SAVE THE MONTHLY SAYS RALPH MOORES

Only Enterprise That Encourages
Literarily Inclined to Develop Talents.

The suggestion that, because of a dull financial outlook, the Oregon Monthly may be discontinued, grates on the feelings of many.

In the first place, our finances are in vastly better shape than last year at this time, when we were far in debt.

Anyway, except that it may be done with impunity, what justification is there for strangling the Monthly. The dear old lady has for many years led a chaste and exemplary life, which has made up in service and usefulness what it may have lacked in color and sensation. Though we may, at times, be inclined to gently desire the magazine, as dedicated to poets, highbrows, and dreamers, the fact remains that it is our only means of offering appreciation and encouragement of the writing of good English, which art is the very foundation of a liberal education. As college people we are bound to appreciate good writing and admire capable and clever writers.

The standards of our literary magazine have always been a credit to the University and it has always been symbolical and representative of one of the best and most important phases of our college life.

To thus summarily suspend in mid-year would be a most glaring advertisement of our poverty, and in a practical way, it is extremely doubtful whether it could legally be accomplished, except by a vote of all the students. Also there would remain the obligation of refunding half the subscription money.

If, indeed, as is by no means certain, we are doomed to sing in the slough of poverty and bankruptcy, let us go down with flags flying and the band playing, and not try to save a hundred dollars or so by the annihilation of one of our most venerable and representative enterprises.

—Ralph Moores.

INTERESTING THESES IN HISTORY DEPARTMENT

Fourteen Seniors Under Dr. Schaefer
Write On Subjects Of Special Note.

The history department, under Joseph Schaefer, promises to turn out several interesting theses.

Miss Edna McKnight is preparing "A Study of Recent Tendencies In Journalism In Oregon." Miss McKnight intends to present the ideal type of rural journalism. To this end she has made a special study of what journalism should be and is studying the local papers of the state covering the last eleven years, for evidences of improvement and for the effects of far reaching movements.

The thesis of Miss Grace Adams is "The History of the Initiative and Referendum." Miss Adams spent her Christmas in Portland gathering material and consulting men who have been associated with the popular government movement.

Mike Stastney is preparing "A History of Settlements in Bohemian Oregon."

Miss Ruby Hammerstrom's subject is "The Finnish Element in Astoria and Clatsop County."

"The Distribution of the Vote in the Presidential Election of 1896," is the subject of Harry Stine's thesis. He will trace the lines of influence due to the silver question.

Miss Elend Frink presents a thesis on "Early Church Deaconesses."

Geo. Gabriel's subject involves the study of the Referendum Vote of 1898." A part of his work will consist of drawing maps to show the distribution of votes.

"Immigration in Oregon Since 1900 and Its Local Effects," is also one of the more important subjects assigned for research.

In all there will be fourteen theses from the history department.

Mrs. Mabel Eaton McClain, '05, is her home in East Eugene.

Mrs. Myra Norris Johnson, '93, wife of the University steward, is at her home in this city.

Homer I. Keeney, '97, one time president of the Alumni Association, and one of Oregon's star linemen, is a prominent physician of Portland.

FOUR TEAMS OUT OF THE FRAT CONTEST

First Round of Interfrat Series to Be Finished This Afternoon.

Thus far in the second round of the interfraternity series four teams have been eliminated from the final series which begin next week. The scores of the second round were: Sigma Nu 22, Delta Sigma 5, Kappa Sigma 14, Phi Gamma Delta 10, Avava 6, Dorm Clubs, and Sigma Chi, 14, Acacia 3. Today the A. T. O.'s meet the Betas and the Tawahs tangle with the Oregon Club.

Next week the semi-final round begins and will probably be settled by Wednesday night. Six teams will compete in the semi-finals and the three winners will settle the differences in the later part of the week on a percentage basis. The semi-final round is looked forward to by the campus sport followers and will be hard fought. The turnouts to the games have been large and considerable enthusiasm has been aroused. The team work of the clubs has improved and the series has brought to light some good varsity material.
