

7 TO 0 OREGON'S FATE

the leather to the five yard line, Cook added one yard, but an uncompleted forward pass over the line gave the ball to Pullman. This was Oregon's best chance to score, but Kienholtz punted the ball from the W. S. C. 15 yard line. Anunsen ran back 15 yards, but the gain went for naught, as the team was penalized 15 yards.

Briedwell in three attempts made 15 yards, but Pullman took the ball when a forward pass went out of bounds. Cornell took Walker's place, the Captain replacing Briedwell.

Kienholtz then made his best kick, sending the oval 35 yards, which Cornell returned 15. Walker and Cornell cost the Oregon team 26 yards at this point. Bradshaw kicked 30 yards, Kienholtz returning it ten.

Two Pullman gains were offset by a five yard penalty for offside play. Oregon was guilty of interfering with an Aggie forward pass, and was penalized 15 yards. Pullman could not gain in a couple of downs, so the ball went to Oregon on their own 40 yard line. Parsons gained five, but Walker was thrown back for a similar distance. Bradshaw again punted 20.

Kienholtz sent a spiral for 35 yards, but Parsons made nothing as the third half ended, the ball being in Oregon's possession on their 19 yard line.

Cornell Plays Sensationally.

After a minute's rest the teams resumed play for the third quarter. Parsons and Walker ambled for five yards, but Bradshaw was sent back on a fake kick for the same distance. The oval went to Pullman on the Oregon 23 yard line. Coulter and Foster annexed eight yards, but Caulfield nailed the next play for loss of one yard. Foster failed to execute a place kick from the 15 yard line. Cornell skirted the end for four yards, then made the only spectacular play of the afternoon, when he tore off 24 yards on a fake kick.

Caulfield Rips Up W. S. C. Line.

This gave Oregon heart, for Parsons, Grout, Walker, and Cornell were good for 15 yards, but the advance was short lived, for George Harter caught a forward pass, which gave the ball to the W. S. C. aggregation on their 30 yard line. Caulfield broke through again and spoiled a play, but the Pullmanites responded with a pass which gave them eight yards.

Caulfield outplayed Harter again, and stopped another play before it was started. On the third down, Oregon was penalized for holding. Pullman alternated substantial gains with losses, but finally punted, which gave the ball to Oregon on their 20 yard line.

Varsity Kicks at a Decision.

The Oregon team was thrown back nine yards, before Bradshaw punted 30. After an exchange of kicks, Parsons and Cornell made 23 yards on end runs. Fenton replaced Anunsen at end. Cornell found a way around the end again for 20 yards in two attempts. Oregon at last worked a forward pass, Walker to Bradshaw, for nine yards. A forward pass to Fenton from Cornell was unsuccessful. This play caused a wrangle which delayed the game for ten minutes. The dispute arose over the pass received by Fenton, which the officials declared touched the ground.

Pullman recovered the ball on a fumble, Kienholtz punted 38 yards, and the agony was over. Final score, Washington State College 7; University of Oregon 0.
