Our Advertisers

No college paper ever received more loyal and generous support than the Eugene merchants accord the Emerald.

Although it was necessary to raise rates, the business men responded cheerfully and promptly to requests for advertising. They came through splendidly, and one day's soliciting filled the advertising columns. Only a few less important concerns refused Manager Dobie, and many asked for more space than could be allotted them. The business houses thus showed in a substantial way their faith and interest in the college and its enterprises.

The students should realize that it is this support that makes possible the college paper, for without advertising the Emerald could not hope to exist, and should these advertisers withdraw, the Emerald would die quietly and painlessly.

No proposition, however, should be one sided, and in return for supporting the paper, the students owe the merchants good will and consideration in making purchases. These firms cannot do business on sentiment, and in spite of their loyalty to the University, the merchants in turn need the patronage and support of the collegians. The advertisers buy space to attract the college people and estimate the value of Emerald ads by the return in college trade. So, unless the students patronize the firms represented in these columns, Emerald advertising will become a farce, a kind of thinly disguised charity, and the manager's business talks will be met with a laugh. The ad. columns will shrink and the Emerald will die a speedy and natural death.

Indeed, for students to support the paper through the advertisers is even more important than supporting it by subscriptions, for the Emerald might continue without a subscription list, but it could not be published if the advertisers withdrew.

To patronize advertisers, however, does not call for any sacrifice of taste or money, for Eugene stores are good stores, and the best ones are represented in these columns. Boycotts or blackmail of the unrepresented is not to be thought of, but by discriminating in their patronage students should make it impossible for any to say, "Emerald ads. make no difference. We get the student trade anyway." Such an attitude on the part of the students places the loyal supporters of the paper at a great disadvantage.

A leading Eugene merchant expresses the whole thing tersely in his ad.—"Sentimentally we are strong for this space. It is up to you to give it commercial value."

In the death of Mrs. Duff numbers of us lose a close personal friend. She was one of those rare characters who never allow their hearts to grow old, and had just as bright and cheery smile for us and as deep and true an interest in us as any of our classmates. She usually held court in a large chair in the sorority house, and there was generally as much fun and entertainment around the bright, cheery old lady as around the most popular co-ed. Mrs. Duff had a wonderful memory for the thousands of names and faces that came and went, and a second introduction was never required to recall you to her memory.

Hers will occupy a prominent part in the memories of the many capable and lovable women that have been associated with the University of Oregon.

Boxing and wrestling will be an important department in Trainer Hayward's physical culture course this year. Over fifty men have already signed up for prospective "mills," and discolored optics promise to be all the rage this season. Last year boxing and wrestling was introduced in the athletic department, but the popularity was but nominal, due to the novelty of the games.

Probably no regular boxing or wrestling card or contests will be pulled off this year, but bouts will be held along with the indoor meets during the winter. Later on boxing and wrestling may become recognized by the conference colleges.

Yell Leader Robison's idea of a smoker rally is excellent. It should combine sociability and college enthusiasm, get us all better acquainted, and if the combined influences of good fellowship and Oregon spirit cannot bring the bunches closer together nothing can.

The initiation of this custom, which will be made an annual event, should mark a return to the old time democratic spirit of whole hearted loyalty to the University.

Be careful not to make any conflicting dates, and come to the smoker determined to be a good fellow and loyal Oregon man. If you can't use the weed, bring spearmint or gum drops, but come anyhow.

After competitive trials, the executive committee considered the matter thoroughly and appointed a yell leader. He should command the unquestioned loyalty of every student, for none of the "entrepreneurs" of college activities fail more miserably and conspicuously than does the yell leader without the support of the student body. The quality of the cheering is probably the surest indicator of the spirit prevailing in a college and is the thing by which a college is oftenest judged.

DUNTON LAUREAN PRES

Spirited Election Makes "Fat" Bailey Sergeant at Arms

The first business meeting of the Laurean Literary Society, on Saturday, October 1, had for its prime attraction the election of a new set of officers. Those chosen were:

- President, F. E. Dunton.
- Vice President, Will St. Johns.
- Secretary, C. E. Spencer.
- Assistant Secretary, E. O. Smith.
- Treasurer, D. C. Pickett.
- Censor, P. M. Collier.

The selection of sergeant at arms brought forth the usual number of aspirants for political honors, but physical qualifications and reputation for stability in that position gave the office to "Fat" Bailey.

The work of the society was discussed and plans were formulated for increasing its efficiency. Many new men were present and the society was beset with applications for membership, thus assuring a successful year.

STANFORD WILLING TO FILL GAP IN LEAGUE

If Washington Agrees, Coast Debating League to Form

Debate Manager Huntington has received a letter from Stanford University which states that they are willing to enter a triangular debating league with Oregon and Washington.

Washington has not yet been heard from as to such a proposition, but a favorable reply is anticipated. In case Washington does not want to enter the Coast triangular league, dual debates probably will be arranged with Washington and with Stanford separately.

After withdrawing from the triangular league with Oregon and Washington, Idaho has written to Manager Huntington asking for a dual debate.

Idaho withdrew from the league last spring, saying that oratory and debate were dead at that institution.

"If Stanford is taken on," said Mr. Huntington, "it will be impossible to debate with Idaho. It would be one more debate than we could handle well, even if it could be financed."
