

SIGMA NUS TAKE FIRST GAME IN FRAT LEAGUE

WIN FROM BEAVERS BY SCORE OF FOURTEEN TO FOUR

Game Full of Fun and Sensation Witnessed by Big Crowd and Attracts Much Attention.

In a game filled with more or less sensational baseball, Tuesday afternoon, the Sigma Nu pennant chasers of the Doughnut League, smothered the Beaver colony by the score of 14 to 4. Bob Kellogg, the big Sigma Nu twirler, scattered hits, and struck out eleven batsmen. For the Beavers, Dolly Gray pitched a steady up hill game, and with more consistent support the result of the game would have been questionable.

By timely hitting coupled with unfortunate "bungles" on the part of the opposing team, the Sigma Nu sluggers piled up six runs in the first inning and five in the eighth.

Aside from these two innings the game was well played. The batting and base running of Huston was a feature. In the eighth inning Ersel Kay drove a long fly into center field, and completed the circuit of the bases for the only home run of the game. For the Beavers Shattuck and Henkle played the best ball.

The official score follows:

PROF. ALDERMAN STARTS NEW BOOST MOVEMENT

A unique and far reaching movement, consisting of student committees to do personal work in every county in the Alderman, of the Education Department. Plans were outlined yesterday, and President Williams of the Associated Students, has appointed committee chairmen to meet for organization of their work tomorrow at four o'clock in Dedy Hall.

One committee chairman from each county will have charge of several student workers—one or more from each high school—whose business it will be to keep in touch with the high school students and especially the graduating class. The aim is to keep the preparatory schools interested in carrying on their education, in the State University, and if possible to induce them to enroll here next year.

Professor Alderman has become widely acquainted with the work of the high schools and his experience has convinced him of the need and value of such a system, not only as an aid to the growth of the University but as a stimulating influence among high school students.

ANNUAL INDOOR MEET SET FOR NEXT WEEK

NEW GYMNASIUM TRACK TO BE USED FOR FIRST TIME

Sufficient apparatus has been installed in the new gymnasium to allow the holding of the annual, inter-class, indoor meet, which Bill Hayward announces will be pulled off on April 5. All the different weights from the 115 pound pygmies to giants of Fat Bailey's class will be matched in wrestling bouts. All the dashes from the 25 yard to the 1000 yard run will be pulled off together with the high jump, pole vault and shot put. For a preliminary Hayward has matched Fat Bailey 13 against Slim Bailey '12. This bout will not only decide the championship between slim and fat men but will be enriched by the deadly class hatred involved. In the 115 pound class Washburne will wrestle.

Kelly in the 125 pound class will represent the Sophomores against Houston '12, and in the 145 pound class Huggins '12 will meet Murphy '13. Olson and Smith will contend for the honors in the 158 pound class. Brick Michael and Bill Main will wrestle for the championship of the Sophomore's class, while Ben Grout and Jim Neill will be matched for the championship of the college and a diamond belt. Lee Sam and Hong Quing will wrestle for the championship of China.

Invitations are out for two receptions this week, one at the Chi Omega house on Saturday evening, the other at the Boys' Dormitory on Friday.

A brewery where real beer will be manufactured is to be installed on the agricultural farm at the University of Minnesota.

STUDENTS ARE PLEASED WITH DR. HUGH BLACK

GOOD ADVICE GIVEN IN ASSEMBLY ADDRESS THIS MORNING

"What to Read and How to Read It" Explained by Noted Eastern Lecturer.

On the subject, "What to Read and How to Read It," Dr. Hugh Black, the noted author and lecturer, this morning delivered one of the best and most appreciated speeches presented at Assembly this year. His talk was full of pithy sayings, forceful summaries and good advice.

"Reading," said the speaker, "is one of the neglected arts. Many a student who has learned the hard and difficult art of studying has not learned the easy art of reading." He quoted Lamb's saying, "There are books and books that are not books," and included among those which are "not books" dictionaries, text books and "block headed encyclopedias."

"Proof," he said, "that most students do not learn how to read is found in the fact that alumni as well as students have no time to read."

"The great problem," continued the speaker, "is where to begin and where to end. And the first thing to learn in solving this problem is what not to read. The first principle of selection is the principle of rejection. You must learn to overcome the temptation to keep up with the latest novels. The art of omission is the great art of life. You must make up your mind that you are not required to read the six best sellers."

In speaking of newspapers, Dr. Black said that they should be read to a certain extent. "History," he asserted, "is making in our own time as well as in the past." To read the papers through from beginning to end, however, is, in his opinion, no more real economy than to save the strings from our grocers. "Literature is only the application of life," he said, "and it takes a great deal of life to make a little literature."

He took, as the nucleus of his advice, on the selection of books, the three rules of Emerson: (1) "Read only the old books," (2) "Read only famous books," (3) "Read what you like." In explanation of the first rule he said: "This world has a remarkable way of burying the dead—of disposing of its rubbish and sifting out its jewels. Where are last year's six best sellers? If a book is old and still lives there is something in it. Still to pay no attention to present art is to kill art."

