

RESOLUTION PASSES WITHOUT OPPOSITION

PRESENT ATHLETIC SYSTEM WILL NOT SUFFER BY ACTION

That intercollegiate athletics tend too much toward specialization and not enough to a general physical development of the students at large, is the trend of the resolution passed at the last faculty meeting, or in the words of Professor Young's original resolution "They take up the exuberant physical spontaneity of the physically strong but turn some toward athletic professionalism."

This is the first attempt in the West to make college athletics intra-collegiate instead of Harvard, instituted a similar movement two years ago, and it has since been adopted by several Eastern Universities.

Good and Bad Features

The resolution enumerates the good and bad features of intercollegiate athletics. First, they make for unity. Second, they measure physical prowess. Third, they promote good will. And fourth, they supply needed exercise. These are ideal as purposes, but in practice their very efficiency, in the first, is baneful; they lead to physical apothecia, they cause antagonism instead of good will, and they tend to encourage athletic professionalism.

Against the possible good features, the following indictments are enumerated: First, facilities and instructors being limited, the many are neglected at the expense of the few who least need them. Second, the spirit of combat replaces the spirit of play. Third, the prestige of the University in athletics has a demoralizing influence on the high schools and engenders a false impression among the people. Fourth, the life of the University is dominated by athletics to the detriment of higher ideals.

The resolution concludes with the statement that "Release from these conditions can be secured only, (a) by development of a rational system of recreation within the University, the provision of adequate facilities therefor, and the recognition of the higher purposes to be served; (b) through an appeal to the other institutions in the Pacific Northwest to co-operate in this movement of reform."

To this end, President Campbell will appoint five of the faculty to begin correspondence immediately with the other Colleges in the Northwest Conference and it is purposed to bring the matter up before the annual meeting of the Conference at the beginning of the next school year.

When the purpose of this movement is understood by the people of the state, it is expected that it will alleviate the opposition evidenced in former years to appropriations for the State University. Oregon owns thirty-four acres east of the cemetery. On this land it is the intention to establish race courses, baseball diamonds and tennis courts. Kincaid field will also be moved to this new location when the present location is needed for college buildings.

It is the opinion of President Campbell that present intercollegiate athletics do not tend too much toward specialization, but there is a tendency which if allowed to grow unchecked might as-

The cuts for this year's Oregona have been received, and the proof sheets indicate that they are of the highest class ever put between the covers of a college annual.

The most striking are the title page, in color, and the beautiful collection of campus scenes—something absolutely new. Full page cartoons, typifying the classes and well known college fixtures, from the pen of Fritz Dean, are expected also to strike a popular vein in the students' fun indicator.

The pictures of the seniors will be featured, six on a page, in a prominent part of the book, with a complete summary and brief obituary of each. This part, because of its clever insight into the typical characteristics of the seniors, will be among the most readable features.

The cover of this year's book will be cloth, with leather back and corners. The cuts were made by the Bureau of Engraving at Minneapolis, and the printing will be done by the Portland Printing House, of Portland.

NO NEW CANDIDATES AMONG OFFICE SEEKERS

ELECTION DAY CHANGED FROM WEDNESDAY TO TUESDAY

Political fever has reached its zenith the past few days, and the various candidates are all ready for next Tuesday, the date to which the executive committee has changed the annual election instead of Wednesday as provided in the Constitution.

Up to the present time no new candidates have been put forward, the only change being that Carl Gabrielson has withdrawn from the race for athletic council. There is little betting on the election, and most of the work is going on quietly. No posters or handbills have as yet been circulated.

The big contest, of course, is for President, and the three candidates seem to be running neck and neck.

The two candidates for secretary are also making a pretty race, with honors practically even.

