Reasons Why Every Man In College Should Be a Member of the Y. M. C. A.

"Every man in College should be a member of the Y. M. C. A."

There are a good many reasons why every man on the campus should be a member of the Y. M. C. A., among which the most pertinent are: First, The Y. M. C. A. is a most valuable aid to the University. Second, It is the greatest student movement in the world with which every college man should be in touch. Third, The Y. M. C. A. is the only organization that cares for the spiritual side of a man's life. Fourth, A man will receive valuable training in Christian work by being a faithful member of the Y. M. C. A. Fifth, A man's Christian experience will be broadened and deepened by contact with his fellows who hold different religious views from his own. Last but not least, it gives a man one of the best opportunities to help his fellows and helps him to become a leader.

The Y. M. C. A. is the only institution on the campus that takes any interest in a man's spiritual well being. It fills the place in our State University that no sectarian organization could possibly fill because the public would immediately stop an attempt by any sectarian body to do a work similar in character to the work the Association is doing on the campus. The Association is the one religious organization where you do not have to distort your religious views to agree with some creed or doctrine to become a member. The Association wants your membership for your own good, as well as for the good of the Association.

It may be of interest to the public to know how the work of the membership committee is carried on and what they have done. The old membership was not carried over from last year, but at the beginning of this school year every man, whether a member last year or not, was asked to fill out a membership blank. There are now ninety-four active and thirty-five associate members.

essed an unusually pleasing straightforward delivery. He briefly reviewed the arguments of both sides and spent a few minutes in rebuttal. He pointed out that constitutional amendment is to difficult and slow to meet the needs of the people, and that the cases of reactionary decisions cited by the Affirmative were only typical examples of hundreds of others. Jones' first main point was that these reactionary decisions were due to the irresponsibility of the judges.

His second point was that the Recall is the only and best instrument for securing the desired results as experience has shown.

Gardner followed for Utah and proved to be one of the most fluent speakers of the evening. He was interrupted by slothful latecomers and a passing train, but soon regained possession of the audience. He upheld the decisions of the courts and said they were, as a rule, good. He elaborated on the ineffectiveness of the Recall and argued that it possessed certain inherent defects. He then proposed the plan of the negative, which was to remove incompetent judges by legislative redress.

Each speaker was then given six minutes for rebuttal. They devoted themselves to summaries and reiteration of the main points already mentioned, but the closing speech of Crockett is worthy of particular mention. In a clear, concise manner, he summarized the issues which had arisen, showed the defects of the remedies proposed by the Negative and closed with a strong appeal in favor of the popular Recall as proposed by the Affirmative.

The judges were Edward M. Sharp, D. D., and Alfred C. Schmitt, Ph. D., of Albany, and Ralph D. Netzel, Corvallis.
