PRESCOTT ANNOUNCES ANNUAL DEBATE FOR SOPHS AND FRESHMEN

SILVER TROPHY CUP OFFERED TO WINNING CLASS

COACH WOULD RECRUIT DEBATING RANKS

Money Prize Also in Line—Question for Triangular League is Settled by Oregon.

An annual Freshman-Sophomore inter-class debate is to be inaugurated at the University, the debate to take place in May of each year. A silver cup will be given to the winning class each time, to be held by that class for one year. Debate Coach Robert Prescott, who made this announcement yesterday, is making an effort for the introduction of a standing prize, of from fifty to one hundred dollars, to be presented to the winning debaters.

This inter-class debate will begin in May of 1913, and preparation will begin after a challenge by one of the present classes to the other, for a debate at this time. The method of choosing the question has not yet been decided, but will be announced soon. The classes will choose their own representatives.

Concerning this new institution, Mr. Prescott says: "This is a plan to get the students interested in debate, and to make it as much of a student activity as football or track. We will lose all our old debaters next semester, and we must have new material for subsequent years. Howard Zimmerman, Carlton Spencer, Burleigh Cash and David Pickett will be graduated, and Peter Crockett will enter the Law School."

The money prize will probably be donated by the Oregon State Bar Association, while the cup, Mr. Prescott intends to secure through private subscription.

Submit Wording of Question.

The receipt of a telegram from the manager of debate at the University of Washington indicates that Oregon's choice of immigration as the question for debate has been accepted. A meeting of the Debate Council was held last evening and the following question was formulated to be sent to Washington and Stanford for ratification: Resolved,—That our general policy regulating Oriental immigration should be extended by the United States to the Slavic, Hellenic, and Roman races of Southern and Eastern Europe.

Since the first try-out will take place December 13, Robert Prescott, debate coach, states that all who contemplate entering the debate try-outs, should hand in their names to him before Wednesday noon.

INFANT PORKERS SHARE DEFEAT METED TO O. A. C.

Three "Rooters" Telescoped in Rear End Collision by Saturday's S. P. Special

Three "rooters" were killed in a rear end collision on the Southern Pacific line about six miles south of Albany at 1:45 Saturday afternoon. The accident was witnessed by several Oregon students riding on the engine of the excursion train carrying the crowd to the O. A. C. game in Albany.

Just before the special reached Tangent, three small pigs scampered onto the track and headed toward Albany. The noise of the approaching train and a warning blast of the whistle only succeeded in increasing their speed. The "rooters" seemed imbibed with the "Oregon Spirit" in their intense desire to reach the scene of the great game, but the race was soon brought to an abrupt end by the cow catcher of the engine.

The accident caused a short delay while the debris was being removed from the track, and then the train proceeded on its way, with only a poor farmer to mourn the death of three "perfectly good" pigs.

GEARY EXPECTS $1800

Graduate Manager Arthur Geary went to Albany this morning to make final settlement with the Oregon Agricultural authorities, and William Eagles, representing the Albany merchants, for the division of the receipts of the O. A. C. game in Albany last Saturday.

Geary expects to clear $1,800 from this game. He said this morning: "I don't know yet just what the University's share of the receipts will be, but will know definitely tomorrow. Our portion will clear up the deficits of all other games of the season, and will probably leave a balance of two hundred dollars to turn into the Student Body fund at the end of the season."

THE SAGE OF PODUNK VISITS THE CAMPUS

How-do-you-do?

No, I didn't flunk out; I accepted a position. Its customary, you know.

Well, we left the Agricultural College the O anyway.

It is not a question of how many women at the University can vote, it's a question of how many will acknowledge they are twenty-one.

The guy that says the world owes him a living, doesn't make even a good collector.

A fool and his money are soon parted, but many of us are willing to be fools in order to experience the joys of parting.

Some people make it evident, that if we accepted them at their own estimation, we'd have to look at them with a smoked telescope.

—Sage of Podunk, '14.

According to an investigation at Iowa, it has been found that only one out of every eleven college engagements results in marriage.

O. A. C. VICTORY AND M. A. A. C. UNCERTAINTY FURNISH FOOD FOR THOUGHT TO GRIDIRON FANS

FIRST FIVE MINUTES OF PLAY DECIDE O. A. C. GAME

Oregon Coach Develop an Eleven Star Team—Seventeen Players Are Eligible for "O's."

(By Jimmie Roberts.)

