OREGON MONTHLY MAY FLY WITH OWN WINGS

Executive Committee Decides Previous Action too Hasty and will allow Magazine to Live

There will be no epitaph written for the Oregon Monthly this year, for the executive committee last night rescinded its former action in regard to the publication and will allow the continuance of the paper on a slightly changed financial basis.

Besides the one hundred and thirty-five dollars due yet from the student body, it was decided to grant the manager two hundred dollars more, or rather, to let the publication run that much behind by the end of the year. This concession was granted on the condition that further issues would be cut down in size, and that an effort would be made to secure more advertising and subscriptions. In this way the Monthly will be more self sustaining.

In justice to the executive committee it must be said that when it took the former action, it did so with the idea that the Monthly was worse off than it really was. It had not received a clear and concise report from the manager, and when its real condition was known, the committee immediately took steps to revive the publication.

Manager Geary's report of the last student body informal, showing a balance of $18, was accepted.

No action was taken by the executive committee on the recent flurry concerning the proper attire for women at the informals.

PROSPECTIVE MIDDIES WILL ASSEMBLE FOR EXAMS

The examinations of the applicants for appointment to Annapolis will be held at the University, beginning tomorrow and extending to Saturday. Though the names have not been given out it is said six men will try for admittance into the United States Naval Academy at this time. These men hail from various parts of the state, but as yet no University students have signified their intention of trying out.

The appointments, two in number this year, will be made by Senator Chamberlain in May, and will fall to the two applicants passing the highest mental and physical examinations.

Minnesota will have a girl's track team this year.

"Brick" Michael is expected back in college this week.

Kentucky State University will offer a course preparing teachers as efficient athletic trainers.

Student self government has been inaugurated at the State University of Kentucky.

Emerald subscriptions are now due. Kindly pay them to Allyn Roberts, Walter Dobie, or Clay Watson.

PENITENTIARY SOON TO BE LIKE COLLEGE

In a recent issue of Canyon City Eagle, Oregon, the following humorous editorial appeared:

A course of lectures and study is to be provided for the penitentiary under the West policy. Different branches are to be taught the convicts. It might be a good plan to put in a law course and in the mechanical department skillful instruction given in the art of making burglar's tools. In the penitentiary of California the prisoners are now manufacturing burglar proof safes. If civilization keeps moving along it will not be long until a term in the pen will be like going to college. After the classes in the penitentiary get organized they ought to issue a challenge to the State University for a debate or have a spelling match with the Agricultural College.

OREGANA SUBSCRIPTION AGENTS GETTING BUSY

Karl Martzloff, subscription agent for the 1913 Oregana, has his cohorts at work now listing subscriptions for the book, which is to come out in May. Those who subscribe now, pay one dollar down and one dollar when the book is delivered, otherwise the price will be two-fifty, with the risk that there will be an insufficient number of books to supply the demand.

An edition de Luxe is promised this year, four hundred pages, with extra fine cuts on unusually heavy ivory paper.

Those taking subscriptions are Charles Koyl at the Y. M. C. A. office; Anna McMicken, sororities; Russell Calkins, Oregon Club; Ray Early, fraternities; Thad Wentworth, Dorm; Karl Martzloff, general agent.

ORATORS WILL TRY OUT FOR INTER-COLLEGIATE CONTEST

The initial tryout to select an orator to represent Oregon in the Inter-Collegiate Oratorical Contest, at Pacific University, next March, will be held Monday evening.

Seven budding orators have announced their intention of competing. Five of these will be selected for the final tryout next month.

Those who will compete are, Chester Moores, '12; David Pickett, '13; Howard Zimmerman, '13; "Jerry" Martin, '13; Grace Adams, '12; Leon Wray, '12; Will St. Johns, '13.

Professor Frink Improving.

Professor Frink of the Department of Mathematics in the University, who has been critically ill in a San Francisco hospital, is reported to be improving rapidly. Although it is not definitely known when his health will permit his return to the University, he is expected to be able to resume his duties sometime during the second semester.

SPORTING EDITOR SAW BETA-SIGMA CHI GAME

Calls Contest "Smashing Game" and Relates Interesting Details of Second Final.

The account of the Beta-Sigma Chi game came too late for last Saturday's Emerald, and the details are dead news now, although they will linger long in the minds of the present college generation. The game was reminiscent of the Roman arena and somewhat similar to the Spanish bull fight of today. Somewhere in here it should be mentioned that the Betas won the game, 17 to 8, and that the victory was gained principally on Capt. Stine's ability to throw fouls. The leader of the Beta team threw seven out of ten of the fouls called and proved to be the star for the winners, although much credit goes to Charlie Reynolds, who played a great game at guard and was responsible for holding down the Sig forwards.

The game was the roughest and hardest fought of the series and the frequent knockdowns drew great gushes of satisfaction from the fans who assembled to see the burlesque. Only two men were forced to retire from the game on account of injuries, Capt. Newland, of Sigma Chi, who cleverly blocked a flying elbow with his face, and Fenton, the freshman center of the Betas, who hurt his shoulder in the early part of the first half.

Briedwell, Early, and John Kelly, starred for the Sig team and played what is known in football parlance as a "smashing game." The big crowd paid little attention to score and gazed transfixedly at the melee going on below.

DR. BENNETT'S RECOVERY WELCOMED BY STUDENTS

Dr. Bennett, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia at his home in Eugene, is reported to be recovering rapidly and is expected to resume his regular work in February.

Dr. Bennett's illness, which has required constant medical attention, has been the subject of great apprehension among his many friends in both the faculty and student body.

A special nurse who has been in constant attendance at his bedside, was dismissed last night due to the vast improvement in his condition. Dr. Bennett will be welcomed by his students when his health permits the resuming of his classes.

Michigan is to offer a course in wireless engineering next year.

Stanford men who represent their institution against California in soccer, will hereafter be granted the varsity emblem.
