. He has asked that teachers from other churches also attend.

The visiting pastor is serving in his present position after 30 years of pastoral experience in churches from Pennsylvania to Arizona. He has held various national and district offices, including Arizona state chairman of the National Sunday School Association, president and vice president of the Denominational Sunday School Secretaries Commission of the National Sunday School Association. He is now on the association's general council and is a national director of church schools in the Missionary Church Association.

With the aid of film strips, each lecture will highlight some phase of Sunday school work.
