Dear Abby! She's Not Cool, Yet!

— By ABIGAIL VANBUREN —

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went together to buy an air conditioner. While my husband was establishing credit, the salesman asked me when he could come out and measure our window for the conditioner. I told him it wouldn't be necessary, that my husband would install the machine himself.

The clerk then said, "Your husband wouldn't have to know about it, would he?" I was surprised and shocked, and told my husband about it when we got home. He was so outraged that he went right back to the store and confronted the salesman with what I had told him. When my husband returned, he was angry with me! The clerk told my husband he was just being funny. And my husband believed the clerk. What do you make of this?

WRONGED DEAR WRONGED: The clerk was just being funny, huh? I think hubby should have told the store manager that his sales force needed air conditioning, and meanwhile he was taking his business elsewhere. Such a wiseacre clerk could get the businessman into a peck of trouble.

DEAR ABBY: We have a very large family. Our brother recently went to the hospital for a serious operation. His wife told the whole family that he didn't want any of his brothers, sisters, or even his mother or father to visit him for a while. We felt bad, of course, but stayed away. After two weeks, our brother went home. His wife still insisted he didn't want any company.

Finally, our mother went over to his house, rang the doorbell, and practically forced her way into the house. When her son saw her, he said, "Were you waiting to read in the papers where I had died before you came to see me?" Mom almost fainted. Should our brother be told that his wife kept us from his side?

FIVE BROTHERS AND FOUR SISTERS

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS: Say nothing. The truth will reveal itself in time.

DEAR ABBY: When a fellow asks you out on a date, why does he say, "Where do you want to go?" This makes me uncomfortable as I expect my date to have the evening planned since he did the asking. How does a girl handle a situation like this? I usually say, "I'll go anywhere you want to go." But then I feel like such a dummy.

DEAR NO IDEAS: Why feel like a dummy? I think you're smart. The young man knows the limitations of his pocketbook. If he sincerely wants to please you, he should offer a few suggestions and let you make the final decision.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WORKING FOR PEANUTS": Why should the boss shell out more when he is on to all the monkey business in his office?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MOTHER OF A DAUGHTER 15 AND A SON 5": If your letter described your husband accurately, and I have read enough letters to believe it did, you should see a lawyer about separate maintenance. A man, by law, must support his wife and children. To subject your children (and especially a 5-year-old) to such inhuman treatment is criminal. Are you sure he is all there?

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
