Two Stream Weirs Ordered For Studies On Coyote Creek

Two stream gauging weirs to be used for forest watershed research will be constructed in the South Umpqua Experimental Forest near Tiller.

The Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station at Portland has reported that James & Stritzke Construction Co. of Roseburg has been awarded an Accelerated Public Works contract for the work.

Bella Draws Berber Aid In Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—President Ahmed Ben Bella's regime was greatly strengthened today in its border conflict with Morocco because of the unexpected submission of rebel Berbers in the Kabylia region.

Ben Bella announced in a radio broadcast Thursday that Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj, military leader of the Kabylia rebels, had rejoined the Algerian army and was on his way to the front to help fight the Moroccans.

(Hopes for the peaceful settlement of the fighting between Algeria and Morocco rose with a report from Tunis that Ben Bella and Moroccan King Hassan II would meet soon in Libya to discuss their differences.)

(The report was attributed to the press officer of Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, who has been conferring with Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba on the North African crisis. Selassie earlier visited Hassan and Ben Bella in an apparent mediation effort. The report was not immediately confirmed by Algerian or Moroccan sources.)

There was new fighting Thursday around the tiny border outpost of Hassi Beida, in the Sahara desert about 700 miles southwest of Algiers. Both sides claimed to hold the oasis.

Informed sources said Ben Bella and rebel political leader Hocine Ait Ahmed may soon be reconciled, further strengthening the Algerian position. Ait Ahmed, a former vice-premier under Ben Bella, was considered the political brain behind the Berber rebellion in Kabylia, east of Algiers, which was launched last month. He was said to have approved El Hadj's decision to rally behind the government.

The rebellion was believed to have tied down some government troops in the east while the border conflict was carried on with Morocco in the west.

Historical Society Gets Literary Data

Orpha Collins, Roseburg, long active in literary circles, has given a 30-year collection of articles pertaining to local pioneer history to the Douglas County Historical Society.

Mrs. Collins devoted many years to securing and writing bits of history, in addition to her work in the field of poetry and prose. Presently she is putting stories into book-length manuscripts, one of which, she reports, is under consideration by a publisher.

Local Church Bills Speaker

Is teaching Africans to read and preparing literature for new readers worthwhile? The experience of Ruth Casey, missionary from the Ivory Coast, indicated that it is. She will be a guest speaker at the First Conservative Baptist Church, 1138 NE Lincoln St., Sunday, Oct. 27, at the 11 a.m. worship service.

At the 7 p.m. service she will show colored slides of her work, and this will be followed by an informal coffee hour in her honor. Miss Casey is one of the eight foreign and three home missionaries being partially supported by the Roseburg congregation, according to the host pastor, the Rev. Roy H. Campbell.

Weather officials said the storm probably would hit here this afternoon and then move up the coastline to North Carolina tonight.

By mid-morning, winds reaching gale force along the Charleston area beaches and radio-controlled Civil Defense units activated an emergency plan for evacuating persons across the causeways leading from the islands.

Residents of resort islands and other low-lying areas around this historic seaport city boarded up their homes and headed for inland shelters.

Police and firemen moved up and down Folly Beach, Isle of Palms and Sullivan's Island in loudspeaker trucks urging about 10,000 winter residents of the islands to move to higher ground.

Refugee centers were set up at school houses inland and authorities hoped to complete the evacuation by noon.

Tides as much as nine feet above normal were predicted for areas along the South Carolina coast.

Red Cross shelters were ordered set up in the Charleston area by noon EDT to feed and house the persons who fled from the lowlands.

RUTH CASEY to speak here

During the past four years Miss Casey has taught a number of Africans to read their own language and she has helped produce booklets on both Christian and secular subjects for newly literate adults of the Senefo tribe. The title of one of these booklets was "Why We Get Sick." The book presented the simple facts of hygiene.

Although many children in that country now have the opportunity to go to school, the adults have not had this chance. Missionaries first had to reduce the Senari language to writing. Materials then had to be translated in Senari and primers prepared to teach the Senefos to read. Miss Casey has helped to prepare some of the primers and readers in addition to holding literacy classes, according to Campbell.

To prepare for missionary service, Miss Casey was graduated from the Bible Institute of Los Angeles and the Eastern Oregon College of Education in LaGrande. She first went to the Ivory Coast in 1955 under the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society, and she is presently on a year of furlough in the United States before returning to her field of service.

NEW LEGION HOME—A contract has been signed and a building permit secured by Miller & Dimmick, general contractors, for a new 40-by-80 building on the lot where the former building was located at 406 SE Oak Ave. The main entrance will face west overlooking Gateway Park and the South Umpqua River. The Oak Avenue side will have a 40-by-6-foot porch and contain a large picture window with shelves for displaying the many Legion Junior baseball trophies. The parking area will be located at the rear of the building with a 20-foot driveway giving access to Oak. Interior partitions and cabinet work, painting, etc., will be carried out through volunteer pledges and labor by the membership. The building will be made with a cement slab floor, lite-rock block walls and will contain two meeting rooms, plus a kitchen and two rest rooms. Weather permitting, it is anticipated the building will be completed Feb. 1, 1964, and available for the annual Legion birthday party and past commanders' program.

Carolinas Get Storm Warning As Hurricane Veers To North

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Hurricane Ginny bore steadily toward the South Carolina coast today and residents of low-lying areas were ordered to evacuate by noon EDT before the full fury of the storm hit this afternoon.

At 10 a.m. EDT, Ginny was located 73 miles south-south-east of Charleston and moving to the north at 8 miles an hour with winds of 95 m.p.h. at its center.

Weather officials said the storm probably would hit here this afternoon and then move up the coastline to North Carolina tonight.

By mid-morning, winds reaching gale force along the Charleston area beaches and radio-controlled Civil Defense units activated an emergency plan for evacuating persons across the causeways leading from the islands.

Residents of resort islands and other low-lying areas around this historic seaport city boarded up their homes and headed for inland shelters.

Tides as much as nine feet above normal were predicted for areas along the South Carolina coast.

Red Cross shelters were ordered set up in the Charleston area by noon EDT to feed and house the persons who fled from the lowlands.

Chief J. M. Bunch of the Folly Beach police department said his men were using school buses to transport the evacuees.

"The seas are plenty rough and we're getting plenty of rain," he said. "We're getting the people out as fast as we can."

The evacuation order covered a 100-mile stretch of coastline from Edisto to Pawley's Island.

The Charleston Weather Bureau said in a special bulletin areas at once and complete it by 11 a.m. (EST) this morning.

The bulletin also warned there was a danger from tornadoes spawned by Ginny's fringe winds.

"People should remain under shelter as much as possible and motorists traveling the coastal areas up to 100 miles inland should be on the lookout for fallen trees and other obstructions on the highways," the bulletin said.

The weather bureau warned that Ginny's current course would "result in the center coasting the South Carolina coast this afternoon and then moving along the coast to North Carolina tonight."

This we change.

This we don't.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep. Every part you can see and every part you can't see has been changed again and again.

But we never change the Volkswagen without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better.

When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too.

So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.

Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars.

And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.

We made the rear window bigger one year so you could see other people better. We made the tail lights bigger last year so other people could see you better.

But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.

Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car.

It doesn't go in one year and out the other.
