

Tito May Shed Light On New E-W Relations

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—Yugoslav President Tito, the "man in the middle," returned to the United Nations today for the first time since the famous 1960 summit session. The Communist leader was scheduled to address the General Assembly at noon as a feature event of his visit to the United States. Afterwards he was holding a news conference. Diplomats here looked to Tito's speech for some sign of how the current improvement in East-West relations can be expected to develop in the future. Tito met with President Kennedy in Washington last week, and has been in Williamsburg, Va., and New York since that time. Monday he took a side trip to Princeton, N. J. His visit to the United States, following a tour of Latin America, came just a few months after he entertained Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Yugoslavia. It underscored Tito's role as an "independent" Communist who maintains good relations with the West. Khrushchev's 15-day visit to Yugoslavia last summer was designed as a "bury the hatchet" mission to get Tito's support in the Moscow-Peking quarrel. It was reported to have ended the Kremlin's dispute with Yugoslavia, which began in 1948 when Stalin kicked Tito out of the international Communist movement for his independent ideas. Because Tito apparently has favor in both Moscow and Washington, diplomats believed he could shed some light on what Khrushchev and Kennedy think about the future relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Kennedy Expected To Sign Measure On Mental Health

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy is expected to quickly sign into law a bill to initiate one of his leading goals—a long-range mental health program. The House and Senate approved and sent to the White House Monday legislation he requested to authorize an initial $329 million attack on mental illness and retardation. The President has a strong personal interest in the program. His sister Rosemary is a victim of mental retardation and the Kennedy family has contributed substantial funds for treatment and research in the field of mental health. Kennedy, who asked for the legislation in a special message to Congress on Feb. 5, called for a "bold new approach" to fight mental illness and mental retardation. The Senate passed the bill Monday by voice vote and the House stamped its approval about three hours later on a roll call vote of 296 to 14. Supporters of the legislation called it a historic step. Rep. Kenneth Roberts, D-Ala., said it was the most important health bill in his 13 years in Congress. "For the first time we will be able to avoid the stigma of mental illness and have it treated at the community where the patient stands the best chance of recovery," he said.

Although jovial now, she wasn't happy earlier when she described her visit to Harvard University. She said the bad manners there were "absolutely terrible." (UPI Telephoto)

Court Ruling Keeps Alive Vito's Hope For Freedom

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Racket chief Vito Genovese's long-shot chances of reversing his narcotics conviction and regaining his freedom were kept alive today by a Supreme Court ruling. The high tribunal Monday ordered the U.S. Appeals Court in New York to reconsider Genovese's demand that his conviction be set aside and a new trial granted. The man tagged by Senate crime investigators as the "boss of all bosses" of the Cosa Nostra syndicate, however, will remain in Leavenworth federal prison hospital while the appeal is pending. He is serving a 15-year sentence and the Justice Department said that he would be ineligible for bail while his attorney argued the case. Government officials who had been hoping the Supreme Court would reject Genovese's bid for a new trial were keenly disappointed by the ruling. The decision's effect on the Cosa Nostra hierarchy could not be determined immediately, federal officials said, but it appeared likely that there would be no change because of it. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said that Genovese's top spot in New York underworld has not been filled while he is in prison. "If Genovese stays in prison after his case is concluded, we anticipate a major underworld power struggle in New York," Kennedy told Senate investigators.

Women Will Hear University Dean

Dr. Robert Trotter, dean of the University of Oregon School of Music, will present the fourth lecture-recital of a series at the Roseburg Woman's Club. He will be heard Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the clubhouse. In the third of a 10-lecture-recital series held last week, George Hopkins, senior pianist of the school of music, played the console grand piano of the First Christian Church. Hopkins, known as a concert artist of wide experience and a distinguished member of the school of music staff, is a composer as well, and much of his original work reflects his travels and study in the countries south of the border. In his program here last week he played compositions of his own as well as those from the works of Brahms, Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Liszt, Gershwin and Chopin.

Reopened Controversy

The Supreme Court's 6-3 decision reopened a controversy over disclosures that the prosecution must make to the defense on pre-trial statements by government witnesses. In returning the case involving Genovese and nine co-defendants for reconsideration, the high tribunal said it should be decided in light of its ruling last May in "Campbell vs. United States." That decision reversed the bank robbery conviction of three men on the ground that the government did not turn over to the defense counsel an FBI report of an interview with a key prosecution witness on the day following the robbery. The court majority held that this report came under the scope of the Jencks Act which requires the government to furnish the defense with certain statements from prosecution witnesses if they concern trial testimony.

