

HARD GAME EXPECTED BY DEPARTED TEAM

Coaches and Players Expect Close Contest and Small Score in Saturday's Tassele.

The coaches and trainers of the Oregon football team, which left this morning for the game with Washington, while not confident of the outcome of Saturday's contest, look forward to a hard rub with the Northerners and expect to put a close score on record whichever way the game is decided.

Head Coach Louis Pinkham is strictly non-committal. He says, "It is impossible to estimate Washington's strength by the game with O. A. C. last Saturday. I can't say that we expect to win, but we stand a good chance."

Gordon Moores, "Pink's" assistant in the coaching game, is more confident. He said, "Oregon is in a better position to win from Washington this year, than at any other time during the last four seasons."

Bill Main, ex-varsity star, predicts a close game. He says, "I can't prophesy that we will win, but I can assure you that Washington will have the hardest rub they have had in years."

"The team is in perfect physical condition," said Trainer Bill Hayward, "and I do not expect any time to be taken out in next Saturday's game on account of injuries."

"Either win or lose, every man on the Oregon team will fight to the finish, and Washington will be compelled to work for every yard made." So says Captain Dean Walker.

Ed Bailey, Oregon's veteran tackle, is fairly confident of a victory. He says, "Our line is just as good and our backfield stronger than Washington's. If we can hold them at first, we will win, although I expect to see them put up a better game than they did against O. A. C. last Saturday."

DOWN WITH ALCOHOL SAYS MISS TINGLING

Assembly Speaker Credits Much of World's Suffering to Use of Liquor.

"Are you choosing trinkets, or weapons,—do you think more of good times or of things worth while?" asked Miss Christine I. Tingling, in her address at Assembly hour yesterday. Miss Tingling, who is lecturing in the interests of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was formerly of Liverpool, England, where she was engaged in the same work. In her address Miss Tingling represented the temperance organization as an aggressive association, laboring for the annihilation of a great evil—the use of alcohol. She called those actively interested in this endeavor, "the heroes of the 20th century."

Charts, representing experiments and statistics, performed and compiled by great authorities, were introduced into the address to prove the lecturer's assertion that "even the moderate use of strong drink is injurious." Far the greatest percentage of crime, needless deaths, lunacy, and epilepsy, in the world today, were attributed to the use of alcohol; and efficiency tests were used to prove the evil of its use.

Miss Tingling concluded her address by saying: "May every young man and woman find a place among the heroes of the twentieth century."

have spent at the University, and these have done very acceptable work, but I do think that every student, whether an athlete or not, should be notified when his work is unsatisfactory and a chance given him to make good. I am not, however, in favor of the idea of special leniency to football men, for if the University stands for anything, it must keep up its standards of scholarship."

Dr. Barnett is of the opinion that the Faculty should keep still as to the outside criticisms of the posting system. "It isn't a matter," he says, "that we need to discuss."
