

Moscow-Led Nations Indict Red Chinese

LONDON (UPI) — The Moscow-led Communist nations have drafted a point-by-point indictment of Communist China for next month's meeting which may lead to Peking's expulsion from their ranks, it was learned today.

Communist sources said in Moscow over the weekend that the major Communist parties in the Soviet camp would gather there during the celebrations of the 46th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

China and its Asian Communist allies were not expected to attend the meeting, which was seen as a possible prelude to the expulsion of the Chinese from the Moscow-dominated bloc.

The official organ of that bloc, the World Marxist Review, set out key points of the indictment prepared against Peking in its current issue.

The Moscow group's overall charge is that Peking, with its hard line foreign policy and bitter attacks on Russia, is out of line with the world Communist movement "on many issues of policy, strategy, and tactics."

The indictment leaves no room for compromise and implies that if a settlement is to be achieved, Peking must make all the concessions.

The indictment charges that the Chinese leaders: —"Deny the pressing need for a jointly elaborated policy of peaceful co-existence," a reference to the Peking line that war is inevitable in advancing the cause of communism. —"Violate the standards of behavior between fraternal parties," which refers to the repeated propaganda attacks on Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and his policies, some of them launched by Chinese in the Soviet Union itself. —"Are out of joint" on the nuclear test ban treaty, which Moscow concluded with the West and which Communist parties outside the Peking orbit support unanimously. —"Support splitters and renegades" who have been expelled from Communist parties. This refers to Chinese attempts to line up Communist dissidents throughout the world to oppose Khrushchev. —Extend ideological differences to state relations, pursue racist policies, and are out to create "self-contained national economies." These are general charges referring to China's independence from Moscow in domestic and foreign affairs.

Waste Liquor Barge Down In Heavy Seas

ABERDEEN, Wash. (UPI) — A lumber barge loaded with waste sulphite pulp liquor sank in heavy seas Monday near Destruction Island.

The barge was the Island Cypress, being towed by the tug Sudbury II of Vancouver, B.C., according to officials of Rayonier Inc. for whom the shipment was consigned.

Heavy seas and 50 mile per hour winds were reported in the area.

The tug came into Grays Harbor for gear repair after the barge sank. There were no casualties.

A Tenor With Stage Presence Once Saved A Gal Wig Keeper

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) Once upon a time there was this tenor and Soprano on stage singing a love duet from an opera. Suddenly, the extra curls padding out the soprano on stage singing a love off.

A pretty Scottish-born woman in the wings watched numbly. She had pinned on those curls earlier.

But the tenor with a stage presence the girl in the wings hadn't expected casually reached up, took the dropping curls and stuck them in his pocket. As far as those on stage knew, the audience didn't know.

Today, recalling that incident, Nina Lawson remarked, "I never thought much of him as an actor until then."

The performance was Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" by the Sadler's Wells opera company in London. Miss Lawson at the time was in charge of the company's wig department. Now, she heads the wig division of the Metropolitan Opera Co., which opened its 1963-64 season Monday night.

Anything Can Happen She knocks on the nearest wooden head block when asked if she's had any other such crises. "But," she said, "opera singers are getting more active each season on stage, so..."

Wigs are as much a part of the operatic world as temperament, high C and Rudolf Bing.

"Aida," which opened the Metropolitan's season, required 54 wigs for soloists and chorus, she said. "Manon," coming up soon, will require 135 full, head-covering wigs and 55 hair pieces.

Miss Lawson figured that in the 1963-64 season she and her staff will dress, and re-dress, close to 1,500 wigs or partial wigs.

The job starts literally from the roots. They weave the hair, a few strands at a time, into the wig base, much like doing crochet, until the "scalp" is covered abundantly. They dye, bleach, cut, dry clean, style and set — just as a beauty salon does. And finally, they help the soloists get into their head-dress, fastening it across the forehead with spirit gum because so many of the wigs are swept back from the brow. The gum does not show.

The Met, which used to get its wigs from outside sources, opened its own department with Miss Lawson as chief hairdresser in 1957-58 season.

There are four on her staff — another hairdresser, Budapest-born Mrs. Charlotte Magyar, plus makeup artists.

Quints' Mother Puts Cheers Aside, Yearns For The Day They Get Home

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI) — quintuplets will be at home Monday during a big parade. Later they went to a mammoth "birthday party" at the Civic Arena in honor of their famous children.

Dirksen Says Kennedy's Aid Program In Trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said today that President Kennedy's foreign aid program was in "deep, deep trouble" because of a "harder appraisal" by Congress and the country.

The Illinois Republican would not speculate on how much of Kennedy's original $4.5 billion authorization request might ultimately be approved by Congress.

But his statement, made in an interview, supported speculation that the administration may finally get little more than the $3.5 billion voted by the House.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which went back to work on the bill at a closed session today, agreed that the program faced difficulty. But "it's always in trouble," he told reporters.

Fulbright said he would hold sessions every day this week if possible in hopes of finishing committee action and sending the long-delayed measure to the floor. But he would make no predictions as to how soon or how much the committee would finally vote.

"We will just plow our corn as we go along," he said.

The foreign relations group sidetracked the authorization measure more than two months ago to work on the limited test ban treaty. In the meantime, Dirksen said today that opposition — at least to some parts of it — appears to have increased rather than calmed down.

Gals Outnumber California Men

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Horace Greeley's advice for young men to head west may apply specifically to California in 1980 — if the young men don't mind "older" women.

The state Department of Finance predicted Monday that there will be approximately 538,000 more women than men in California by July 1, 1980.

Walter P. Hollman, the agency's population expert, said the average California lady will be 29.3 years old, while the men will average 27.6 years.

He also forecast that California's bulging population would swell to 27.8 million in the next 6 years, with toddlers under five accounting for about 2,744,000 of the total. Hollman said there would be 14,209,000 women and 13,671,000 men.

Hollman said the currently estimated 17.3 million persons in the state would grow to 17.9 million by 1965.

He noted that an apparent trend in lower birthrates will be better defined in the next few years.

High Court Refuses Hearing For Shipley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to reconsider its denial on last June 10 of a hearing to Larry West Shipley, McMinnville, Ore., sentenced to death for the murder of a 16-year old girl in 1961.

The brief order leaves Oregon free to carry out the execution. The victim was Linda Stevens, a juvenile court ward.
