Eller Spieler Pillbox Gives Advice on All Subjects from Love to Poison Oak.

Q. Having suffered for some time with an attack of poison oak, I have been physically and facially unable to call forth even a faint smile at Professor Barker's mirth provokers. I fear the hook. What shall I do to avert this calamity?—L. A. Holden.

A. Your position is indeed a sad one. We can suggest a remedy for the "oak." However, in the other case you will simply have to face the music. I am afraid that you are beyond human aid.—Editor.

Q. Having received what is vulgarly termed the "gaff hook" from several prominent co-eds, I am appealing to you, dear editor, for advice. I am really a handsome boy, and besides, you know, I am prominent in student affairs, being none the less than student manager of the boy's ball team, and also cheer leader.—Constant Reader.

A. Personal appearance is first requisite with the fair ones. However, in your case we will have to use other means. Purchase a Carson's Guide to good conversation, and try to become a vocal sprinter.—Editor.

Q. Being a stranger in the city, I would like to be directed to a hospital.—X. Y. Z.

A. Go tell Sap Latourette or Jimmy Roberts who you are, and you will find one.

Q. Can you advise me how to properly heat and ventilate a basement room? Several of the male members of my classes seem to be overcome with an irresistible desire for sleep.—F. L. Barker.

A. Are you sure that the fault lies in the heating and ventilation? Suggest that they sleep at night.

POSTMASTER BAWLS UP QUEENER'S CAMPAIGN

Through a fortuitous juxtaposition of circumstances, the Eugene postal service has succeeded in permanently queering Jack Shattuck with the Gamma Phi. A delicately scented, lavender tinted envelope, addressed to "Dusty," was the weapon used by the local postoffice.

The letter was unfortunately placed in the Gamma Phi box and was discovered at 806 Alder yesterday by Mr. Shattuck in one of his perennial calls. The recipient was so unmindful of satisfying the natural curiosity of the Gamma Phis, as to refuse to read the missive aloud. He retired instead to the neutral ground of the waiting station across the street, where he perused his tender apostle in quiet.
