

CONTEST WILL BEGIN FOR DOUGHNUT CUP

TEN CLUBS AND FRATERNITIES TO COMPETE FOR TROPHY

Schedule Includes Fifteen Games—Playing to be Commenced During Next Week.

Ten clubs and fraternities will be represented in the Inter-Club Baseball League which is to compete again for the famous "Doughnut Cup" this spring. The schedule will be arranged at once and the committee aims to have everything in readiness for the first game of the series to be played next week.

The election of captains and managers of the teams has been made in the majority of the clubs already. L. H. Gregory, of the committee states that the written applications from the various clubs must be filed with the committee not later than Monday, so that steps may be taken at once to draw up a schedule and arrange for the first game. The two other members of the committee are Cal Sweek and Dean Goodman.

Last year's schedule was somewhat defective, since it made it impossible for any team losing in its first game, to stand a show in the finals. This year a percentage system was suggested, but this plan will be out of the question. It would mean more games than could be played off this spring with as many clubs represented in the league as there are. The committee has finally compromised on a plan whereby each team shall play two preliminary games.

A percentage of 500 in the preliminaries will entitle a team to play in the semi-finals. Here the two winning teams will be selected and the series will close with a deciding game between them. This plan assures every team in the league of playing two games, and the two strongest teams will play four games in the series.

Fifteen games in all will be played. The preliminaries and semi-finals will be arranged for Wednesday afternoons and Saturday mornings of each week, and an effort will be made to date the final contest for some time during the Junior Week-End. An announcement of the schedule will be published in the Emerald next week.

The history of the Doughnut Cup, and the conditions under which it is given have been highly interesting. It was offered last year by the Midnight Doughnut, the terms being that club or fraternity must win it two years in succession in order to hold it permanently. Last year it was won by the Kappa Sigma fraternity after an exciting game against the Dorm Club in which the score was 5 to 4. Great interest was aroused among all members of the Student Body and the games played in the Doughnut League were always enormously attended. This year, with two new clubs in the league and with the present holders of the cup determined to keep it against all comers the series bids fair to be even more exciting.

The Doughnut League aims to bring out purely amateur baseball and for that reason, while no man on the regular

PRESIDENT CAMPBELL GIVES FINE ADDRESS

The first of the series of "Life Work Meetings," for college men, was held in Dr. Schmidt's room in Deady Hall, last night, the subject of the address being "The Choosing of a Vocation." President P. L. Campbell, delivered this address, speaking in the place of Senator R. A. Booth who was scheduled to appear at the meeting but was unable to be present.

President Campbell's address was delivered in his usual earnest and attractive style and was most heartily appreciated by all who had the opportunity of hearing it. His speech dealt mainly with the question of education preparatory to choosing a vocation. He urged young men not to be over hasty to make a choice of a calling early in life, but rather to acquire first a broad and liberal education as a basis upon which to build. If one has not, in the earlier period of his college career, any marked talent or tendency toward some particular line of work, he declared that the broadening influences of a liberal education, coupled with the environments in which he placed himself would conspire to assist him in making a successful choice.

The meeting was well attended, about eighty men being present. The second address of the series, on "The Call of the Ministry," will be delivered in Deady Hall on Friday night, March 18th, by President Crooks, of Albany College.

CO-ED TEAM DEBATES AS WELL AS MEN

SHOWING MADE IN TRY-OUT WEDNESDAY SURPRISE TO JUDGES

Considering the difference in the time for preparation of their debates, the judges declare that in the tryout for the co-ed team held in Villard Hall, Wednesday night, the women of the University of Oregon made as good a showing as did the men in their debating tryout which was held earlier in the year.

The team selected to represent the University of Oregon in co-ed debate against the University of Washington is regarded as an extremely strong and well-balanced team, and great success is predicted for it in the coming debate. Wednesday's tryout was the last of a series of three, in which nine of the women of the University were originally entered.

Those who took part in the final tryout were: Miss Fay Clarke and Miss Hazel McKowan, on the affirmative, and Misses Corine Degermark, Lilah Clarke, Birdie Wise, and Willetta Wright on the negative. The subject for debate, which will be taken up also in the contest against Washington, was in regard to the establishment of a postal savings bank. Each speaker was given the privilege of making a five minute constructive argument and a three minute speech in rebuttal.

Those who were finally selected upon the team which will go against Washington, were Miss Fay Clarke, '12; Miss Birdie Wise, '12; and Miss Corine Degermark, '12.

OREGON LOSES GAME BY A SINGLE POINT

PLAYS BIG RINGS AROUND AGRICS DURING LAST HALF OF GAME

Final Score, 21 to 20—Return Game to be Played in Corvallis Tonight.

Owing principally to the fact that the Oregon players didn't awaken to a realization that they were playing a game of basketball until the first half was nearly over, Oregon lost to O. A. C. last Wednesday night, in the fastest, closest, most fiercely fought game of basketball ever played in the history of the two institutions.

