LAW SCHOOL OPENS WITH VARSITY SONG

LARGE ENROLLMENT MARKS OPENING DAY

Presence of Former Varsity Men Arouses Spirit Among Young Blackstones.

The University of Oregon Law School opened Monday night with an increase of students over previous years. Secretary Gillard has not given out the exact per cent of increase, as registration is still going on, but says that the increase will be a substantial omen, especially in the Freshman class.

The Central building, where the school is situated, presented a gay appearance the night of the opening. The halls were crowded with old and new "laws," who proceeded to get acquainted in noisy and enthusiastic manner. Oregon yells were lustily sounded by those who knew them and an impromptu University Glee Club annex, consisting of Burns Powell, first tenor, Beauty Robison, second tenor, leader and manager, Sap Latourette, first bass, Ichy Ogden, second bass, made itself generally obnoxious in plaintive renditions of Oregon hymns. If there were any among the Freshmen class who imagined they were entering a dead school, the idea was dispelled this first evening, for the spirit evidenced was equal to that of the undergraduate school at its best.

Among the plans for this fall is one to organize a public speaking class, in which the members will be primed with arguments in favor of the passage of the University initiative bill and then be sent out over the city, soap box under arm, to speak from the curb to the voters of Portland in the interests of the University. There are a number of good orators in the law student body, and Secretary Gillard through them hopes to be able to influence the Portland vote materially.

There are about 20 or 25 old Oregon men taking law courses this year, among whom are Ben Wagner, Chas. Robinson, Phil Hammond, Heine Bauer, Sap Latourette, Melvin Ogden, Martin Hawkins, Austin Flegel, I. P. McQuirk, Dick Slate Mervin Rankin and Burns Powell.

APPENDICITIS BUG HAS NOTHING ON DEAN COLLINS

Dean Collins, '11, who has been in the hospital for some time, is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis, and expects soon to be back at his position on the Oregonian staff. His improvement has rendered him doubly facetious, as evidenced by recent outbreaks of "poetry" in the Oregonian.

ABLE STAFF PRESIDES OVER OREGON MUSIC

CARL V. LACHMUND HEADS DEPARTMENT

Capable Assistants In Charge of Instruction—Orchestra is Planned.

Never before in the history of the University has the Music Department been so well organized and handled by such a competent list of instructors as at present.

The department has been organized for the year as follows: Director and instructor in piano, Mr. Carl V. Lachmund, associate director, Miss Avis Benton. At the head of the voice department is Miss Eve Stinson, with Lila Prosser assisting. The violin work is conducted by Miss Winifred Forbes, and the harmony by Mr. Lachmund, Master David Campbell, and Miss Forbes. Assisting in the piano work are David Campbell, the Misses Nell Murphey, Alberta Campbell, Anna Watkins, Lila Prosser, and Mrs. M. H. Douglass. Miss Morgan has taken a year's leave of absence, her place being taken by Mr. Lachmund and Miss Benton.

The new instructors are all people of considerable experience and high recommendations. Mr. Lachmund was formerly professor at the Schwenka Conservatory in Berlin, and for 16 years directed the Lachmund Conservatory of Music in New York.

Miss Winifred Forbes was a graduate of the American Conservatory in Chicago, and studied for a number of years with Leopold Kramer, concertmeister of the Thomas orchestra of that city. She has been highly recommended by Adolph Weidig, a Chicago musician.

Miss Avis Benton made a study of the piano at Berlin, and for several years was a pupil of Mr. Lachmund in New York city. Later she taught in the Lachmund Conservatory.

COURSE IN DRAMATIC ART ATTRACTS VARSITY PLAYERS

Mr. A. F. Reddie announces a new course in dramatic interpretation. The course is designed to give training in dramatic art, and will be made as practical as possible.

Among the local spotlight artists who have already enrolled in the course are Carlton Spencer, Janet Young, Agnes Campbell, and Jerry Martin.

Plans are being made to produce several plays during the year at the Eugene theatre, the proceeds to go to the student body treasury.

Frances Adams, ex-'14, and Gertie Taylor, ex-'15, have returned to their homes, after having spent two weeks with their Kappa Alpha Theta sisters.
