IMMIGRATION MAY BE TRI-STATE QUESTION

Debate Coach Prescott Favorable—Stanford's Choice of Arbitration Not Liked.

The immigration question will undoubtedly be the question for debate this year, according to Professor R. W. Prescott, debate coach of the University. Professor Prescott bases his prediction on the fact that Oregon favors immigration first, arbitration second, and single tax third; Stanford favors arbitration first, single tax second, and immigration third; while Washington has made no choice as yet. But according to Graduate Manager Arthur Geary, who has just returned from Seattle, Washington is strongly opposed to arbitration and will vote either for immigration or single tax. Since this is the case, the question is sure to be immigration, for Washington's vote for single tax would leave the matter a tie, which would be decided by the Secretary of the League at Seattle in favor of immigration, since he could not vote for his own question, and since he is irrevocably opposed to Stanford's subject of arbitration.

MAJORS CHOOSE THESES

Professor Schafer Announces Titles of Research Undertaken by History Students.

Professor Joseph Schafer, of the history department, announced the subjects chosen by his Senior majors for theses this year. Professor Schafer was one of the two professors to demand theses from their majors.

Professor Schafer, in speaking of this subject, said, "I think the most interesting subject chosen so far, was chosen by Ralph Cake. His subject is 'The History of the Governorship in Oregon since 1896.' We have had three Democratic Governors in a Republican state and this fact affords very interesting research work."

Other subjects that have been chosen by other Seniors who are majoring in the history department, are: Lena Newton, 'The Public Services of General Joseph Lane'; Helen Ramage, 'Immigration to Oregon Since 1880'; Pearl Horner, 'The Remaining Indians of the Oregon Tribes. A Study of Present Conditions'; Elizabeth Wagner, 'The Social and Economic Evolution of the Medford Fruit Growing Community'; Faye Ball, 'A Study of the Plays and Games of Oregon Indians.'

NO DANCE, SAYS COMMITTEE BAND GOES TO ALBANY

Rumors abroad today on the campus to the effect that the Harvest Dance would not be postponed, but would be held after the excursion train returned from Albany, were set at rest this afternoon, when the Executive Committee met formally and decided to postpone the dance to some date between the Christmas holidays and examinations.

The other informal dance that was to be held for the benefit of the football team before the holidays was also deemed inexpedient on account of the Sophomore dance coming December 12.

It was also decided to pay the expense of the band to Albany for the game.

Officials of Saturday's game will be The officials of the game will be George Varnell, of Spokane, referee, Victor Place, of Seattle, umpire, and C. H. Smith, of Portland, head linesman.
