

DRAMATIC CLUB IN "CANDIDA" PLEASURES VARSITY AUDIENCE

HISTRIONIC ABILITY DISPLAYED BY CLUB MEMBERS IN FIRST PRODUCTION

PRODUCTION NOT A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Dramatic Club Will Offer an Other Attraction for Junior Week-End, In May.

George Bernard Shaw's play, "Candida," was the vehicle for the displaying of the histrionic talents of "Prexy" Dunton and his support at the Eugene Opera House Monday evening.

Although this is perhaps the most difficult production which the Dramatic Club has yet attempted, and every part is important and calls for a high quality of acting, all the members of the caste acquitted themselves well and showed the effect of careful study and preparation.

Professor Reddie, of the department of Public Speaking of the University, coached the amateur thespians and deserves credit for the success scored. Although, as has been said, every member of the sextet taking part, -red oad 's'wemh'ndub'ed of dn em'p' formers who deserve special mention, are Walter Dimm, who appeared as Eugene Marshbanks, the young poet, and Nancy Noon, who injected most of the "pip" found in the evening's production in the part of Proserpine Garrett, the stenographer.

Alexander Martin was a "hit" as Mr. Burgess, Candida's father. The heavy roles were assumed by Forrest Dunton and Maude Beals, as Mr. and Mrs. James Morell, respectively. Dunton proved a consistent disciple of his great namesake, Forrest, and put much vim into his acting. Miss Beals likewise gave a forceful interpretation of her difficult part. The remaining character, that of Rev. Alexander Mill, a curate, was well taken by Frank Dudley.

Financially the production was hardly a success, for although the proceeds were announced to go toward the interscholastic track meet fund, the audience was neither large nor representative of the University. After all expenses are met, it is thought that the club will about break even, although a few lonely shekels may be turned over to the prepers' cause.

Although it was generally agreed that the play chosen was not one best suited to the particular dramatic abilities of the club members, every one present was more than satisfied with their initial appearance this year. A second production, the title of which has not yet been divulged, will be put on by the organization Junior Week-End.

Senior Banquet.

At a meeting of the men of the senior class, held this afternoon, it was decided to give the long-heralded senior banquet and smoker at the Osborn hotel, at 6:30 P. M., Tuesday, April 2. An assessment of seventy-five cents a head was also made, with the provision that all those wishing to participate in the festivities, must pay up before the date set for the banquet. Payments may be made to Jack Luckey, Ben Chandler, or Lyle Brown.

Edith Slusher was a week-end guest at the Theta house.

DRAWINGS ANNOUNCED FOR FROSH TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The drawings for the Freshman Tennis Tournament are announced as follows: Munley, a bye; Watson vs. Hurd, Bond vs. Dickson, title, a bye. The Watson?Munley match will be played Thursday at 4 P. M., and the Bond-Dickson affair the same day at 5 P. M. In the semi-final round the upper half will be settled Friday, at 4 P. M., and the lower half Saturday, at 10 A. M. The final match will be played Saturday afternoon, at 2 P. M. Last year "Prexy" Yaden won the Watts cup, which goes to the winner of the Frosh tournament for one year. The matches must be finished by Saturday afternoon, the weather permitting.

Are you interested in the Single Tax? If so, see Himes, 52 Dorm, for literature.

Wilma Young gave a luncheon at the Osburn Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Warner.

GIRLS TO PLAY U. OF W.

Tennis Tournament to be Held During Week-End With Washington University.

Co-ed Tennis assumed definite shape last evening, when the Girls' Tennis Club voted to play the representatives from the University of Washington, as a Junior Week-End attraction. Contracts will be signed with Manager Zednick as soon as possible, as the Washington Co-eds have already signified their desire to play their Southern rivals.

A team of five will be chosen to represent the varsity, following the tryouts for club membership, which occur the last week in April.

Three of the five will play in the tournament, the other two will be reserved in case of the inability of any of the first three to play.

The club will bring the Washington racquet widders here this spring, with the understanding of a return match next year. Sets will be played indoubles and singles, with a suitable trophy going to the winning three.

An endeavor to increase the membership of the Tennis Club to twenty will be made during the last week in April. To this end the officers of the club urge everyone to try out.

