Last Saturday the Laureans began their meeting with a short parliamentary drill. Following this was a reading, "The Woman and the Mouse," by J. E. Jones. The debate was on the question of a property qualification for the exercise of the municipal franchise. Though the affirmative tried hard to convince the judges that such a change was desirable, they could not withstand the furious attacks made on their arguments by Zimmerman, '12, and the decision went unanimously in favor of the negative.

Coach Buchen was present, and was called upon for a speech. He said in part: "We are now sure of the debate with Utah, and it is time to get down and do some good consistent bucking. The first requisite toward making the team is good hard work."

The society debates are important, it should be every freshman's ambition to represent his society in the inter-society freshman debate. Each of these debates should aim at developing inter-state debaters; we want to make the inter-state debate the big debate of the year, and a place on the team the goal of every debater's ambition.

"I can teach you the theory of debating until I am blue, but you can't debate unless you practice. Unless you fellows do good work here, you can't beat Utah, Idaho and Washington. This is the place where inter-state debaters are made."

Coach Buchem offered to help the members in the preparation of society debate, an offer which was accepted with thanks.

Answer to roll call with a short story.

Harold Rounds entertained the Philologists last Saturday evening with an account of Alaska. Ferdinand Struck then spoke on proposed amendments to the constitution of the Philo Society. The last part of the meeting was taken up in parliamentary practice.

The United States Board of Census announce that in the selection of the workers on the 1910 census, college students will be given the preference, especially those who have taken courses in economics. The board is considering recommending to the colleges and universities that leave of absence be granted those who wish to do that work when the census is taken next year.

The Weekly Kaimin, the student's newspaper of the University of Montana, has been increased from a four to a five column paper.