Both teams were rough. Brook, of O. A. C., who was disqualified for holding, and Reed, who received a slight injury, were taken out of the game. Captain Stine of the Oregon team received a fractured nose as the result of a purely accidental collision with Horton of O. A. C.

During the first half the Oregon team seemed to be suffering from stage fright and didn't get into the game. After the first basket of the game, which was made by Walker, Oregon didn't score again during the first half. At this stage of the game the Agrics excelled both in team work and in shooting baskets. The score at the end of the first half stood ten to three in favor of Corvallis.

The second half was a complete reversal of the first; Oregon outclassed Corvallis at every phase of the game, scoring seventeen points against eleven. Jamison, Elliott and Stine threw baskets in quick succession, making the score twelve to nine. The crowd, which at the end of the first half had given up hope for a victory and began grimly wondering how big the final score would be, went wild and until the end of the game the noise was terrific. The Oregon team was at last playing the ball it was capable of. With her men passing and fighting like demons, they slowly gained until the final whistle blew, just as victory seemed in their grasp.

For Corvallis Horton played the star game, while for Oregon Jamison, Walker and Elliott did the best work.

Walter Winslow, of Salem, refereed the game.

Following is the lineup and a summary of the points made:

Player	Position	Goals	Field F. L.
Reed	F.	3
Cooper	F.

Elliott	G.	2

Burdeck and Evenden, of O. A. C., were substituted for Reed and Brooks, when the latter were taken out of the game.

SARGENT WILL SPEAK ON HIGHER CRITICISM

Dr. A. H. Sargent's lecture on "The Bible from a Student's Point of View," which will be repeated, in part, during his next address before the Free Religion Society in Deady Hall, Tuesday night, March 15, contains some valuable and interesting information on the subject of the higher criticism of the Bible.

Mr. Sargent says that in the study of the Bible in its relation to other books, the student must take into consideration the fact that it is not the only sacred book in existence; that many of its truths are shared by the sacred books of the Chinese, the Hindoos, the Mohammedans and others. "No one book," he says, "has a monopoly upon the whole sum of religious truth." The Bible however represents the literature of a race (the Hebrews) which has perhaps gained a broader and more thorough grasp of religious truth than any contemporary races.

The meeting Tuesday night will begin promptly at 7 o'clock and will close at eight o'clock sharp. All who are interested in the subject are invited to attend.

FIRST PLACE IS NOT FOR OREGON

ROUNDS LOSES INTERCOLLEGIATE CONTEST BY NARROW MARGIN

Only Two Points Behind Winner in Averaging Percentages—Judges Favor Spread Eagle.

Salem, March 12—Oregon failed to land first prize in the Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest last night by the narrowest possible margin. Edwin F. McKee, of McMinnville College, with an oration entitled "The Anglo Saxon," tied with Rounds at sixteen points on summationo frank and won 89.9 to 87.7 on averaging percentages.

Rounds Gets Most First Places

As last year, Oregon's representative received more first places than any other man, once more he made a profound—probably the most profound effect on the audience, and again the adverse marking of one or two judges snatched from him the coveted laurels. In composition he received one first place and two fifth places, a total of eleven points. In delivery he received two firsts and a third, making five more, or a grand total of sixteen. President Wilson, of the Portland Academy, who awarded him first place in composition, said that he referred the paper to Prof. B. A. Thaxter, a graduate of Yale, who pronounced Round's oration by far the best.

Winner Gets Two Firsts

The winning orator received one first, one sixth, and one second, a total of nine points, in composition. This gave him an advantage of two points over Rounds. In delivery he received one second, one fourth, and one first, two more than Rounds had in delivery. Therefore, the two men were even and it was necessary to average percentages. The judges who had given McKee first place had spread their marks wide, while those who gave Rounds first had bunched theirs. Accordingly, Rounds' marks averaged less than McKee's.

Of the other contestants and the contest itself, there is little to say. W. E. Gwynn, of Pacific University, who received third place, was six points behind the other two and none of the others were in the race at all. They ranked as follows: Albany College, fourth; O. A. C. fifth; Pacific College, sixth; and Willamette University, seventh.

The Contest

The spirit before and during the contest did not run as high as usual, though there was some lively rivalry between the "midgets." Miss Georgia Starr, with a violin solo, the Ladies' Glee Club and the Men's Glee Club, of Willamette University, added to the program by well rendered selections that were heartily encored.

The first orator was C. Despain, of O. A. C. His subject was "A Duty to Civilization." He made a strong plea for the peace movement, contending that it is America's duty to lead it.

The second speaker was Miss Ruth Rees, of Willamette University, on the subject, "Woman's Place in Social and Political Life." She was followed by Miss Florence Rees, of Pacific College,