The following is a full list of the candidates as they will appear on the ballot Tuesday:

- For President of Associated Students—

 1. Calvin Sweek.
 2. Cecil J. Espy.
 3. Percy M. Collier.

- For Vice President Associated Students

STUDENTS MAJORING IN HISTORY ENTERTAINED

Professor and Mrs. Schafer and Professor and Mrs. Clark gave a party at the home of the former on Friday evening in honor of the students who major in history. The evening was a thoroughly enjoyable one. Two interesting history contests were given. Harry Cash won the first contest, and J. E. Luckey triumphed over his competitors in the second. Several musical selections were given during the evening, which were especially appreciated. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Schafer and Mrs. Clark, assisted by Ethel Johnson and Frances Young.

Elect a Business Man and Make Money

Cecil Jefferson Espy, the "Prophet of Oysterville," has had four years practical experience in administrative affairs. Is a student of present day questions and has successfully managed every thing he has been connected with. Motto: "The president should be a business man."

The sophomore class will hold an important meeting next Friday at four o'clock in Professor Schmid's room. Treasurer Walls will ask for an assessment to cover the present deficiency in the treasury.

FAILING AND BEEKMAN TRYOUT UNNECESSARY

The withdrawal of one contestant and the disqualification of another made the preliminary tryout for the Failing and Beekman prizes unnecessary. There were but eight at first and the six which were left, being the required number, did not expound their "spread eagle."

Essie E. Sechrist was the one who declined to expatiate before the judges and Earl A. Nott was the victim of circumstances and an adverse ruling. He had not been a student of Oregon during his junior year and entered late at the beginning of this year when the rules governing the contest were no longer posted on the board, and in accordance with the catalogue which says "any member of the Senior class," he filed his subject and prepared his oration. When the contestants were assembled to give their orations it was suddenly discovered that Mr. Nott was ineligible to compete.

President Needs Preacher If He Dies

George Mohammed White, the "Deacon of Dillbury Cross," is the quietest man in college. Noted for great patience, the essential quality in a vice-president. Motto: "The vice-president should wait for the president to die." (Paid Advertisement.)

Olgä Hallingby, of Portland, is visiting at the Kloshe Tillacum house.

OREGON MEETS U. OF W. TEAM HERE NEXT WEEK

Next Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons the strong University of Washington baseball team will meet the Oregon nine in two games at Midway Park.

As a result of the recent defeat administered to the Oregon team, the Washington club is confident of taking both games at Eugene. Since the game at Seattle the Oregon team has been materially strengthened, and Coach Kelly expects to spring a surprise on the Washingtonians. Manager Jamison wants every student out to support Oregon against the formidable Washington club.

TRYOUTS KEEP VARSITY TENNIS COURTS BUSY

Drawings For Handicap Tournament In Singles Made Last Night

The concrete tennis court has been doing double time since the return of good weather, with Varsity tryouts, handicap tournaments in singles and doubles and endless practice games.

The Varsity tryout matches played off up to this morning resulted as follows: Bond won from Collins, 6 to 0, 6 to 1; Shattuck from Moores 6 to 3, 6 to 3; Robison from Baer 6 to 2, 6 to 2; Gray from Jamison 6 to 5, 6 to 3; Rothschild from Wells 6 to 2, 6 to 4.

The drawings for the handicap tournament in singles were made last night. The men classed to play in the preliminaries were matched as follows:

Gregory and Shattuck, Getz and Gray, Moores and Welch, Collins and Robison, Wells and Farris, Otten and Moore, Stewart and Luckey, B. Eastham and Frazier, Taylor and Hodge, Fowler and Briedwell, Parks and Davidson, Jamison and Powell.

Those who are handicapped to play the first round without preliminaries are: Shangle with Prescott, C. Moore with Rothschild, P. Briedwell with Bates, Brown with Huston, Terry with Thomas, Bond with Newland, G. Eastham with Dunlap, Baer with Stine, Smith with Gabrielson, Waite with Strang.

The drawings for the doubles have not yet been made, so there is still time to sign up for them.

Listen to Tramp of Cow Hide Boots

Calvin Lawrence Sweek was raised in the Blue Mountains of Grant County, where steam engines, automobiles and flying machines are still unknown. He now handles the feathered quill as he used to handle the bucking broncho, and is a life-long friend of the common people. Motto: "Democracy."