On the second rule, he said, we must have an attitude of passive reception to get the most from an author. "It is," he says, "a matter of absorbing the atmosphere of a book." To reflect upon what we read, to practice the art of attention, to look beneath the surface of a book, and to get in touch with the author and follow him to the end were some of the things strongly urged in this connection.

KAPPA SIGMA FORMAL IS BEST ON RECORD

The Kappa Sigma Fraternity gave their annual dancing party in the new gymnasium Saturday evening, March 26th. Approximately sixty couples composed of friends and members of the fraternity were present and thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

As a result of systematic polishing and preparation the new floor was in the best condition it has yet attained. Exceptionally fine music was furnished by Hendershott's orchestra. During the evening refreshments and a delicate luncheon were served. The function Saturday night was one of the most successful and thoroughly enjoyed, ever given by the fraternity.

Among the out of town guests were Craig McMicken, Earl Cobb, Neal Kendall, Ernest Houck, Edwin Frazier, Jack Latourette and Dick Hathaway, all of Portland and Cady Roberts of Salem, Mrs. J. V. Beach and Mrs. Wm. D. Fenton, of Portland, Mrs. H. A. Nelson, of Albany, Mrs. L. Z. Clarke and Mrs. I. M. Glen of Eugene, acted as patronesses.

GAME SATURDAY WAS A PITCHER'S BATTLE

Henkle Outclasses the Great Borleske In First Game of Year

Saturday's baseball game between Whitman and Oregon, which ended in a score of four to one in Oregon's favor, was a pitcher's battle in which Henkle, Oregon's southpaw, had all the best of it. All through the game he had the northerners at his mercy, fanning six men and only allowing four scattered hits.

Whitman's one score, in the seventh, inning, was made possible by errors on the part of Oregon's infielders, who for a few moments were up in the air. Oregon's four runs were made in the eighth as a result of four hits, a pass and a sacrifice. Ben Chandler and Van Marter both accepted hard chances which they handled in big league fashion, Van Marter making a running catch of a long high fly over the first base line that brought the crowd to its feet.

TRACK MEN MUST GET DOWN TO HARD WORK

Because of the unsatisfactory showing made by some of the track athletes in the inter-class meet last Saturday, Trainer Bil Hayward has declared strict training from now on. Some time within the next ten days the Oregon team will participate in a meet which will be held in the new armory at O. A. C. On April 16th twelve or fourteen men will be sent to Portland to take part in the Columbia Indoor Meet. The number of men who will represent Oregon on the California trip has been cut down to twelve.

ERRORLESS GAME WON FROM WHITMAN TEAM

FINE SUPPORT ENABLES HENKLE TO SHUT OUT MISSIONARIES

Lucky Run in Seventh Inning Keeps Locals in Lead and Whitman in Cellar.

With Henkle again in the box, supported by outfielders, who vied with one another in robbing the Missionaries of well deserved hits, and by infielders who played in perfect form, Oregon again outclassed Whitman by the slender score of 1-0 Monday afternoon.

The game was full of sensational features; several times the visitors seemed on the verge of scoring, but always with the whole team forming a perfect phalanx behind him, Oregon's big southpaw pulled himself together and pitched his way out of the hole. The Whitman stickers connected with Henkle's curves for nine hits but were unable to meet them when a hit meant a win. Not an error was recorded against the Oregon fielders and Clarke, and Jamieson gathered in several difficult chances.

Story of the Game

Belt for Whitman was the first man to bat. He drove a long fly to center field which Clarke caught. Borleske drove a grounder to pitcher and was out at first. Stuth struck out. Muirland batted first for Oregon and drove a high fly right into Cox's hands. McKenzie followed and was out on an infield fly which Dunbar gathered in. Dobie fanned.

On the second inning, Johnson and Shubert both hit fast grounders to Henkel and were out at first. Cox knocked a high foul against the right field fence which Jamieson caught out. Chandler reached first on first baseman's error, stole second and was advanced by Van Marter's grounder to third base. Van Marter was thrown out at first. Jamieson fanned.

The third inning opened with Feltham at the bat who hit a grounder to Henkle and was out at first. Clarke caught Perring's fly and Dunbar retired by the Henkle to Jamieson route. For Oregon, Gabrielson fanned; Henkle and Newland both drove grounders to pitcher and were out at first.

On the fourth inning Whitman's batters began to find Henkle's curves. Belt and Borleske each hit safely but were left on bases when Stuth, Johnson, and Shubert went out on infield flies. McKenzie drove a grounder to Belt which he fielded to first in plenty of time. Dobie struck out, Clarke hit safely and stole second. Chandler drew a pass, but Van Marter went out at first, ending the chapter.

In the fifth inning, Cox gave Henkle a chance at a hard grounder and was out at first. Felthouse drove a hot one to Newland, but failed to reach first. Perring hit safely and died on first when Dunbar was out by the Henkle to Jamieson route. For Oregon, Jamieson and Gabrielson fanned. Henkle lined a drive which second base was unable to field, reached second on Stuth's error which also allowed Newland to reach
