

Park Commission To Consider Renovation Of City Swim Pool

The city Park and Play-ground Commission will be called into session Monday afternoon to consider the problem of what to do about the proposed swimming pool renovation.

Dental Aides In First Aid Course

A 14-week standard and advanced first aid course is now being conducted for all dental assistants of the Central Douglas County area.

The announcement was made by the Umpqua District Dental Assistants group. The course began last week.

Also made was an announcement that the X-ray proficiency examination would be given by the state Board of Dental Examiners Nov. 26 at 8 p.m. in the Veterans Administration Hospital.

The announcements were made at the November meeting of the dental assistants in Roseburg. After the meeting, clinics were presented in the office of Dr. Richard McDonald by Sharon Graf and Freda Bell on the subject of assisting with "Endodontics" and by Lola Chambers and Jacquie LeGat on "Chairside with Medications."

It was reported today that Florence Andrews, Lola Chambers, Freda Bell, Sharon Graf, Dee Guderian and Jacquie LeGat had attended the state Dental Assistants Association board meeting in Eugene Sunday.

Meanwhile, a joint meeting with the Coos Bay area assistants is planned for the annual Christmas party.

Tree Bid Is Won By Umpqua Woman

The Little River district of the Umpqua National Forest sold 1,000 Douglas fir Christmas trees from the Lake O' Woods area this week, according to Mrs. Arthur Selby, correspondent.

The trees had been appraised at 25 cents per tree. The successful bidder was Mrs. C. J. Long of Umpqua at 35 cents per tree. Mayo (Pat) and Miller (Mrs. Reggie) of Glidre were the next highest bidder at 32 cents per tree.

These trees are taken off a Forest Service tree plantation, and their removal will have an added benefit, as thinning the new timber stand will accelerate the growth of the new timber, according to District Ranger Jack Price. Periodic thinning will produce merchantable saw logs in a shorter length of time, Price said.

tion was expected to cost in the area of $46,000.

Todd Building Co. was low bidder at $71,676. The other bidders and proposals were Heinkel Mechanical Contractors of Portland, $71,999; James & Stritzke Construction Co., $75,980 and Leo E. Kowalewski, Roseburg, $85,240. With such a spread between the bids and estimate, the council is expected to reject the bids.

City Manager Craig McMicken said a report from the engineering firm of Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Merryfield will be presented to the park commission suggesting alternatives which would develop a revised improvement which is within the city's budget.

Meeting Held

Harry Teel and Wayne Phillips, engineers with the consulting firm which designed the renovation, met with McMicken, Park Director Tom Keel and Public Works Director Kenneth Meng Wednesday afternoon to find ways of trimming down the project to make it compatible with available funds.

One facet of the problem is to reduce the project and still maintain standards demanded by the state Board of Health. One suggestion is to go to a less expensive type of filter system. This would probably involve returning to a less efficient and higher maintenance pressure-type system, officials said.

Elimination of surge tanks proposed in the plans was also considered, although this deviation would require state Board of Health approval. The function of surge tanks is to provide a constant skimming action over the surface of the water. Other suggested "cuts" are exterior repairs to the bath house, newly designed showers, a retaining wall at the east end of the pool which would have provided additional spectator seating and painting.

Systems Liked

Efforts will be made to retain the pool heating feature, expanded deck areas, refinishing of the pool, hot water showers and the bag system for checking clothes.

Why were the bids so much higher than the estimate?

The engineers pointed out that remodeling projects are usually difficult to estimate. The consultants stated there was apparently much more involved in certain remodeling aspects of the project than was indicated in the preliminary studies.

After reviewing the situation and the suggested alternative proposals, it is expected the commission will make a recommendation to the City Council.

Boys Appropriate A Stolen Vehicle

Two boys, ages 14 and 12, decided it would be easier delivering papers by car than other means, so they looked around until they found one with the keys in it, about 3:15 a.m. today.

Everything went fine until city police caught up with them on the west side of town.

Officers report the car the boys were driving was discovered to be one originally stolen from Portland Nov. 15 and registered to Arthur E. and Grace E. McIntosh of that city.

It had been abandoned on SE Lane Ave. near SE Parrot St. Officers seeing the two boys driving the car in the early hours of this morning, followed and finally overtook them on the east end of W. Mice'l St. The car was impounded.

The boys were turned over to their parents, and referred to juvenile authorities.

VA Staffers To Attend San Francisco Meet

Two Veterans Hospital personnel are attending conferences at San Francisco today and Friday.

David Radke, chief of the hospital's Supply Service, will attend an area session for VA supply personnel.

Dr. Edward J. Muller, dentist, will attend a conference of Dental Service chiefs. The meetings will attract VA personnel from the western area which includes Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho and Arizona.

