Enlargement Proposed.

Our ambition to enlarge the Emerald to six pages is not being realized. There is plenty of news, the staff is working systematically, and the manager has made every effort to perfect his arrangements, but so far, he has been unable to secure the necessary amount of advertising.

The Eugene merchants either consider advertising in the Emerald a poor business expenditure, or business is more quiet this year than ever before, for the manager experiences difficulty in securing enough adds for the present four page issue.

This is a disappointment to the editor, who is unable to print all the news the Emerald should contain, because of a lack of space. Every issue several stories are consigned to the waste basket because there is no room for them, and the columns of High School exchange, Alumni news, and local items have not even been started.

At present, a six page issue is out of the question, but the editor hopes within the immediate future to add another column to the paper, making it an issue of four pages of six columns each. This increase will grant at least two additional columns for news.

The Lesson in Friday's Game.

The game yesterday gave the University of Oregon a good idea of what she has yet to accomplish before she can expect to win the Northwest championship.

In spite of the sweeping victory the team, the rooters, the coaches, in fact every one, realizes that much has yet to be accomplished before the Washington game is won. The team was ragged in much of its work, many of the attempted forward passes were failures, and a general lack of finish was everywhere evident in all the plays. But the team was not the only undeveloped part of the game. The rooters, too, showed ragged teamwork, due to lack of practice, and the enthusiasm they displayed failed to permeate Kincaid Field as it used to in the good old days when Oregon Spirit was a prominent factor in all Oregon victories.

From now on it behooves football men, rooters, coaches, and all, to place their shoulders to the wheel and roll it into that place they know it must occupy to bring honor to Oregon's door.

THE SAGE OF PODUNK MAKES A FEW REMARKS

Peter Funk says it's not a college tradition for Freshmen to congregate in front of Carnegie Library every afternoon at 3:30.

It is perfectly proper to weep at a funeral, but it is not considered necessary at your own.

Sign checks at the lowest lefthand corner, but don't sign love letters at all.

The best way to prevent falling hair is to tie it firmly to a nail in the closet before retiring.

While paying streetcar fares always take your time, it annoys the conductor. Also always take your change, that annoys him more.

It isn't proper to wear garden hose, except at lawn parties.

It is not considered proper to tell a lady you like her best when she is wearing a veil.

VARSITY BAND SCORES WELL AT GAME FRIDAY

One of the features of the game between Oregon and the Fort Vancouver Soldiers Friday afternoon, was the appearance of Burns Powell's "concert" band. Although it was the first public appearance of this galaxy of musical talent and the result of but one previous practice, the organization dispensed a quality of melody, which scored a decided hit with the big turnout of Varsity students.

From the first strains of "Put Your Arms Around me," to the closing number of "Stop! Stop! Stop!" the college musicians held the stage and called down profuse exclamations of appreciation.

As shown in yesterday's game, a band is almost a prime requisite in completing the "setting" of the modern football game, an accompaniment of this kind being necessary to blend with the rooting and general excitement.

The Oregon band will appear at every game on the home field, and will hold an important part in the coming rallies. Practice will be held every Wednesday evening at the Dormitory. The list of members is as follows:

Trombones—Powell, leader, Girard; cornets—Hudson, Cochran, Epperly, Pickard, Shanten, Bedford; altos—Fortmiller; baritone—Moore; bass—Abbott; clarinets—Motchenbacher, Grady; bass drum—Staggs; snare drum, Ruth.
