IDAHO OBJECTS TO GRADUATE DEBATERS

The Debate Council of the University of Idaho has written to the Universities of Washington and Oregon, proposing to amend the triangular league contract so as to more thoroughly eliminate post graduate students from participation in the interstate debates.

The Oregon committee will meet tomorrow and decide what action to take. The former rule was intended to keep out graduates but was hardly explicit enough as the University of Idaho thinks. The new rule would prevent them from taking part if they had enough credits for graduation, whether they had taken a degree or not, whereas the old one only kept out those who had actually taken the degree.

In the letter that Manager Steel received the Idaho authorities point out that Oregon cannot suffer from the proposed action. Washington alone will be affected, students there often going into the law department without taking a degree so as to continue debate work. From this it would seem that some heated objections were to be expected from last year's champions.

The new rule suggested reads as follows:

"Each team shall consist of three members who shall be bona fide undergraduates, and no one of whom shall have earned more than the number of credits or hours of work in any required department of the university, or other department or other universities whatever, that would be accepted for a bachelor's degree."

FRESHMAN CAPS ARE ORDERED AT IDAHO

University of Idaho, December 14.—At a joint meeting of seniors and graduates, on Tuesday afternoon, December 7th, the following rules were unanimously adopted, and steps will be taken toward their immediate enforcement.

1. All male students of the University are required to lift their hats to the president of the institution, men in uniform to salute.

2. No freshman will wear any headgear on the campus except that one designated by the junior and senior classes, except when in uniform. The same style of headgear to be worn by each freshman class. No derby hats will be worn on any occasion by the freshmen.

3. No derby hats will be worn after Friday, December 10, 1909.

The caps, representing the University colors, silver and gold, and also the freshman green, have been decided upon and ordered and the class will be notified when they arrive. The body of the cap is green, with a yellow button on top and a white "F" on the front of it.

The freshmen in mass meeting decided that they would wear the caps without making trouble but also decided to appeal to the president regarding the order not to wear derbies.

RACE TOMORROW INSTEAD OF FRIDAY

The annual interclass cross-country run scheduled for Friday afternoon, will occur tomorrow afternoon instead. So many of the runners wanted to go home Friday that the change was made.

The teams will lineup as previously announced. The juniors have only two runners but will be conceded the three last places. Present indications seem to point to a hard race between Riddell, last year's winner and Garrabrandt, one of last year's best freshmen and who is admitted to be in the best condition from consistent training.

The race will start promptly at four o'clock on Kincaid Field. The men will go once around the track, then out on the Alder street road to the cemetery, and then back and once around the track.
