

BETH REAH ELIMINATED

Oregon Club Narrows Race for Cup by Defeating Contenders With 28-9 Score

(By Nell Hemenway.)

Since the Beth Reah-Oregon Club game yesterday afternoon, resulting in defeat for Beth Reah by a score of 28 to 9, Kappa Alpha Theta, Lambda Rho and Gamma Delta Gamma remain in the running for the Hayward cup.

Yesterday's game was close in the first half, at the end of which the score stood 10 to 9 in favor of the Oregon Club. In the second half the Oregon Club girls walked away with the score, rolling up a total of 28 points and blanking Beth Reah in that half.

The most spectacular feature of the game was the remarkable basket throwing of Vera Moffat, whose unerring aim was responsible for most of the Oregon Club's success. She threw a number of pretty baskets from far out on the floor, which slipped into the basket neatly and called forth applause from the co-ed fans.

Louis McCoy, '08, is now working for the General Electric Company at Nugget Creek, near Treadwell, Alaska. In a letter to Professor Converse, McCoy says that the sun rises there at 10 and sets at 3:30 at this time of the year, and that dog teams are used to deliver milk and laundry.

VARSITY HAS RECORD IN BATTLES WITH AGGIES

In 1906, Oregon was doped to win, but a muddy field at Corvallis helped to keep the lemon and yellow from scoring.

1907 A Hard Luck Year

The season of 1907 saw the heart rending defeat on Kincaid Field, due to the kicking of Wolfe. The game was a hard luck story for Oregon. Pinkham made a touchdown by falling on a pass for all fumble behind the goal line. But the officials refused the score on a technicality, "because the ball had touched a spectator before Pinkham fell on it." This technicality has never been repeated in football history. "Khaki" Moulten, the star place-kicker of the coast, had three good chances for field goals, but missed all of them.

Oregon Wins Last Three Battles

In 1908, Oregon upset the three to one dope again and won from the Aggies in Portland by an 8 to 0 score. Captain Moulten's field goals were responsible for the victory.

Again in 1909, things looked favorable for O. A. C. The Aggies had it all their own way until in the middle of the second half, when Sap Latour-ette got away for the touchdown which took the pep out of O. A. C. Chueh Taylor made the other touchdown of this game.

The 1910 season was successful for the football team, but the outcome of the other bouts is not to be found in the records. Oregon scored on a touchdown by Walker and two place-kicks by Bill Main.
