COLLEGE GIRLS NOT IN DANGER SAYS DR. STUART

Precautions Necessary, However, to Guard Against Typhoid

For the past several days there has been a rumor, more or less exaggerated, about the campus, that our Christmas holidays might perforce begin this Friday, instead of next, because Dr. Stuart has pronounced nearly every girl in college in some degree ailing and dangerously susceptible to the much dreaded "B. Coli."

"The rumor is absolutely absurd and unfounded," says Dr. Stuart when approached on this subject. "It is true that quite a number of the girls have come to me with bad colds and symptoms of la grippe, for which I blame the inclemency of the weather and their own carelessness. This, however, applies only to a few, and so far as I know, the majority of the girls in the University are in excellent condition."

Dr. Stuart furthermore said that there was practically no danger of an epidemic of typhoid among the co-eds if even a moderate degree of precaution be observed.

MRS. CLARKE PLEADS FOR UNFORTUNATE CHILDREN

A very interesting and instructive address was delivered before the students at assembly this morning by Mrs. Ida Hood Clarke, a member of the National Educational Commission, which was appointed to study the school systems of Europe. Mrs. Clarke took for her subject "Open Air Schools of England and Germany," accompanying her lecture with illustrations of the daily life of the children.

"The purpose of the schools," said the speaker, "is to take abnormal children from schools poorly ventilated, or from unsanitary surroundings, and build them up physically by making them live continually outside. Seven such schools exist in Germany, and six in England."

Mrs. Clarke concluded her address by telling of similar schools in the United States. The best of these are located in Chicago, New York, Montain, New Jersey, and Providence, R. I. "What we need most," she said, "in the United States, is more schools of this nature for homeless children."

CHAS. R. DRUM TALKS FORCEFULLY TO MEN

"The man who strikes a blow at the home is an enemy of this country. Yet men all over this land are doing just that thing through impurity of life." Thus Charles R. Drum fired the first shot of his lecture Monday night, entitled, "What About the Thought?"

Beginning with the thought quoted above, he proceeded in a frank manner to discuss the social evil. Side-stepping no issues, using no rhetorical.

He believed there are three big causes of impurity. First, the saloon; secondly, bad language; and thirdly, the fact that (quoting a judge) "men have lost consciousness of God."

The man's method was unique. His style was conversational and personal. He did not resort to the evangelist's common method of asking for pledges or requiring that a public stand be taken on the subject presented.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA INITIATES CANDIDATES

The Alpha Tau Omegas initiated six of their pledges Friday night and Saturday afternoon. The men initiated are Ray F. Murphy, '13, of Hood River; Karl T. Kent, of Oakland, California; Chester Huggins, of Hood River; John Kraus, of Salem; Vernon T. Motschenbacher, of Klamath Falls; and Alfred Lee, of Baker. Several of the fraternity's outside members were present at the initiation and the banquet which followed.

Francis Galloway, '06, is visiting at the Kappa Sigma house.

PROFESSORS SWEETSER, STAFFORD INVESTIGATE

Will Consider Different Foods With Respect to Nutritive Powers

The increasing cost of living at the University is to be the subject of investigation by a faculty committee consisting of Professors Sweetser and Stafford.

They expect to meet in a short time and formulate their plans. The probable line of investigation of the committee will be a study of foods, with a view of determining their relative nutritive value and finding those combinations which are the most efficient and healthful at the least cost. The results of the committee's work will be available for the state at large, as well as the clubs and dormitories at Oregon. In view of the importance of the question of cost of living and the reputation of these professors, it is expected that the recommendations of the committee will be gladly received by the public.

BASKETBALL STARS OUT HAYWARD TO COACH

As the season progresses, Oregon's basketball prospects grow brighter. Although no team has been chosen, the way the men are showing up individually in the class and fraternity contests gives a fair idea of the probable strength of this year's team.

Of last year's basketball men, Captain Jamieson, Elliot, and Walker are again in the game, also subs Cockerline and Moore.

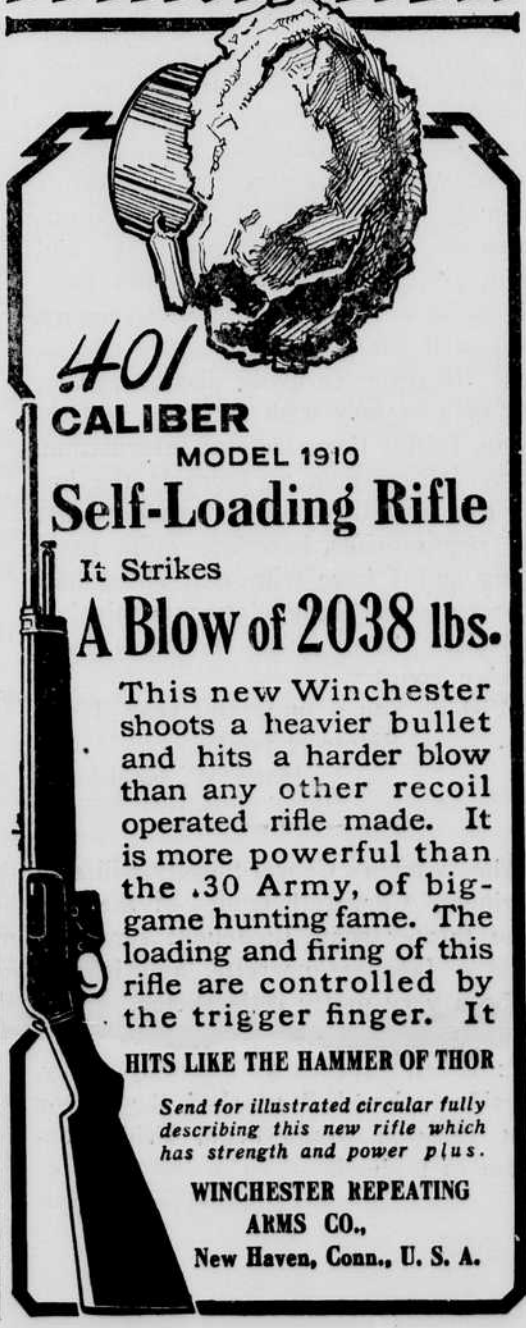

Captain Jamieson is showing up exceptionally well this year forward. Elliot and Walker are both playing their usual consistent game.

Of the freshmen basket ballists, Fenton is the bright and shining light, with some eight or nine others showing exceptional class.

Bill Hayward will again coach the team. Bill has had extensive basketball experience and knows the fine points of the game. With the material on hand this year he should have no trouble in turning out a championship aggregation.

Dave McDaniel and Ted Williams will leave Thursday for Atlanta, Georgia, where they will represent the local chapter of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at its national biennial congress in that city.

WOMAN HATER GILLIS TABOOS ALL FUSSING

The Laureans listened to an interesting debate at the meeting Saturday. Resolved, "That fussing by male students of the University of Oregon should be prohibited."

The reform was advocated by Gillis, King and Pickett, and was opposed by St. John, Lane and Ashcraft. By virtue of having for five years been a close observer of the practice, "Hippo" defined fussing and similar pernicious practices as voluntarily, willfully and maliciously associating with one particular co-ed, to the exclusion and consequent mortification of the other feminine students. After his eloquent pleading, the judges awarded the palm to the affirmative, led by the same "Chanticleer" Gillis. The meeting adjourned well satisfied with having settled the momentous question.
