LAI AND DING SING AT CHINESE FAMINE BENEFIT

Harry Ding and William Lai returned Monday from Portland, where they took part in the concert given in the Taylor Street Methodist church by the Chinese Students' Club of Portland, for the benefit of the famine stricken of China. They report that the concert, the members of which were supplied almost wholly by local Chinese students, netted over $400 to the famine fund.

The Chinese Student Club, of Portland, of which Ding and Lai are members, was recently organized, "to further the social and literary interests" of the Chinese students of Oregon. There are a bout twenty members at present. William B. Moy, its President, is a junior in the University Law Department at Portland.

The German Club, at its regular meeting last night, at the A. T. O. house, voted to have its picture placed in the Oregonian. A committee, with Ferd Struck as chairman, was appointed to write up the history of the club. The reading by Miss Effie Rhodes was particularly enjoyed. The other features were a vocal solo by Miss Maybelle Larsen and a piano solo by Raphael Geisler and a recitation by Dorris Plummer.

DEBATERS IN STATE OF INTELLECTUAL RHAPSODY

Coach Buchen Ready to Let Slip His Forensic Dogs of War

Oregon's debaters, Zimmerman, Ray, Collier and Motschenbacher, have completed their plans for the forensic battles with Washington and Stanford, which will occur a week from Friday night. They will spend the rest of the time before the debates in Villard Hall, gaining ease and effectiveness in delivery.

Zimmerman has been selected by Coach Buchen to captain the affirmative team, which meets the University of Washington in Eugene, and he will close the debate for Oregon. Collier will do the same for the negative team at Stanford. Last year Zimmerman and Ray defeated Washington in Seattle, and thus helped to win a Northwest championship for Oregon—the only championship Oregon won during the year.

"Can these two men hold the championship this year" is the question those interested in debate are asking. Washington will make a strenuous effort to get the victory. Her star debater and orator, Glenn Hoover, member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, and winner last year of the inter-state oratorical contest, will lead the negative team. He is one of the most effective speakers in any of the Western colleges, although

Coach Buchen, although realizing that the affirmative is probably the harder side of the question, believes that his men will win. He has spent most of his time in training them to speak extempore. So they will be able to speak effectively on any side of the question which the negative may present. Zimmerman's rebuttal work promises to be a feature of the debate. His famous "logical smile" has been so trained that at will he can expand it into a grin and put terror into the heart of any opponent.

Freshman Class Acquits Itself Very Creditably at First Assembly

That the Freshman program this morning at assembly hour was the best class program of the year, one would hesitate to say, but that it proved to be most interesting one may affirm without fear of contradiction.

President Yaden presided and welcomed the student body to Villard Hall. Norma Graves played the "Dwarf's Dance" in a manner that places her among the front rank of pianists at Oregon. William Lai sang "For All Eternity" in his usual rich tenor voice, and the Girls' Choral Club sang a negro lullaby bordering onto rag time, and were forced by the delighted audience to sing it a second time.

Peter Crockett gave the talk of the day. In a well organized and delivered address, he told of the evolution of the Freshman from a position little better than a servant, to the one he now occupies in all the leading universities, free, independent and recognized as a man. Peter, in behalf of the Freshmen, thanked Providence that it is now so, along that line. She responded with a manner that showed much ability along that line. He responded with an "Ode to the Hair Brush."

The Freshman Glee Club sang "It's Love That Makes the World Go Round," and the program closed with Nelson's Oregon Song, sung by the combined clubs.

At Michigan men have been trying out for the chess and checker teams. They expect to play inter-collegiate games by mail.
