

Keasey-Calkins Sewer Master Plan Ordered

Roseburg's City Council will ask the engineering firm of Correll, Howell, Hayes and Merriam of Corvallis to prepare a sanitary sewer master plan for the Keasey-Calkins area. The council Monday authorized City Manager Craig McMicken to negotiate a contract with the engineering firm for such a study.

City officials said today they have received 40 requests for annexation for the Keasey-Calkins area. McMicken said funds for the survey are available in the city's Sewer Assessment Fund.

Request Rejected In another council action, a request from Douglas County Housing Authority for a commercial rate on sewer service charges was turned down. Charles Dondero, authority administrator, said the authority felt its housing program (Rosewood Park Homes) deserved relief on sewer charges due to the special public nature of the operation.

Ordinance Calls For Hearing On Kline-Calkins Annexation

An ordinance calling for public hearing on proposed annexation of property lying east of NW Kline Street and north of NW Calkins Road was adopted by the Roseburg City Council Monday night.

who has two lots on the Kline-Calkins corner on which new homes are to be built; Frances M. Shepherd, who has an acreage east of Vale Court which will be subdivided into 12 lots; and Clarence H. Berg, owner of a 30-foot strip between the other two properties.

Mayor Thomas Garrison said such an exception would have the effect of "subsidizing" the authority's operation in some degree and stated the city is in no position to stand such a loss.

Italy Faces Political Crisis After Stop-Gap Cabinet Quits

ROME (UPI) — The stop-gap cabinet of Premier Giovanni Leone resigned en masse today, plunging this North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) country back into the political crisis that has plagued it for most of the year.

The flight of money abroad is a result of a steady inflationary spiral. Little has been done to check the trend and the situation, according to economists, is reaching the critical point.

The cabinet, formed after general elections last April, voted to resign in a 24-minute session, ending its 137 days in office. The development had been expected.

The other formula for a political solution—based on right-wing support—has been tried repeatedly over the past years. Because a number of small right-wing parties must give support in order to form a parliamentary majority, it usually leads to a short-lived government.

Leone immediately went to present his resignation to President Antonio Segni, a Christian Democrat like himself.

Glide Board Gets Building Report

Supt. Donald Fluke reported to the Glide School Board at its Monday meeting on the progress of the new elementary building under construction.

Prosecutor Tells Trial Jury Thompson Set Up Wife's Death

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — It was only a smiling picture, but it had a most telling effect. The man held his eyes tight shut. He took off his glasses and squeezed his nose between his eyes with his right hand. His eyelids were clamped in a grimace.

Will Ask For Life Randall will ask this jury to send the crewcut criminal lawyer to prison for life, the maximum sentence for first-degree murder in Minnesota.

Besides the "other woman" motive, he offered to prove that in a space of about a year before Carol's horribly botched slaying last March 6, Thompson took out $1,055,000 in term and accidental death insurance on her, with himself as beneficiary.

Tilmer Eugene Thompson, the former elder of the Presbyterian church in St. Paul in which his 34-year-old wife was a choir singer, had heard himself described Monday at his murder trial as a faithless husband who sneaked off with another woman for nights in motels and hotels.

He told the jury in his opening statement Monday that Thompson "instigated, planned and helped" in what the state expects to show was a three-man conspiracy in "murder for hire."

Randall told the jury he would show Thompson sent $2,500 in cash to his police-character acquaintance, Norman J. Mastrian, who went "shopping for a killer" and found one on his fourth try. This alleged killer has confessed the crime.

Assault Charge Jails Husband

Joe Marshall Dixon, 33, Myrtle Creek, is booked at the Douglas County jail on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, in connection with an alleged knife assault on his wife, Nancy Ann Dixon, Nov. 2.

The next regular meeting of the Glide School Board will be held Nov. 25.

Officials See Berlin Blockade As Move To Seek Political Gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials today viewed Russia's latest Berlin highway blockade as part of a Kremlin campaign to seek political gain through repeated incidents of "brinkmanship."
