FARM FOREST FACTS

BY BOB BRADLEY
COUNTY EXTENSION FORESTER

With stores just having completed their inventories, this subject comes to mind quite easily at this time of year. During the winter months a good time to inventory your forest resources. If you're a logger, you're probably working fewer hours or temporarily not working. Even if you're a farmer or rancher, your out-of-door activities are very likely less except for stock feeding, lambing or occasional late winter plowing.

Regardless of whether you're not as busy or busy with different chores, winter is still a good time to take stock of your woodland.

With the leaves off of many of the hardwood trees and much of the low vegetation down, young seedlings are easier to spot. Yes, it's a good time to determine what forest openings are not restocking fast enough through natural means and therefore need planting. With winter's better visibility, because of less leafy obstruction, it's also a good time to run boundary lines, build or mend fences, and even to cruise timber.

So, take this opportunity to note the condition of your forest lands. And, while you're making this reconnaissance, take along a shovel, saw and axe to protect and improve your woods roads. A diversion ditch here and there will prevent winter rains from digging deep gullies in your roads. A fallen tree bucked up here and there or encroaching brush cut out will make your roads more passable when you need them—perhaps to reach a fire quickly next summer.

Since time spent is something that can never be recovered, why not make full use of it, even during the off season of the year.

Winston Couple Makes Trip For Holiday With Relatives

By PHEBE MCGUIRE
Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Owen of Winston drove to Vancouver, Wash., to spend the holidays at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Alsteen. They were joined by two other daughters, Mrs. Norman Rigney and Mrs. Kenneth Anderson and their families, from Richfield, Wash., and Rhineland, Wis., respectively. Also joining the family were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rigney of Eagle River, Wis., parents of Norman Rigney. The Owens returned to their home in Winston on Thursday. On New Year's Eve the Anderson and Rigney families with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rigney arrived to spend the holiday with the Owens. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left Thursday to return to their home going by way of Prineville to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lau and family, former residents of Winston. They will also stop over in Cheyenne, Wyo., to visit Mrs. Anderson's brother, Merle Owen and family. Mr. and Mrs. Rigney and family and his parents have also returned to their homes.
