Advice For Unmarried Women Given In Down-To-Earth Book

There are more than 3,100,000 single women over 30 in the United States, and for them, books on the art of happy marriage are not very relevant. So here is a book, "Sense and Sensibility for Single Women," by Janice Glover, which offers a modern, optimistic, practical guide to balanced, useful, satisfying living.

Frederick Cooley. It is filled with the most engrossing adventures and accented by one of the most unusual romances — that of capable, forthright ranchborn Josephine Lewin and tall, taciturn Otis Adams who lives on the neighboring ranch.

Otis' courtship is both furthered and frustrated by a captivating, colorful and thoroughly enjoyable set of neighbors.

Then there is the perfidious little "Professor" who adopts the Lewins, charms them with remarkable readings from the classics and disgraces them publicly by surreptitiously making a potent fruit wine under the guise of teaching Sonny basic chemistry.

The hilarious climax of the "shivaree" tendered Otis and Joe are high sports that will make the reader hope for more of Cooley's books.

Listed as new books at the library this week are:

Can One Enjoy Life
If you are one of the 3,100,000 you can discover how to accept your present status with a workable philosophy and enjoy life to the fullest.

The author, a single woman herself, unfolds the many wonderful opportunities, freedoms and activities awaiting here and now. As she points out, the unmarried woman can live where and how she likes; budget her time and money as she pleases; and travel as she chooses.

No matter what she says, men do inevitably come into the picture, and in the book there is a particularly helpful, sensible discussion of them. From the bashful and elusive bachelor to the whistling wolf, their peculiarities and potentials are perceptively analyzed, so that the reader will have a whole new slant on the male sex and quite possibly be readier and better equipped to find a permanent partner.

Meets Challenge
Bernice Clifton reveals her innermost thoughts and her indomitable spirit in the autobiographical book, "None So Blind."

An active designer - decorator, blinded by a fall, she realizes her former life had come to an end. Fighting against resentment and self-pity, she meets the challenge of everyday life by devising methods of managing routine tasks such as cooking, baking, canning, making her own clothes and washing the walls of her apartment.

She is accepted by the Seeing Eye School at Morristown, N.J., where Karla, her remarkable German Shepherd, leads her into a most rewarding life filled with extraordinary achievements and scores of devoted admirers. Her work now takes her to many cities from coast to coast.

"None So Blind" is a remarkably candid autobiography, written with rare insight and warmth.

Unusual Romance
A wonderfully funny and gently touching book is "The Richest Poor Folks" by Leland

Camas Valley Pulpit Has Supply Pastors

The Rev. Ted Shirakawa, associate pastor of the Roseburg First Methodist Church, preached the sermon at the Camas Valley Methodist Church last Sunday. He was accompanied to Camas Valley by John Enz, son of the Roseburg minister, the Rev. Clark Enz.

Next Sunday, Wayne McMurry, district lay leader who is also superintendent of Coquille schools, will conduct the services.

During the past week Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Dixon moved to Portland where he will be near his doctor. Ill health recently forced the resignation of Dr. Dixon from his pastorate at the church.

More carving hints: Steaks—Run the knife along each side of the bone to separate the meat from it. Cut meat in oblong strips so that each piece contains a portion of the meat nearest the bone.

Leg of Lamb—Thick part of leg is placed uppermost on the platter. Stick fork firmly in leg near knuckle. Start cutting near the center of the joint, slicing at right angles to the bone. When desired number have been sliced, run knife under them parallel to the bone.

Soldier Who Died On Patrol Named

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—The Army has identified a soldier who died on a patrol in subzero weather in the Aleutina Mountains north of here as Pvt. Norman C. Wyatt, 19, of Buffalo, N.Y.

Wyatt was found dead in his sleeping bag Monday morning. Cause of his death still was undetermined, but Col. H. G. Kriger, chief surgeon, U.S. Army Alaska, said after an autopsy that Wyatt did not freeze to death.

The soldier was a member of a 23-man patrol which left Ft. Richardson here Nov. 12 for Independence Nine, about 80 miles north of here, where the patrol began.

Wyatt's body and the other members of the patrol were flown to Ft. Richardson by helicopter late Monday.

Wyatt was stationed with Company A, 4th Battalion, 23rd Infantry.

He is survived by his widow, Arlene, and a two-month-old daughter, and his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Wyatt, all of Buffalo.

Grange Asks Review Of Foreign Aid Funds

PORTLAND (UPI)—The National Grange's Committee on Foreign Affairs has recommended that Congress review its foreign aid appropriations.

The committee took the action on the final day of the Grange's 97th annual convention here. The meeting ran nine days.

The committee urged that economic aid be extended only when there was "reasonable assurance it will be used efficiently" and nations receiving it show a determination to use it for development.

The aid also should only be given when "there is reasonable assurance that it will advance the cause of freedom and assist in halting the spread of communism," the committee said.

The committee also took a stand in favor of the U.S. selling wheat to Russia.

However, it said that the sales should be made for cash or gold and should not be subsidized by the federal government.

College is America's best friend

America has many friends but higher education is one we need most. Here's why.

Colleges supply our leaders. We need leadership to hold our place in science and development . . . business and jobs . . . living standards.

But the cost of leadership has gone up. Colleges are caught in this dilemma. Many need classrooms, laboratories and teachers.

It's time to help our friends . . . our friends will help U.S.

HELP THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE NOW!
