Adlai Sees Ultimate Defeat Of Communism

NEW YORK (UPI) — Communism ultimately will be defeated because it is a "contradiction of all of what man holds dearest, spiritually, economically and politically," Adlai E. Stevenson said recently.

The U. S. ambassador to the United Nations made the prediction in a television interiew in commenting on proposals attributed to Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., that the United Sates withdraw recognition from all Communist governments.

"... We can't expect to isolate the Communists from the world; we can expect to defeat them by pointing out and demonstrating ... that their system is in error ..." he said.

The two-time presidential candidate said he thought the "obsession about Cuba is beginning to diminish" but he warned that as a "Communist beachhead in the Western Hemisphere" it was a "source of grave concern and of constant tension by our government."

Stevenson said Communist Cuba was not so much a military threat as it was a "training ground for subversives" seeking to undermine the government of other Latin American republics.

However, Stevenson said he did not regard Cuba as a great danger to the United States in a military sense "or as a source of infection to our country."

"I think we're strong enough, we're big enough, we're self-confident enough, we know what we believe in, and we're fortunate enough to be able to withstand such hazards," he said.

Stevenson, who recently was picketed and spat upon by a group of political extremists in Dallas, Texas, said the leaders of "right front organizations" have painted all sorts of fears, many of them utterly ridiculous unfounded and untrue."

Stevenson blamed it on a "residue of the old isolationist sentiment in this country" and "a kind of general frustration among a lot of people perhaps who aren't too well informed about what is going on in the world."

PORTLAND (UPI) —Accelerated harvest of Columbus Day blowdown timber on O & C lands will result in larger payouts to participating Oregon counties.

Darrel Jones, president of the Association of O & C Counties, said Saturday that the 18 Western Oregon counties contining O & C timber holdings can expeet greater returns from the Bureau of Land Management next year.

Jones recently returned from Washington, D.C., where he confered with the BLM, managers of the O & C lands.

Closed Bank's Biggest Problem Is Simply Too Many Customers

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — A new Tulsa bank, swamped with so many new checking accounts it couldn't keep up with the bookwork, remained closed today to give employes a chance to update the bank's records.

A federally appointed bank conservator, William H. Greenfield of Dallas, announced a decision Monday to keep the Southern Hills National Bank of Tulsa closed a few more days.

Greenfield, however, was quick to assure depositors that "there is no question about the solvency of the bank."

"I have found no reason for the depositors of this bank to be concerned," he said. "The depositors should be able in the near future to have all their checks drawn and cleared with no problems."

When Southern Hills opened Aug. 12, it announced that anyone who opened a checking account within two weeks would never be assessed a service charge. Within a month, the bank had 30,000 depositors, more than any other bank in Oklahoma.

Banking sources said it costs $10 to $15 to open a new checking account. This would mean Southern Hills was spending $300,000 to $450,000 maintaining accounts on which there was no income.

The flood of new deposits so overwhelmed the bank that it has been flying its daily records to a Texas bank for processing each night. Southern Hills has a computer on order but it takes about six months to install the equipment.

In Oklahoma City, the president of the State Capitol Bank, which made a similar offer, said his bank experienced no trouble. The official, J. Leland Gourley, said the bank gained 15,000 accounts in 15 days.

Gourley said the Tulsa bank's trouble may have stemmed from the fact it offered its free service too soon after opening. Gourley's bank had been operating a year before making the offer.
