LET THEM MIX

At both the University of Washington and Whitman College the two underclasses have just indulged in somewhat protracted class fights.

At Oregon the upperclasses have control of the situation and the spirit that leads to these outbreaks, and sometimes to genuine hazing, is provided with an effective outlet at the annual underclass mix.

Junior President Stannard and his class mix committee should arrange to incorporate in this mix every legitimate test of strength between the two classes.

The sophomore recalls "persecutions" endured last year and itches to pass them on to the unsuspecting frosh, and the latter, fresh from prep school honors, is not slow to retaliate. The sooner they get it all out of their systems, the better for everyone concerned.

Give them plenty of rope. Neither hazing nor protracted class scuffles have any proper place on the Oregon campus, but a lady-like mix would defeat its own purpose.

STUDENT RENDEZVOUS OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

Among the surprises in store for the returning student is the new place of amusement which is soon to be opened by Paul Bond, '08, on the mill race, opposite Villard hall. The resort at present consists of a well arranged structure situated on the very edge of the race, and representing an outlay of approximately $700. Mr. Bond has removed his canoes from their old moorings back of the Kappa Sigma house and installed them in the lower story of the building, where some 35 canoes can be accommodated.

The upper story is to be used as a restaurant, where the hungry student can secure anything from a Dutch lunch at noon to a table d'hote dinner on Sundays. A drawing card of special interest is the fact that provision is being made for dancing after certain hours. Mr. Bond's wife, a former Oregon student, will preside over the dining-room service. A cigar and candy stand is being installed for the special benefit of the male student. By spring, the owner hopes to have completed accommodations for swimmers, including a diving-board, bath house, and chute. The opening of this new resort is scheduled for Saturday night.

Y. M. C. A. BUREAU HELPS INDUSTRIOUS STUDENTS

The Y. M. C. A. Employment Bureau has proved of service to many of the new students who are working their way through college. So far, positions filled with university students for the whole year have numbered fourteen, the cash saving value of which amounts to $185.00. Most of these positions are for board or room, although some are for both. The odd jobs filled have been eighteen, and their value to those securing them has been $57.00.

Cut Price for Oregon Made by Manager.

After the publication of nearly 150 more copies than any previous Oregon, there are but 39 1913 year books remaining. Over 400 copies were sold to students alone.

As a means of publicity throughout the state, the regents of the University bought 75 copies to send to all high schools in the state. The alumni and friends of the University have bought Oregonas to the extent of $300.

The few remaining copies, the manager will sell at a special reduction price of $1.50, in order to dispose of every Oregon by next week. They will be on sale at the Book Exchange.

Proofreaders—The Emerald wants two students to do proof reading. A chance to learn the business. College credit in journalism may be granted.

HOUCK PROVES SENSATION IN MAJOR LEAGUE BALL

Byron Houck, ex-'14, and mainstay of the Varsity pitching staff during the season of 1911, is now holding down a similar position on Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. After completing his first year at the University of Oregon, Houck was signed up by the Spokane team. He proved to be such a wonder with this team, that at the end of the season, he was drafted by the Philadelphia champions, where he has been one of the younger men during the present year. Last Saturday, Houck engaged in a pitching battle with the veteran twirler, Ed Walsh, of the Chicago club, and although his team lost, it was only by a 1 to 0 score. It was due to unsteady support by his teammates.
