HAVE YOU SUBSCRIBED?

In spite of the fact that the Emerald has grown from a semi-weekly to a tri-weekly, with a corresponding increase in reading matter and efficiency of news service, its circulation on the campus is still nearly 100 copies short of what it was at this time last year.

Only about half of the members of fraternities and clubs have subscribed, the manager says, and in some of the sororities the proportion is even smaller. Non-fraternity students have subscribed more generally, but there are many of these who are still not on the lists.

If the Emerald is to fill its proper place as the representative organ of the students of the University it must have the active support of every man and woman on the campus.

The fundamental manifestation of your interest and aid is the presence of your name on the list of subscribers.

PRES. HOMAN SPEAKS TERSELY TO Y. M. C. A.

President Homan, of Willamette University, opened the Y. M. C. A. work for the year, Thursday evening, with an address, which dwelt with the "Well Educated Man."

Following a vocal solo by John Black, President Homan immediately launched into his subject.

His informal talk contained many epigrammatic expressions, his first being, that to be educated "an all-round glimpse of knowledge" is necessary. Continuing, he spoke of the place of the Bible in the world's literature, and that its claim of Divine origin is alone enough to make valid its claim for recognition.

President Homan claimed that the Bible is the best and only true source of world vision, and that those who criticize the Church and Bible, usually know nothing of either. "A man can not be a man," he said, "and be ignorant of the Scriptures."

In conclusion he quoted Daniel Webster, who, in reply to the question as to what was the greatest thought that ever occupied the human mind, declared, "A man's individual responsibility to God."

PROFESSORS EFFECT A TRADE IN CLASS ROOMS

Several changes in the location of class and lecture rooms have recently occurred in the University, due in the first place to Dr. Conklin's demand for a psychology laboratory.

In response to this demand, the publicity department has been moved from McClure hall to what was formerly the girl's rest room in Deady hall, forcing the former inhabitants to make their headquarters in the women's gymnasium. Professor Conklin will preempt the room left vacant by the publicity staff.

Fay Clark, '12, is teaching at Vale, Oregon.

F. E. Dunton, '12, is head of the physics department in the new Lake View high school.

SOPHOMORES WIN IN LOWER CLASS FIGHT

line held like the proverbial stone wall.

Frosh Nearly Take Tug-of-War.

The final clash of the day's program was announced after the pushball contest had been declared a draw, and two picked teams of ten men each lined up on opposite sides of the campus duckpond to test the class supremacy in a tug-of-war. Right here it should be mentioned that several disinterested upperclassmen had turned water into the artificial lake until the previous level was raised some 20 inches. After several minutes of pulling, the Freshmen took a new interest in life and for an instant things looked bad for the older men. Eventually, however, the Sophomores showed a burst of speed, which resulted in the final humiliation of their antagonists, Frank Lewis being the first to be immersed in the lake.

Kidnapping Plans Succeed.

The surprise of the afternoon, however, was the kidnapping of Prosser, president of the Frosh class. The plan of the Sophs had been carefully laid and proved one of the best coups in college annals. Prosser, under pretext of lending his weighty opinion to the officials concerning the management of the affair, was summoned to the field. The Frosh in the grandstand cast proud glances in Prosser's direction, as he rubbed elbows with the mighty upperclassmen and alumni. In the meantime the Sophomore patrolwagon was summoned for the ostensible arrest of Hendricks and Howard, the would-be fun makers of the Soph class.

During the fight with the police, the wagon pulled up close to Prosser and the wrangling officials. Howard and Hendricks were loaded aboard. Then suddenly the wagon was headed for the gate, the unsuspecting Prosser unwillingly tossed into the wagon and the horses whipped into a run. The atrocity of the act created momentarily consternation among the Frosh in the grandstand and allowed the wagon to get under full headway. About the time the wagon passed through the gate, the infants woke up and gave pursuit.

Sophs Check Pursuit.

The Sophs on the ground immediately checked this by engaging with the pursuers in a free for all, giving the field police ample time to close and bar the gates. Prosser was taken away and locked in the Morgan barn on Eleventh street, but escaped in time to be on the side lines for the pushball contest.

THE FLORSHEIM SHOE For the man who cares

You College Men and Women realize that we live in an age of specialization. The successful business or professional man of today is the Specialist, the—man who concentrates all his energies for one purpose. If you were sick and found it necessary to have an operation performed, you wouldn't call on a veterinary surgeon to perform it, even though he happened to be the best in his line. Certainly not.
