

HANDICAP TOURNAMENT DRAWINGS ANNOUNCED

Golf Enthusiasts are Grouped for First Round of Match for Smartt Trophy Cup.

Commencing at once, the Varsity Men's Handicap Golf Tournament will hold the interest of Golf enthusiasts, until the possession of the H. D. Smartt cup, which will go to the winner for one year, is determined.

The committee on ranking, consisting of Prescott, Tiffany, and Prof. Dearborn, have announced the handicaps for the various men, and have grouped the players into their respective classes with their opponents for the first round, which has already commenced. Each round will be eighteen holes, with handicaps ranging from three holes given by those of the first class, to six holes which will be given to those of the fifth class.

The drawings, as announced, are Prescott, Dearborn, and Tiffany, who drew "byes," at scratch, Lingenfelter and Young, three; Cecil and Dixon, six and three; Cecil and Dixon, six and three; Dorr and Prof. DeCou, six and three; Grayson and G. Watson, five and three; Lytle and G. Frazier, four all; C. Watson and Latourette, six and four; Cake and Waite, five and four; Hawkins and Still, six and four; Pres. Campbell and Holden, six and four; Roberts and Terpening, six and five; Thurber, K. Frazier, Heusner, drew byes, and are given five, six and six.

So far but one or two of the matches have been played, yet with the continuance of ideal weather, the golf links will be a lively place, especially when Dr. Stewart's gym classes make their credits by cavorting out the hills in pursuit of the elusive "pill." With the greens and bunkers in good shape, golf is assuming a prominent place in athletic circles.

Spooners Cut Wires.

Because the spooners at the University of Washington persist in cutting the wires that furnish the energy for the lights on the campus at night, so that they might not be bothered by their dazzling brilliancy, campus boss Fred Blum has decided not only to hide the wires, but also to remove the benches. Three times the fusers chopped the wires, and then the tall deputy got tired, and put a stop to the spooning.

OREGANA PICTURES SENT TO ENGRAVER WEDNESDAY

The fraternity and club pictures for the Oregana were sent in to the engraver Wednesday. This fact practically assures the publication of the annual either before or during Junior week-end.

Although the Juniors are rather reticent about talking about their book, they do state that they will make good their claim of getting out a book which will cause both the University and themselves to be justly proud. It will be a book excellently gotten up of fine heavy paper, bound in gray boards, the whole being about one and one-half inches in thickness.

About three hundred and fifty subscriptions have already been secured.

Elizabeth Woods, '10, is a graduate student of Clark University, Worcester, Mass.
