

DOES MORE FOR YOUR MONEY THAN ANY SHOP IN TOWN

Nobody can do better repairing, or keep shoes cleaner, than I can. Most people are wise enough to know that money saved, is money earned. When you bring your repair work to me, you will realize the economy of the best. My prices are reasonable. I'll make your shoes last longer than the other fellow, and they will look better, too.

CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION TO MEET IN PORTLAND

The Northwestern Classical Association will have its third annual meeting in Portland during the Friday and Saturday of the Thanksgiving holidays. They will be the guest of Reed Institute.

Professor F. S. Dunn, President of the organization, will deliver the principle address, entitled, "Portraits of Roman Emperors From Historical Novels," on Friday evening.

Professor Straub is also a member from Eugene, who will attend. The election of officers for the ensuing year will take place at this time.

All teachers of or those interested in the classics, are eligible to membership of the organization. At present Oregon and Washington alone are represented in this association, although Idaho may be admitted at the coming meeting.

Miss Pearl Horner is spending the week-end in Corvallis.

President Hofer, of the State Press Association, Picks College Town for Meeting.

A meeting of the State Press Association will be held in Eugene soon in connection with the department of Journalism, in the University. President E. Hofer, of Salem, of the association, has written Professor Allen saying, "I am planning holding a district meeting of newspaper men at Eugene soon, when Secretary Bates and I will be with you. Our plan is to select some central place and invite the newspaper men for 25 to 50 miles around to come together, get acquainted and have some addresses on journalism, increase the membership of our state organization, and promote better ideals of journalism. We would be glad to hold such a conference in connection with your department, if it is agreeable."

The State Press Association is composed of newspaper men from all over the state, and is particularly strong in the smaller towns and cities. In their local, district, and state meeting, all kinds of matters of interest to their work are discussed and prominent speakers are secure to make addresses. Professor Allen thinks this meeting, in conjunction with the journalistic classes, too good a chance to let pass and has written Mr. Hofer, telling him the plan is entirely agreeable to him, and assuring him that every facility will be used to bring about a successful convention.

Two of Ames College football stars are out of the game with broken arms. Juhl, the giant lineman, and Burge, the premier kicker of the Missouri Valley, were the unlucky ones.

The law students of the University of California are planning to issue a law review. If the plan is carried out, the review will be the first judicial paper published by a law school west of the Mississippi.

East Indian is Editor of a Pamphlet Which is Written for the Countrymen.

Satya Deva, a full blooded East Indian, who attended the University four years ago, as a special student in the economic department, has sent the editor of the Emerald a pamphlet, which he has recently written in his native tongue, for review.

Mr. Deva was thoughtful enough to translate the title page. It reads: "The Self Supporting Students of America, written and published by Satya Deva, author of The American Guide, Life in America, The Wonderful Bell, and National Education." The Monograph, he explains, is the fourth of the Satya Granth Mala Series, all of which are being written by himself.

From English words that are scattered through the book, the text evidently deals with the efforts of American students to gain a livelihood while attending the Universities through the means of employment bureaus and our system of credit. The text is in the form of conversation, while the scene of the student struggle is laid on the Pacific slope, the words Columbia river and Redlands appearing frequently.

Mr. Deva attended the University one year, supporting himself while taking special work in Sociology and Economics. He was a brilliant student, despite his lack of knowledge of the English language. Later he attended the University of Washington, where he found more of his countrymen. From Washington he went to an eastern institution.

Mr. Deva termed himself a "Patriot," having for his purpose the freeing of his countrymen from the English rule. It was with this in mind that he traveled extensively throughout the United States.

He has dedicated the pamphlet "To my American Friends. Noble examples inspired me, whose kind words encouraged me in fighting out the battles of my student career in the United States of America."
