Bad Break In Opponents

By OSWALD JACOBY
(Written For NEA)

The classic nine spot false-card was made by Harry Fish, bein of New York some 20 years ago. Or maybe it was 30 years ago. Harry has been playing for a long time.

In any event, it was before the days of scientific bidding and South arrived at six diamonds in two shakes of a bridge player's tale.

Harry won the opening heart with the ace and returned the jack of spades. South won with the ace and laid down the king of diamonds. West played the five and Harry dropped the nine.

South continued with the queen and is still complaining about his tough luck. He is justified even though at least 20 years have gone by. Not because of the bad break in trumps, but rather for the bad break in opponents.

Had Harry simply dropped the six or seven of spades South would have reasoned. "If West started with four trumps to the jack-nine I won't be able to make the hand. If East started with that annoying holding I can simply lead to dummy's ace. West will show out and I will have a proven finesse."

When Harry dropped the nine all this changed. Now South could play his queen and if Harry showed out there would be a proven finesse against West. It looked as if East was more likely to be short in trumps than West and South fell into the trap.
