

PROF. DUNN IMPROVES UPON ROMAN SATIRIST

Professor Dunn Modernizes Satire Which Is Well Received—President Campbell Talks.

In his assembly address this morning on the subject, "From Puckin-head to Godhead," Professor Dunn modernized one of the satires of Seneca with telling effect. The original satire deals largely with the imbecility of the Emperor Claudius, but as brought out by the lecturer, the subject was more intimately connected with the Oregon Supreme Court and the decision handed down yesterday in the University referendum case.

Following Professor Dunn's dissertation, President Campbell made a few remarks on the present situation at Oregon, and showed that although affairs do not seem very promising just now, the school is in reality in no worse plight than it has been in the two preceding years.

He deplored the penury of the state, which allows city high schools to surpass, in buildings and equipments, the State University itself, and advocated a permanent maintenance fund for higher education. A closer co-operation between the people of the state and higher education, he said, is necessary.

Mr. Campbell counseled the use of a "stiff upper lip," and cited the victories of the University in the two referendums for appropriations which have in past years been brought before the people, as examples of what organized work by Oregon students and alumni may accomplish.

Faculty Colloquium Meets.

Tuesday evening, the regular monthly Faculty Colloquium met in McClure Hall. Prof. Young was to have spoken on means of University extension work, but in the light of recent events, he dealt with the need of a University education as a preliminary step to the practice of law. The need of making the people realize the necessity of the State University as a part of the body politic, and that the increasing complexities of human relationships calls for a finer sense of justice, were emphasized.

John Kelly Leaves College.

John Kelly, 12, left Eugene this morning for Klamath Falls, where he will take an engineering position in the employ of the Clarke-Heney Construction Company. By taking special examinations John is reported to have finished his senior year's work, attained the requisite hours to graduate, and holds the distinction of being the last senior in the department of mechanical engineering to be turned out at Oregon, the department having been removed to Corvallis two years ago.

The April number of the Oregon Monthly will be devoted to Debate, Oratory, Music, and Dramatics. A record of the year's work in these activities will be given, as well as interesting special articles.

The Who's Who column will be especially thrilling this month, for it will contain the life history of Oregon's actors, musicians, debaters, and orators.

has fought since he assumed office. The former two were decided in favor of the University by a good majority and, in the present crises, the people of Oregon will undoubtedly come to the support of the State University, as they always have in the past.

Regents to Decide Action.

At the next meeting of the Board of Regents, managers will be appointed and plans will be adopted for the campaign which the University will wage in the fall elections, and with the active and united support of the Student Body and the Alumni behind the campaign, a favorable outcome can undoubtedly be hoped for.
