GLEE WILL MAKE FIRST APPEARANCE THURSDAY

IS SAID TO BE BEST CLUB EVER PUT OUT BY VARSITY

House Has Been All Sold and Prospects Are for Most Successful Concert.

Tomorrow evening at the Eugene Theater, the students and townspeople of this city will be given the only opportunity this year to hear the biggest and best Glee Club that Oregon has ever had. The Glee Club of twenty-four men is singing as no Oregon club ever sung before, and the Mandolin Club, under the direction of Professor Warner, has been augmented to twelve men and promises to give the audience something good in the way of string music.

The Glee Club is singing this year some catchy songs of an unusual nature. Several of the popular intermezzos of the day, such as Amina, Wild Flower and Amo, have been arranged especially for a men's choral club, and the way Oregon's bunch of songsters go at them is enough to stir the sense of rhythm in a stone.

A Chinese love song sung by the whole club is another unusual, but catchy number. "The South Wind Blows," a new lullaby, gives the club a chance to show what it can do in tone quality. In this song, the soft moaning of the wind can be distinctly heard as the twenty-four men softly hum in the introduction.

The comedy end of the program will be held up by the Suffragette Trio, composed of Messrs. Curtis, Martin, and Geisler, and a skit entitled "The Glee Club in Dope Center," with Tom Burke, Melvin Ogden and Vernon Vawter in the leading roles. In this act are introduced Messrs. Curtis and Geisler, the "Pretzel Twins," in song and dance, Frazier in solo, and the "Hungry Six," a German band, which renders several familiar ditties in characteristic German style.

Syracuse university has decided to abolish rowing.

CHUCK TAYLOR AND BEN GROUT WILL RETURN

Chuck Taylor and Ben Grout will probably play on Oregon's 1911 football team. Knowing that both men are seniors, students have looked forward to a team seriously weakened by their loss. Each of them, however, is planning to return for graduate work and there is a good chance of seeing them back on the gridiron.

It may be thought strange that Taylor should have another year of football, but during one college year he was unable to play because of a broken collar bone, and hence still has his fourth year to play. Bill Hayward says that Grout will certainly have the right to play, should he come back, inasmuch as this has been his second year on Varsity. With the addition of these two men, next year's team will be materially strengthened.

UTAH DEBATERS CHOSEN

Ray and Zimmerman Are the Lucky Men Selected

L. Leon Ray, '12, and Howard Zimmerman, '13, were chosen last night as members of the debating team which will meet the University of Utah at Salt Lake City in February.

The final tryout, the last of a series of three, was very close and interesting. The judges deliberated nearly thirty minutes before arriving at a decision.

Mr. Ray is a Eugene man. For two years he has been on the Varsity debating teams, and last year led the negative team which defeated the University of Washington and won the Northwest championship for Oregon.

Howard Zimmerman was Ray's colleague last year, and gained distinction as a cool and logical speaker. Both men are prominent members of the Laurean Literary Society.

Coach Buchen is highly pleased by the showing made by all the men in the tryouts, especially the Freshmen. His only regret is that more men did not try out. A large number, however, are expected to enter the next tryouts for the tri-state debates, the dates for which will be set as soon as the subject for debate is selected.

LOU PINKHAM PICKS AN ALL-NORTHWEST TEAM

FOUR OREGON MEN ARE GIVEN POSITIONS IN LINEUP

Bailey and Grout are Best Guards —Taylor and Main are Halfbacks.

The Oregon Emerald prints an All-Northwest football team as picked by Louis Pinkham, assistant coach for the Varsity team, an All-Northwest tackle for three years, and a player thoroughly familiar with college football in the West.

His team is as follows: Ends, Grimm, of Washington, and Huntley of O. A. C.; tackles, Laird of Washington and Eakin of Washington; guards, Bailey and Grout of Oregon; center, Harper, of W. S. C.; Quarterback, Coyle, of Washington; Halfbacks, Taylor and Main, of Oregon; Fullback, Cox, of Whitman.

Pinkham says of these men: "Grimm played in only one game, that with W. S. C., but was the bright star of the game. Laird I consider the best defense tackle in the West today. Bailey is somewhat inexperienced as a tackle, but outshines all the guards except Grout, of Oregon, therefore I give these two men the guards' positions. Harper is a good all around defensive center in the Northwest, and is the most consistent passer. Kellogg is the best defensive center, but his record in passing is below Harper's. Grout is the best guard for this all-star team."

The box window at the Eugene Theater opened this morning, and seats have been selling rapidly, indicating a big attendance at the initial concert.