CARDS ADVERTISE MEET

Varsity Artist Portrays Events as They Will Really Happen In Indoor Contests.

Oscar H. Haugen is the artist that is responsible for the hand-painted cards which on Thursday morning will adorn the downtown streets. The cards contain a list of events and several aspects of the approaching encounter between Buford Jones, the pigmy of the Dormitory, and Woo Sun, the Chinese tenor, and also a number of cartoons representing the competitors in the obstacle races, trying to make fast time through barrels. The Indoor Meet, which during the last two years has degenerated into a rather unimportant event, is this year going to be restored to its former position as the most important intra-collegiate athletic event of the college year.

The Indoor Meet will take place in the gymnasium, next Friday evening, at 7:30. The admission will be 35 and 50 cents.

Miss Virginia Mesher, of Silverton, visited at the Chi Omega house over the week-end, being a guest at the Beta formal.

OREGON WILL DEFEND DEBATE CHAMPIONSHIP FRIDAY, MARCH 29TH

STANFORD AND WASHINGTON TEAMS TO MEET THE SAME EVENING

LOCAL DEBATE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Ray and Picket Remain Home, Spencer and Moores Go to Seattle to Meet U. of W.

Friday evening, March 29, at the Presbyterian Church, in Eugene, and at the University of Washington, in Seattle Oregon will defend her title as Debate Champions of the Pacific Coast against Stanford and Washington.

The present triangular peague dates its history from last year, when Stanford took the place of Idaho in the Northwest State University League. Oregon defeated both schools last year.

Leon Ray, who leads the affirmative team, which remains at home and debates Stanford University, has made the debating team four successive years. This year he won the alumni medal as the best debater in college. David Pickett, his colleague, recently broke into the lime light by winning the inter-collegiate oratorical contest against seven ambitious competitors. This is his first attempt as a college debator. Carlton Spencer, who leads the negative team at Seattle, is a junior, and has been prominent in forensics during his three years at Oregon. He holds the unique distinction of having won the alumni medal in his freshman year. Last year he added to his laurels by winning the inter-collegiate oratorical contest, which was held in Eugene. Ralph Moores, Spencer's colleague, is the ex-editor of the Emerald, who laid aside his pen this year and took up debate as a pastime.

Stanford will send two experienced men to Oregon, who are determined it is said to show this Northern institution what real debating is.

An excellent music program will be rendered to fill out the entertainment, one of the principal features of which is the notorious Freshman Trio. The time for debate has been so arranged that it will not conflict with the Y. M. C. A. banquet or any other college function. It will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, and every student in the University is urged to give it his patronage.

STODDARD-DAYTON PROVES MOST ATTRACTIVE CAR

"Isn't that a cute automobile? I'll take that one."

Out of the following conversation between Miss Alma Noon, a prominent Junior in the University, and a local automobile agent, an auto sale was made last week, which promises to go on record for spontaneous alacrity in deciding questions of high finance.

A cheque, signed by Miss Noon, for $1,550, was the material consideration involved, and the young lady is now the proud possessor of a smooth-running 1912 Stoddard-Dayton 30, with all the trimmings and incidentals, including top, wind shield, lamps, and a freshman chauffeur, to say nothing of freshes of lately developed admirers, who flock about Miss Nancy wherever she ceases for a moment to flit about in her "merry Oldsmobile."

ANOTHER "X. Y. Z." ARTICLE TO BE FEATURE OF MONTHLY

Another "X. Y. Z." article, along the same line as the last, but with a lot more spice, according to the Editor, will be the feature of the Oregon Monthly for April. Although the perpetrator of the last furor is still pursuing his way unmolested in college, Miss Degermark declared that a new George Ade is responsible for the coming article.

The Monthly will look after the interests of the University, however, by a number of articles dealing with different phases of the college and its work. It is the intention to make this issue of interest to all High Schools of the state, by presenting the work of the University in a popular style. An effort will be made to furnish extra copies of this issue to all High Schools of the state.

Dean Collins will contribute a burlesque on vacation occupations, while local literary people will furnish the balance of the Monthly.

