"MAC" SNOW '09 WRITES FOR HARPER'S WEEKLY

Oregon Grad Contributes Able Article On Initiative And Referendum

Harper's Weekly for April 22 contains a twenty-five hundred word article on the "Initiative and Referendum in Oregon" written by Charles McCormac Snow, '09.

The article tells in a concise but thorough way of this state's experience with direct legislation and draws logical deductions as to the practical value of the much discussed "Oregon System." After a brief summary of the various measures which the Oregon voters have considered since the adoption of the Initiative and Referendum in 1902, the author proceeds to draw several conclusions. One of these is that the Referendum should not be invoked in matters of local interest in which the voters of the state are not primarily concerned. Another is that with initiative petitions measures technical should be sharply discriminated from the general and that the former should be left exclusively to the Legislature.

The theme of the article is that this system of legislation will make for success or failure as the people of Oregon use discriminating judgment in observing these distinctions.

Charles or "Mac" Snow is well remembered by the upper classmen in the University. He majored in Economics and was noted as an independent thinker, investigator and controversialist. After graduating with honor he entered the Harvard Law College where he is now a Junior. While at Oregon he represented the Varsity in intercollegiate tennis. His home is at Portland.

CO-ED TENNIS TRYOUT

WILL OCCUR THURSDAY

At a meeting of the Girls' Tennis Club in Prof. Glen's class room Tuesday at 4 p. m., it was decided to have the tryouts for admission into the club next Thursday afternoon from four until six o'clock. Any girl in the University who can wield the racquet at all, is urged to sign the paper posted in the library. A membership composed of Miss Perkins, Miss Hyde, and the President will have charge of the qualifications necessary for admission and will submit the names of those fortunate enough to make the required score, to the club for approval.

Those trying out will play against Miss Perkins or Miss Bagley and the score required will not be too high for anyone who understands the game to reach.

OREGON CO-ED DEBATERS

PREPARE FOR WASHINGTON

The co-ed debate to be held May 5th is arousing interest among the students, especially the women of the University, as debate is the only activity in which co-eds may win the official "O".

It will be the first inter-collegiate women's debate ever held in Eugene. Last year Oregon's team lost at Seattle. The Oregon team will argue on the negative side of the income tax question.

Birdie Wise will open the debate for Oregon. Carin Degermark will follow her, and Lilah Clark will close the argument.

The debaters spent nearly all of last week working on the question with Coach Buchen.

Miss Rowland, teacher of theory in the University School of Music, left last Monday for Boston so that she might be at the bedside of a sister who is dangerously ill. Miss Rowland will not return to the West until the opening of school next September.