COACH WARNER WILL RETURN FOR 1911 SEASON

Trainer Bill Hayward now has in his possession a signed contract with Mr. Warner to act in the capacity of coach for the 1911 football season.

Mr. Warner, as football coach, has made good in the eyes of the Athletic Council, has won the hearts of the football men, and elicited the enthusiastic support of the student body.

Accordingly, when the committee on applications recommended to the council the name of Mr. Warner for football coach, he was unhesitatingly accepted. The consideration is rumored to be about $1,500.00.

Bill Hayward, when asked for comment on the success of Mr. Warner's "system," paid unconscious tribute to his ability, when he answered: "There is no 'system' in football; it's all football, and the coach with the head work makes good. Coach Warner has made good."

TO PUBLISH DIRECTORY

Emerald Management Will Put Out Information Book

The Emerald management is busy arranging to publish a college directory.

These directories are a regular publication in most colleges, and are of inestimable value in locating students. The book will contain the home addresses, college residences, and telephone numbers of all the students and faculty. It will also include the names and addresses of the various student officers.

The executive committee has authorized the publication of the directory by the Emerald, and Mr. Dobie is now only waiting for favorable action by the Eugene Merchants' Protective Association.

The directory will be out by January and will be put free of charge in the hands of every student. Above 500 copies will be distributed.

Professor Straub Entertains

Eleven students who remained in Eugene during the holidays enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner with Professor Straub. Most of them are students who are bachelors, and who live too far away to go home in the short Thanksgiving recess.

ALL AUTHORITIES AGREE ON TAYLOR AND BAILEY

WASHINGTON GETS LION'S SHARE OF NORTHWEST SELECTIONS

All-Star Teams Are Now Being Made Out. Poor Schedule Shuts Out Other Oregon Men.

With the conclusion of the football season in the Northwest, interest now centers about the selection of the all-star team as judged by the various coaches. As yet Coach Dobie, of Washington, is the only one who has rendered an opinion, but there can be but little disagreement with his choice. W. J. Petrain, sporting editor of the Oregonian, has also selected a team, and it is this team which excites the greatest interest, as Petrain succeeds Pat McArthur in picking the official team which will be published in Walter Camp's Guide Book.

It is probably due to the fact that Oregon's schedule did not include enough important games to give a fair idea of the individual abilities of her players, that only two or three men are mentioned by either writer.

Editor Petrain selects the following men as the first All-Northwest team: Ends—Huntley, O. A. C., Thornton, U. I.; Tackles—Eakins, U. W., Bailey, U. O.; Guards—F. Grimm, U. W., Laird, W. S. C.; Center—Harter, W. S. C.; Halfbacks—Cox, Whitman, Taylor, U. O.; Fullback—Keck, O. A. C. Quarter—Coyle, U. W.

Coach Dobie picks for a representative team: Ends—W. Grimm, U. W., Huntley, O. A. C.; Tackles—H. Grimm and Eakins, U. W.; Guards—Laird, W. S. C., Bailey, U. O.; Center—Dunn, O. A. C.; Halfbacks—Cox, Whitman, Taylor, U. O.; Fullback—Niles, Whitman; Quarter—Coyle, U. W.

All the conference colleges are represented on Petrain's team, Washington leading with three men, Oregon, O. A. C. and W. S. C. tied for second place with two men each, and Idaho and Whitman each contributing one.

Huntley, O. A. C., end; Eakins, U. W., tackle; Bailey, U. O., tackle or guard; Laird, W. S. C., guard; Cox, Whitman, and Taylor, U. O., halves; and Coyle, U. W., quarterback; were picked by both men and will probably be picked by all others.

Captain Chuck Taylor is playing his third season on the team, and though a Senior, he is planning to take post graduate work, so will be eligible next year. Taylor prepared for college at Hill Military Academy, where he made all-star interscholastic halfback for four years and led his team for two years. Chuck is an all-around athlete and captain-elect of the Varsity baseball team. This is his second year as All-Northwest halfback.

Edward "Fat" Bailey, Oregon's second man on the team, and a man who also was chosen on both teams, is a Sophomore and playing his second year on the team. Weighing in at 230 pounds or thereabouts, he handles himself so well that he is feared through his ability to break through and nail the back field before the play is well started.

It is conceded that Oregon's poor schedule, which prevented the players showing to the best advantage, kept such recognized stars as Latourette, Main, Grout and others from All-Northwest positions.

Columbia University has made arrangements for an exchange of professors with the University of Paris.