THETA TEAM WINS CUP

Season Ends With Defeat of Gamma Delta Champs. Last Year's Champions

Kappa Alpha Theta won the Emerald basketball cup from the Gamma Delta Gammias by a score of 9-6. Both teams played a good, fast game, but the Thetas proved to be the better basket tossers.

Immediately after the game, Dr. Stuart presented the cup to the winning team.

The Theta line-up was: Forwards, Hazel Rader, Frances Adams; centers, Eleanor McClain, Ruth McClaren; guards, Gertie Taylor, Bess Cowden.

The Gamma Delta line-up was: Forwards, Florence Avery, Nell Banfield, Nita Bartlett; guards, Bess Riddell, Eva Roach; centers, Carin Degermark, Fairy Leach. Miss Muir, the Eugene High School coach, refereed the contest.

Edna and Clara Caufield, of Oregon City, were week-end guests at the Gamma Phi house.

Dean Goodman, '10, of Portland, visited the Beta house over the week-end.

WHO'S WHO IN OREGON

Column Devoted to Reviewing Career of Oregon Graduates Who Have and Are Making Good.

(In reply to the editorial written in the Oregonian some time ago, stating that Oregon had produced relatively few influential men for the State, the Emerald has decided to create a column, in which reviews of the careers of some of Oregon's graduates, who are making or have made "good," will be printed.)

One of the first graduates from Oregon, Judge R. S. Bean, of the class of '78, was recently appointed W. S. District Judge by the President. As a young attorney, Judge Bean practiced law for several years in Eugene. Later, he became District Judge and then Judge of the Supreme Court of Oregon. He has always been actively engaged in all the leading activities of the State, and as a graduate from Oregon, his interest in the University has never flagged. At present, he is President of its Board of Regents.

The class of '80, counts among its numbers several men who have attained no little prominence in their special lines of activity.

(Continued on page 5.)

SUNDIAL MEMORIAL WILL BE INSTALLED ON VARSITY CAMPUS

MR. AND MRS. F. P. MAYS, OF PORTLAND, PRESENT BEAUTIFUL MEMORIAL

INSTRUMENT TO BE CAMPUS LANDMARK

Sundial Made By London Firm and Will Be Mounted on Huge Granite Block.

A magnificent sundial which is a gift to the University of Oregon by Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Mays, of Portland, in memory of their son, Wilson Mays, ex-'09, who died about three years ago, has been presented to the University and will be installed on the campus and ready for the ceremony of unveiling by June 1, after which time it will be one of the most permanent and beautiful landmarks of the Oregon campus.

This will be the first sundial ever set up for a public institution in Oregon, although such dials are common at Princeton, Yale, Harvard, and other big Eastern Universities. In many instances they serve as memorials, such as will the Mays dial at the Oregon University.

The solar instrument was made by Francis Barker and Son, Ltd., scientific instrument makers of London, and their experts were said to have been engaged for nearly a year completing the elaborate and delicate engraving upon the surface. The design was selected by Mr. and Mrs. Mays and has been recently received in Portland, direct from the London makers.

It will be mounted on a solid block of flawless California granite weighing four tons, at a site to be selected on the campus in the near future. The dial itself is 22 inches in diameter and is made of gun metal, a material practically indestructible to the action of the weather.

On the dial face is shown the exact latitude and longitude of the Oregon University, and the dial itself was constructed especially to record the solar time at that point, which is more than eight hours slower than the Greenwich time. The solar time also differs from the standard watch time, and the exact difference will be shown on an equation table which is engraved on a plate of gun metal to be set in one of the faces of the granite base.

Two Latin mottos are engraved on the circumference of the dial, one around the outer portion, which translates "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth its handiwork." The second, engraved on an inner circumference, is a Latin verse by Cowper, which, translated, reads: "How slowly come, how swiftly pass the hours; he who would seize them, let him be patient, but watchful." Between two scrolls below the lower point of the scromon is inscribed, "In memory of Wilson Pierce Mays; 1884-1910."

The recent good weather has brought out the embryo Mathewsons and Wagners for the preliminary limbering up. Bill Hayward's "hopes" have also donned abbreviated garments to bask in the sunshine. Both squads look like championship possibilities.

Prof. Dunn post-pones lecture on Abbey pictures on quest of Holy Grail as seen in Boston public library to one week from Wednesday.