

Local Cauliflower Now On, Along With Carrots Turnips And Rutabagas

By LEROY B. INMAN
Business News Dept. Editor
Douglas County grown cauliflower, which is just about as good as any that can be found, is now being harvested and on the market. Volume isn't too great yet but it is coming on well now from the Kruse farm in Garden Valley and Lawrence and Burks farms in Dillard.

Very good carrots, turnips, rutabagas and some parsnips also are being harvested in the two areas of Douglas County. Aside from some winter squash and apples other produce items are being imported.

The potato market continues steady, all out of storage at this time of year. Some very good yams and sweet potatoes are also coming in from California fields. Salinas has excellent carrots, and Idaho will be starting shortly. The dry onion market remains very strong out of both Idaho and Labish, near Salem.

The lettuce market showed signs of weakening, but should level off shortly. The quality is better, but there is still a wide range both in quality and price. Leaf lettuces, romaine and endive remain good but the market is strong. The same holds for green onions, as supplies dwindle. Radishes remain about the same. Some very good green-skinned avocados now are appearing on the market.

Cabbage out of Portland is an excellent buy for the fall season. Broccoli from the same area is holding up well. Celery market firmed up some, and probably will remain that way until after Thanksgiving, because of heavy demand.

The Western Oregon Livestock Association, of which many Douglas County sheepmen are members, is having its annual convention in Roseburg today and tomorrow. I hope that a lot of you did come today to the committee meetings and help in forming objectives of the association.

But if you didn't, I think there is a real opportunity for you tomorrow to hear some good information on subjects that will certainly be of interest to you. The meetings are being held in the Umpqua Hotel. The program for tomorrow, Friday the 22nd, is one that should be of interest to everyone, livestock people and others alike.

Tax Problem
The main subject for discussion is to be Oregon's Tax Problems and Solutions, and we expect to have some very well known people on the panel. Sen. Walter J. Pearson from Portland, who is vice-chairman of the Taxation Committee will be one of the panel members. George Annala, manager of the Oregon Tax Research Group, also from Portland, will be on the panel with him. The third member of the panel will be Loren J. Smith, who is chairman of the Agricultural Tax Committee from Corvallis.

These three men should be able to do a good job of discussing our tax problems and the probable solutions to them. Moderating the panel will be Dr. Grant Bianch, professor of Agricultural Economics at Oregon State University, who has done a lot of tax work in the past two years. I think it would be well worth your while to come to the meeting and try and hear what these men have to say. This may give you a

Cut In Payments Ires Druggists

PORTLAND (UPI)—Pharmacists were irate Wednesday over reduction in payments for prescriptions filled for welfare recipients, and may have refused more of them.

Jim Mead, president of the Portland Retail Druggists Association, said "this certainly puts the state in a questionable light as a credit risk."

The State Welfare Commission has advised that a surplus of claims last month against the $42,028 monthly drug fund made it necessary to reduce payments to about 65 cents on the dollar.

Mead said most local druggists were continuing to fill prescriptions for persons already on the list, but many refusing to accept new ones.

Pharmacists in Pendleton and Salem were reported to be refusing some welfare prescriptions.

Andrew Juras, state welfare administrator, said the department was not allowed to overspend the $42,028 drug allowance. Claims in October, he said, amounted to $64,293. "Therefore we had to put the proration into effect," he added.

Juras said it had nothing to do with the current state financial crisis.

Ag Policies

Of course, there will be other things on the program which I think will be of interest. Bill Southworth, Chief of the Animal Industries Division of the State Department of Agriculture will be on hand with a word from the State Department of Agriculture in regard to their policies and programs. Dr. J. C. Miller from Oregon State University will be talking about some of the developments in Animal Science, which I think will be of interest to livestock people in the county. Also, we will have short reports from the Oregon Beef Council, the Oregon Cattlemen's Association, and the Oregon Wool-growers.

And of course, I'm sure that many of you folks would be interested in attending the social hour, the banquet and the dance which is going to be held that evening. We also are having luncheons each day with entertainment and would like very much to have any member of the Livestock Association or anyone else who is interested attend the meetings. The meeting will start at 9:30 a.m. in the Umpqua Hotel and follow up with the social hour and banquet at 6 o'clock that evening. A dance will follow the banquet.

Largest Association

We would like to have all of our ranchers attend and meet some of the other livestock people from western Oregon and enjoy themselves. Livestock people here in Douglas County should be proud to know that the Douglas County Livestock Association is the largest county livestock association in the state of Oregon. We also have the largest single membership of the Western Oregon Livestock Association, making up almost one-third of the total membership. I think that it behooves you if you possibly can to come to the meetings and support the organization which you are helping to pay for.

Of interest to you ladies will be the Ladies' Luncheon, Friday at noon. We would like to encourage you to come in and to bring your husband to the meeting so that you can attend the luncheon. A committee of ladies from Douglas County Livestock Association have planned what we think is a real good program for you at noon. The featured speaker will be Mrs. Gladys Workman from the Scottsburg area. I understand that she is an excellent speaker and very entertaining and we would encourage you to come and attend the luncheon.

Why don't you bring your husband along and make a day of it and really help participate in some of the activities of the association besides having a good time?

I will look forward to seeing all of you at the meeting of the Western Oregon Livestock Association, at the Umpqua Hotel, starting at 9:30 Friday.

Winston To Vote On Zoning Law

Residents of the city of Winston will vote Monday, Nov. 25, on an amendment to the zoning ordinance which would make it possible for house trailers to be parked within the city, provided the owners comply with certain standards. Voting is 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

These standards would apply to size and would require the owner to provide for permanent hookup with sewers and power lines. The amendment also would require proper foundation for the trailer, and establishment of porch or patio before installation of the trailer.

Presently, Winston city ordinance prohibits trailers being parked within the city. Winston is the first city in the state contemplating such provision for trailer parking, and the results are being watched closely by other towns.

Aluminum Firm Plans Magnesium Plant

THE DALLES (UPI)—Harvey Aluminum Co. has announced plans to build a primary magnesium plant near Port Angeles, Wash.

Company officials here said the site was selected because of its accessibility to sea water, a source of magnesium supply. The plant would have an annual capacity of 20,000 tons.

Harvey has facilities here at Torrance, Calif., and Adrian, Mich. It is building a mill at Lewisport, Ky., and an aluminum plant at St. Croix in the Virgin Islands.
