

Group Of Negro Ministers Seeks To Settle Birmingham Controversy By Arbitration

By United Press International
A group of Negro ministers in Birmingham, Ala., Wednesday made a move to settle the city's latest racial controversy by conference rather than ultimatum.

The Birmingham Baptist Minister's Conference, an organization of about 200 Negro clergymen, urged city council to demonstrate "responsibility, fair play and meaningful faith" in desegregation as was put forth with the Negro community by last week in an ultimatum by the Rev. Martin Luther King.

The statement apparently hiring of 25 Negro policemen was an olive-branch gesture by Mayor Albert Boutwell to some Negro leaders to head off resumption of huge street demonstrations similar to those which last spring resulted in more than 2,500 arrests. King, who led the earlier demonstrations, demanded the streets for trying to make "big push."

Gastonia, N. C. — About 200 Negroes marched on two segregated theaters for the fourth consecutive night. The march was without incident.
Jackson, Miss. — A perjury charge was filed Wednesday against Lois Chaffee, a white student at predominantly Negro Tougaloo College, after she testified that policemen beat demonstrators to the ground with clubs. Police witnesses said they saw no such beatings and County Judge Russell Moore filed the charges.
