

SOCIETY.

This is Junior Week End, and everyone is looking forward to the social gaiety of the University life with keen anticipation. Guests from all parts of the state are here to take part in the festivities. Many students from the preparatory schools are getting their first taste of college life.

What with the Dramatic Club play and the circus on Thursday evening, the dinner at the boys' dormitory at noon on Friday, the dual track meet in the afternoon, the Junior orations in the evening, the two baseball games today, and the prom tonight, time does not drag to say the least.

Then there are various picnics and out of door luncheons up the race for the canoes are all doing double duty these days.

The crowning event of the week end is the prom tonight at the new gymnasium. As this is the only class dance of the year which is not exclusively for students and alumni, many out of town friends have been invited. Everyone anticipates a delightful time, as the Junior class has spared no pains in preparation. The floor will be better than heretofore, and the regular dance orchestra has been secured.

The lower hall will be decorated with Indian blankets and cushions, while cosy corners are to be found in inconspicuous places.

The roof porch of the gymnasium will be converted into a garden, bright with Japanese lanterns. Here refreshments will be served. As this is the social event of the season many beautiful dresses will be worn.

The patronesses are: Mrs. P. L. Campbell, Mrs. F. W. Benson, of Salem, Mrs. G. F. White, of Portland, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, of Roseburg, Mrs. J. J. V. Beach, of Portland, Mrs. R. F. Bean, of Portland, and Mrs. S. H. Friendly, of Eugene.

The chairmen of the executive committees for the prom, under Calvin Sweek, are: Floor committee, George White; decoration committee, Sam Davidson; music, Tom Burke; programme, Fritz Dean; refreshments, Pearl Wilbur.

That University students are not too old for the joys of a circus, was shown by the interest taken in the parade and the attendance of college people at the performances Thursday. If it had not been for the counter attractions, the University would have been well represented at the evening show.

Friday evening the Chi Omegas and their guests enjoyed their supper behind Skinner's butte. A huge bonfire was built and a pleasant time was spent telling stories and singing.

The Gamma Delta Gammas entertained informally at luncheon this noon in honor of their guests. The color scheme throughout the house was yellow, California poppies and yellow roses being used effectively. Luncheon was served at small tables by the freshmen of the house. The guests were Mrs. G. F. White, Mrs. G. E. Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. Catter, Clair Oaks, Ellice Shearer, Emma Reuter, Elsa Koerber, Grace Richardson, Beatrice Lilly, Charlotte Banfield, Nellie Banfield, and LeConic Jamison.

Thursday night after the Dramatic Club play, the guests at the Kloshe Tillacum house were entertained at an informal supper.

There have been numerous comet parties this week at the various fraternity and sorority houses. Much sleep has been lost and not much comet has been seen.

One of the delightful features of the week end festivities of the Lambda Rho girls was a picnic on the millrace Saturday.

Miss Emma Belat entertained Wednesday evening in honor of her sister, Miss Margaret Belat.

After the Junior week the members of the Kappa Sigma fraternity delightfully entertained their guests and partners with a supper at the fraternity house.

The Chi Omegas entertained their week end guests Thursday night with a Line Party to see the Professor's Love Story.