Realtors To Get New State Books

New real estate manuals will be distributed to Southern Douglas County licensed realtors by Robert J. Jensen, Salem, Oregon real estate commissioner, at a meeting here Thursday. Jensen will hand out the manuals in connection with a talk before Roseburg area realtors attending an annual fall educational class. The session gets underway at 7:30 p.m. in room 109 of the main building at Roseburg High School. Harry Winter, class representative for the state Real Estate Department, said the manual is a new, permanent edition which none of the area realtors has at this time. There will be one distribution here, he advised. This will be the commissioner's annual visit to Douglas County. Winter reports that credits for sustaining membership in Rho Epsilon Kappa, an Oregon honorary society for real estate people, can be achieved by attending the session. Special educational studies in the real estate field are a condition of membership. Local realtors participated in a Rho Epsilon Kappa seminar conducted recently at the Multnomah Hotel in Portland. Attending from Roseburg were Helen Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Smalley, Harry Winter and Les Black.

Admission Of Women Is Asked For Secret Basilica Sessions

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Leo Cardinal Suenens, one of the four executive moderators appointed by Pope Paul VI to direct Ecumenical Council discussions, today asked council fathers to admit women to their secret sessions in St. Peter's Basilica. The Belgian cardinal also asked that lady auditors, admitted for the first time to the second session, be increased in number and made more representative in their selection. He also suggested that representatives of religious orders who teach the Gospel throughout the world, both men and women, be invited to the council sessions. The cardinal argued that women make up half the population of the world and that on this basis they should have some voice in the debates on the nature and role of the Catholic Church in the modern world. The cardinal clearly appeared to mean that both nuns and lay women should be admitted to council sessions. Cardinal Suenens said that not only members of the hierarchy have special gifts from the Holy Ghost, but all members of the church. These gifts, if not directed by church authority, can be "dangerous and disorderly," but the hierarchy must not make of the church a purely "administrative apparatus" and thereby limit the freedom of the people of God, he said. It was in this light that the cardinal suggested a wider representation of religious and lay persons, both male and female, at the council.

Church-State Debate

U.S. bishops also were reported preparing a statement on the need for a modern view of church-state relations. This is one reason for the U.S. hierarchy's strategic silence on a sentence in a document now being debated which clashes with the cherished U.S. constitutional concept of separation of church and state. The sentence says that Catholic faithful will "legitimately oppose the unfortunate separation" of church and state. It is in the third chapter of a dogmatic constitution on the church which deals with the role of Catholic laymen in the church and the world. Council fathers began debate on it a week ago. The Americans feel a document on the layman is not the place to debate church-state relations, and in any case they object to the wording of the document as it stands. They regard "church-state" terminology as outdated. It is not so much church-state relations between the "sacred" or religious elements of life and the "secular" or non-religious things in life. Archbishop Dennis Hurley of Durban, South Africa, said Monday the council should avoid speaking of "church and state" and instead "try to show our people how they are to combine in Christian fashion the activities which bring them into contact with the two aspects of their life, that is to say, Christian and civil."

Plans For Annual Jaycee Neewollah Parade Are Set

A fearsome assortment of witches, goblins and other spook-type creatures will make a terror-striking appearance on downtown Roseburg streets the night of Oct. 31. The occasion will be the annual Neewollah (that's Halloween spelled backwards) Parade sponsored by Roseburg's Jaycees, and it's an invitation for school children of the area to compete for prizes by wearing their creepiest outfits. Jim Donnelly, chairman, said the parade will form at 6:15 at the Adair parking lot, corner of SE Main and Washington. Trophies will be presented to schools with the largest turnout and $5 cash awards are planned for individual winners. The costume categories in which the cash awards are available are clown, witch, goblin (including miscellaneous) and most original. The Roseburg High School Pep Band will lead the ghostly group. The route of march will take the youngsters along SE Washington to Jackson, from Jackson to Lane, from Lane to Main and back to the parking lot where ice cream and balloons will be distributed to all participants. Any youngster from grades one through nine can join in the fun. Participants will be segregated into large schools and small schools, with trophies to the school in each group which has the largest turnout.