Knights Of Columbus Will Hear Dr. Seely

Dr. Hall Seely, who completed a highly-successful big game hunt in India and Africa early this year, will be featured speaker at the Knights of Columbus Council No. 2939 meeting in Roseburg next week.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at St. Joseph's School Nov. 27, with Dr. Seely's talk scheduled to start at 8:30. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Dr. Seely will show slides of his trip, during which he bagged two tigers and a leopard in India and several highly-regarded trophies in Mozambique in Portuguese East Africa.

Band To Play Friday

Southern Douglas County high school bands continue to help celebrate the opening of the area's newest and largest shopping center, the Roseburg Plaza.

The Glidre High School Band will play at the Plaza on Friday at 10:30 a.m. and will be broadcast over a local radio station, sponsor of the band appearances.

Earlier appearances have been made by the Riddle and Douglas High bands. Bands from Sutherland, Myrtle Creek and Roseburg are also scheduled for the near future.

One Driver Injured In Three-Car Crash

Three cars were involved in an accident, which resulted in minor injuries to the driver of one vehicle and citation of another Wednesday at 3:44 p.m., Roseburg City Police report.

The accident occurred on SE Stephens St. immediately north of SE Washington Ave. A car operated by Bobby Lloyd Bruton, 22, Central Point, was being driven out of the Safeway parking lot onto Stephens, just as a second auto, operated by Myrtle Helen Walker, 632 NE Fulton St., was making a right hand turn into the lot.

A truck parked at the scene doing construction work partially blocked the driveway. Bruton waited while Mrs. Walker attempted to drive in. But at that moment a third auto, operated by George Harold Wilson, 3068 NE Follett St., came along and struck the rear of the Walker car, forcing it into the front of the Bruton auto, said police. Wilson was cited for basic rule violation (control).

Mrs. Walker suffered minor injuries.

TAWANKA-TAMI Camp Fire girls and their leader, Mrs. D. J. Bilow, work on their community project of keeping Roseburg beautiful, which is in line with the national movement. The girls plan to clear a strip along each side of the street on the east approach to the Washington Ave. Bridge. The city will later plant shrubs there. The group also plans to care for a flower bed in front of the pro shop at Stewart Park.

More Than 1,200 Camp Fire Girls Enrolled In County Organizations

This is the third in a series of articles on organizations supported by the Central Douglas United Fund.

About the only time there is a "sob story" in connection with the Camp Fire Girls organization is when some little girl, or perhaps her big sister, is left out of a group for the simple reason that there isn't a group to join. And, the way the trained Camp Fire experts look at it, if even one girl is left out when she wanted to belong, it amounts to a minor tragedy.

There would be tears a-plenty in the Central Douglas area if the girls in the Camp Fire program, some 1,200 of them, could not belong to their 112 organized groups. No girl is ever excluded from a group because of race, creed or color and perhaps in no other organization is equality of all so taken for granted. The only discrimination comes when there are not enough trained leaders to go around and new groups can't be formed.

Adult Corps Big

Based on a solid core of volunteer workers (350 adults) the Umpqua Camp Fire Council is sustained in part through its share in the Central Douglas United Fund budget. The girls themselves, through their annual candy sale and other activities, finance their group projects and, unknown to many, pay for one third of the operating expenses of the council. One full-time paid executive oversees the far flung activities of the girls in the 112 groups and one office helper aids in keeping the books in order.

Many knocks on the Camp Fire door could be answered if the budget allowed for even a part-time field worker. In the meantime, those girls in organized groups from age 7 through high school are participating in activities of daily life which encourage companionship, fun and learning, in pursuing the Camp Fire ideal—worship God, seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify work and be happy.

The sums expended in operating the Camp Fire program here and the uncounted hours

Aerial Seeding Bids Called For Five Areas

The Portland office of the Bureau of Land Management has called for bids for aerial seeding by helicopter of 1,156 acres of government-owned land in the Roseburg BLM District.

BLM officials here said the work involves five separate bid items which represent a total of 36 individual areas to be seeded. The seeding is in connection with the BLM's program to rehabilitate cutover lands.

The sites to be seeded are located generally southwest of Drain, east of Yoncalla, up South Myrtle Creek and in the Roek Creek and Wolf Creek drainages. Seeding of Douglas fir trees is specified in the bid call.

Acresages of the individual areas range from four to 103.

contributed by the leaders, sponsors, board members and committee members are transforming by some alchemy of the girls themselves to an enrichment of community life far exceeding the original investment.

The red, white and blue of Camp Fire is in evidence in service to hospitals, veterans, the needy, civic beautification and a host of other projects. Through their group and individual projects, the girls themselves reportedly reap the awareness of their community and the world around them and gaining a sense of achievement and pride in doing something on their own.

Through their extensive camping program, both at resident Camp Tyee and at the summer day camp, the Camp Fire Girls of the Umpqua Council build strong and healthy bodies, learn to live with nature, and most important of all, learn to live with each other. Both of these camping segments are self-sustaining and have grown from a modest beginning to a program serving hundreds of girls through the summer months.

