WHAT IS "ACADEMY OF APPRECIATIVE GENIUS"

Collins Denies that It is Society of Self Appreciative Genius

"As Worthy Sextus, in other words president, of the Academy of Appreciative Genius, I have called a meeting for eleven o'clock tonight," said Dean Collins yesterday.

Just who are members of this Academy of Appreciative Genius is not a matter of public knowledge. "It is not," Collins said, "in any way a society, or in a restricted sense a fraternity, although it does not generally publish its doings, lest the public think that its members are unduly inflated with their own importance."

The membership is not large. Six of the old men are back, of a membership of eleven last year, the reporter gathered, and is limited only by the number of appreciative geniuses in college. The organizers of the Academy last year set a standard of what constitutes an appreciative genius, and at the meeting last night several men whom the society considers are worthy of the title of appreciative genius were admitted to the Academy.

Its membership is by the requirements of appreciative genius more than by any other reason, limited to upperclassmen, though it does not in any way claim to be a senior honor society. "Its members do not meet for mutual admiration, but for mutual association and interchange of ideas for the betterment of both the appreciative geniuses themselves and the University. And it is not so much special genius along any particular line as it versatile and comprehensive forms of genius that the society requires of its members," said Collins. "Race, color or previous condition of servitude are not considered. If a man is a true appreciative genius, we welcome him as a brother and ask no questions as to his past."

Of the charter members, six are back. Worthy Sextus of last year, Lair Gregory, is at the University of Washington, two are out in active life, and two are attending Eastern universities.

Y. M. AND Y. W. HEAR PROF. SWEETSER TALK

He Eulogizes Work of George Higgins In Lumber Camps

In his own, unique, rapid fire style, Professor Sweetser delivered one of the most interesting and inspiring addresses last night that have been given before the Y. M. C. A. this year. The occasion was a joint meeting between the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., and was unusually well attended. These meetings, which are conducted by the chairmen of the Missionary Department of both associations, will be held about every six weeks.

In spite of the fact that the subject of the address had been advertised as "Social Conditions in the Great Cities," Professor Sweetser chose to tell of the work of George Higgins, better known as the "Lumber Jacks' Sky Pilot," in the lumber districts of Minnesota and Canada. This man does a work that is original with him and that has never been duplicated. He is a giant in stature, the equal of any of the men he deals with physically, and in his work he often is forced to use his strength in the extreme, as on one occasion when he went to a saloon after one of the men and was attacked by the bartender. With one smash on the jaw he stretched the burly bartender on the floor, and taking his man across his shoulder he set out for the camp. He works in a district two hundred miles square, among thirty thousand lumbermen, and wherever he goes with his magazines and newspapers, preaching sermons and caring for the sick men, he is the idol of the camp. On one occasion he was slightly spoken of by one man who had asked him for a quarter to buy booze with, and had been refused. The other men asked Higgins about it on his arrival, and on learning the truth, rode the man out of camp on a rail.

As he talked, Professor Sweetser threw of the "Sky Pilot" in some of his interesting situations on the screen, which added much to the reality of the facts that were told.

Following the talk, Himes gave an opportunity for all who wished to enroll for the series of eight lectures on the "Challenge of the City," that will begin on Wednesday evening from 6:45 to 7:30 and continue every week for eight weeks. The enrollment of forty which already had been secured was run up almost to seventy-five.

The Y. M. C. A. Quartette sang two selections in a very pleasing manner.

The Aggies at Minnesota have organized their first football team this fall.

BASKETBALL MATERIAL UNUSUALLY PLENTIFUL

A Good Floor, Unusual Interest, and Good Material Promise A Championship Team

"Prospects for basketball material are excellent," says Captain Jamison. A dozen or fifteen men have been working every afternoon for the past two weeks, with more out every day. Among the old men are Stine, Perkins, Watson, Moore and Cockerline. Means and Walker will be in the game at the close of football season. A number of men who played occasionally last year will try seriously for the team this season, and in addition there is some very promising material in the freshman class. Among others out Fenton has an excellent chance to make Varsity center.

Unusual interest is being developed in the game this fall, and that with a large floor and plenty of material points strongly toward a winning team this coming winter.

Captain Jamison, speaking of inter-frat basketball, said: "It is very necessary that there should be a good turn out for the inter-class and inter-frat teams. Those who think that their chances for Varsity are lessened by belonging to these are greatly mistaken. The first team men will be, in a large measure, selected by the showing they make in the inter-frat games. The fraternity and class basketball season will open at the close of the football season and I wish to urge upon everyone the necessity for making a good showing."

PERCY P. ADAMS TALKS TO ENGINEERING CLUB

The Engineering Club held its regular meeting in Deady Hall last night. Several names were presented for membership to the club and were accepted.

The program consisted of an illustrated talk by Professor Percy P. Adams on "The Arch in Architecture." He traced the development of the arch from several hundred years before Christ, to the present Gothic design, which is the marvel in architecture. Several pictures were shown of different designs of arches, one of which was the wonderful and stately Colosseum at Rome, which is a combination of arches.

The club is confining its program to one hour this year, and desires to have the active support of every engineering student.

AFTER IT IS ALL OVER FACULTIES TO HOBNOB

President Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College, extends a cordial invitation to members of the Oregon faculty to attend a reception which the O. A. C. faculty will hold the evening of November 12.

This reception will be entirely different from the military ball which will be held in the armory, and which will be devoted to the students and their guests.

It is requested that members of the faculty expecting to make the Corvallis trip November 12 will leave their names with Mr. Bert Prescott, President's secretary.

$1.75 ROUND TRIP RATE TO THE CORVALLIS GAME

The round trip fare to Corvallis and back on the day of the big game November 12, is to be $1.75. The train leaves Eugene at 8 or 8:30 o'clock a. m. on the day of the game, and returns the same evening.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Domestic Science department of the Agricultural College will see that visitors are provided with dinner and lunch. Football Manager Watson expects seven or eight hundred people from Eugene to take advantage of the excursion rates.

The editor of the Weekly Kaimin, the University of Montana paper, is a sophomore.