Program Divisions Listed

This year, because of a natural inclination of the girls themselves, there is much inter-group exchange involving Blue Birds, Camp Fire Girls, Junior High groups and Horizon Club Girls, the four divisions of the over-all program. According to Mrs. E. O. Amundson, executive director, this is a healthy sign and reflects the growing maturity of the girls in all age groups.

As to delinquency, which might be expected to crop up when 1,200 young folks are involved, the answer is, "there isn't any." Mrs. Amundson said that you almost never hear of a delinquent Camp Fire Girl.

Footprint In Snow May Be Pivotal In Murder Case

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—A footprint lightly tinging the new white of a feathery pre-dawn snow with a suspicious red stain — was it the killer's? Or another man's?

Were there two men inside the home when Carol Thompson was slugged and knifed? Just a footprint in the snow that fell after midnight. One of many. But it may be pivotal in the murder trial of T. Eugene Thompson, the criminal lawyer from St. Paul.

The case of the husband accused of planning the slaying of his church-worker wife moved today from the tale of the agonized last hours of the dying Carol Thompson to the clean logic of the crime lab.

Mrs. Thompson, 34, a devoted mother of four, choir singer, respected housewife in a fashionable section of St. Paul, staggered out the side door of her 2 1/2-story home last March 6. Just after 9 a.m. she appeared at a neighbor's front door — unrecognizable with the thick blood and battered disfigurement that attended her tragedy — and weakly pleaded: "Help me — I have a knife in my throat."

Covered Footprints

Seven minutes after 9, the first policeman arrived. He soon had cardboard covering footprints of what he deduced was her trail from house to house seeking help — and other footprints.

At 10:35 a.m., Theodore Roy Elzerman arrived. He is a criminalist in charge of the St. Paul police laboratory. The state's 75th witness as its case now coasts downhill to a climax expected late this week or early next. His was a major role in today's testimony.

Elzerman was just getting started when the first-degree murder trial of the 35-year-old little lawyer and former church elder and trustee — he often sang beside his wife in the choir and for a time sang a song of infidelity with a brunette paramour — was recessed for the day. Elzerman gave his credentials, told of his job.

Rising Criminal Lawyer

Thompson, a 5-foot-8 towhead from the turkey-raising country southwest of here, worked his way through law school and was an up-and-coming young criminal attorney until the state charged him with masterminding a plot to do away with his wife. It is presented as motives the fact that he had purchased $1,055,000 in insurance on her life and early last year had begged an alleged mistress, Jackie Olesen, for 11 months to get enough money to support her and his family.

Dick W. C. Anderson, a heavy-drinking sa'seman, was reported to have confessed slaying Carol and is listed as the state's key witness. Nobody has connected Thompson with the crime so far, and there is no report that Anderson ever saw Thompson. The state contends that the payoff to him was through ex-boxer Norman J. Mastrian, a witness testified taking $2,300 from Mastrian to Anderson.

Lions Initiate Seven Members

Seven new members were initiated into the Umpqua Lions Club Wednesday night. The new members are Bob Colley, Roger Giles, Don Hageorn, Jack Horn, Bob Keady, Gene Lincoln and Carlton Lindgren. The Umpqua Lions now have 62 members and form the largest club in the eight-club district.

Mike McLain of the Roseburg Lions Club served as installing officer. In addition to the initiations, Wednesday night's meeting was Lions "Wives Night."

Initiation was also held for the women, with Mrs. Kenneth Glass serving as initiating officer. Initiated were Mrs. Bob (Eileen) Ganzi, Mrs. Ralph (Jo Ann) Sanstede, Mrs. John (Ricki) Cunningham, Mrs. Lester (Vickie) Nelson, Mrs. Don (Shirley) Caskey, Mrs. Dale (Harrietta) Simmons, Mrs. George (Virginia) Foutz, Mrs. Dwight (Evelyn) Boyles, Mrs. Dave (Kathy) Almada, and Mrs. Bill (Edna) Williams.

Making official visitations to the Umpqua Lions were eight members of the Canyonville Lions Club.

The Umpqua Lions announced today they are taking orders for basketball backboards. There are about 10 backboards left, and requests for placement of these backboards can be made by contacting chairman Jerry Roberts.

Local Forester Wins Promotion, Transfer

A transfer and promotion will take Richard D. Harms, a forester in the Roseburg District of the Bureau of Land Management, to the Tillamook Project this week.

Harms began his career with the BLM at Roseburg in August of 1961. He was born in Minnesota and was graduated from the University of Minnesota with a degree in forestry in 1961.

Harms finishes his duties with the local district Friday and will begin his new assignment on Monday. The forester and his wife have resided in Roseburg at 512 W. Center.