The big game has been re-played hundreds of times since Saturday and its details and fine points have been discussed often enough that everybody is thoroughly familiar with them. We won because we outplayed them. The Oregon team went on the field to win and not to try to hold the score down and stem a rout, and they would not be denied the privilege of adding another victory to the list. When Oregon fumbled the first kick-off and O. A. C. took the ball and backed the Varsity's "weak line" three times without gaining an inch, it marked the beginning of the end. Oregon practically won the game there and then.

The Oregon team can boast of no individual stars because there were eleven of them. Parsons gained the ground for Oregon because the line-men opened the holes and his interference helped clear the way. Sam Cook stood behind the line and backed it up so that it could not give way. Captain Walker ran some of the prettiest interference ever seen in the Northwest, besides his stellar defensive work and forward passing, and Cornell ran the team like a veteran. The work of Caulfield, Penton, Pariss, Bailey, and Holden, in the line needs no commenting on. The O. A. C. backfield could not dent it, and when Oregon shot a play through the line, there was usually a hole for the runner to slip through to the secondary defense. Bradshaw and Hall at the ends kept the Aggie backs from skirting the wings of the Oregon defense and helped Bailey and Holden open up the O. A. C. line for the fleetfooted Parsons to go through. Parsons probably played the most spectacular game for Oregon, because he was given the help a back needs to gain ground.

The 1912 season is a memory as far as inter-collegiate football is concerned, only the game with the club remaining. Oregon lost three conference games and won two, but the winning of Saturday's game was as good as winning four and being denied the privilege of meeting O. A. C.

CARRIERS REPLACED BY BIRDS OF ILL OMEN

Homing Pigeons Bearing News of Goose Eggs Not Liked by Aggie "Stay at Homes."

Wells Fargo expressman No. 2, night shift, of the Corvallis office, is the teller of one of those tales, unique and peculiar, which follow in the wake of things of magnitude and moment.

One of the stunts of the Aggie rooters during the Oregon-O. A. C. game of last Saturday was to release from their midst, while assembled in the center of the field, a band of homing pigeons, each decorated with orange and black streamers.

Following this event the Corvallis agent received a small square box bearing the label "Game—Rush," and directed to "That O. A. C. Yell Leader." Below was the inscription, "Take Back Your Ducks, We Can't Use Them," and the curious expressman could see between the cracks several ducks draped and swathed in deepest mourning, with here and there a touch of orange.

The students at Stanford University have petitioned the faculty for a course in practical oratory.

ART LECTURES PLANNED

Professor Dunn Announces Free Illustrated Discussion of Classics and Ancient History.

After the Thanksgiving holidays, Professor F. S. Dunn will begin a course of illustrated lectures on various subjects connected with art, the classics, and ancient history. The lectures will be held in Professor Dunn's lecture room in Deady Hall, Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and will continue throughout the rest of the college year. All lectures will be open to the public.

To illustrate his lectures, Professor Dunn will use the reflectoscope from Professor Sweetzer's room. He has about twenty-five hundred photographs and illustrative cuts. Some of his subjects will be: Cleopatra in Legend, Art, and Drama; The Elgin Marbles; Ruins of Karnack and Luxor; Alexander the Great in Portraiture; Saint Cecilia and Sebastian; and Great Men of Greece. The first lecture will be upon the first subject named.

In regard to this course of lectures, Professor Dunn said: "This will be an effort in the dissemination of general art, not only to the University students, but to all who wish to attend."

CONCERT DATE FIXED NEWS RECORD MADE

Before leaving this morning for Portland, Manager Geary announced that the date for the Glee Club concert had been changed to Thursday, December 17. This date is final, Geary said this morning, and arrangements will be made for this appearance of the club in Eugene.

The Sophomore dance was the first conflicting date. Both attractions were scheduled for December 14. Saturday evening, December 19, was then chosen, but owing to the Christmas vacation and previously booked shows at the theatre, this had to be abandoned.

As the concert will now be given just before the Christmas vacation, the society turnout already promises to be brilliant, for several organizations are planning to occupy box seats.

EUTAXIAN SOCIETY HOLDS MONTHLY SOCIAL MEETING

The monthly social meeting of the Eutaxians occurred Tuesday evening, at the Gamma Phi Beta house. "Thanksgiving" was the subject of the evening. The program opened with a song by Mildred Wilson. Ruth Beach then gave a talk on the "Origin of Thanksgiving." Eleanor McClaine told of a "Thanksgiving in the Country," and Norma Dobie gave a recitation. A piano solo by Agnes Elliott concluded the entertainment.

During the remainder of the evening the members spent a social hour in singing and dancing. Refreshments were served.

DRAMATIC CLUB DUPLICATES OUT OF DATE ENGLISH GARB

An attempt is being made by the Dramatic Club to reproduce the dress and costumes of "Dombey and Son," as nearly as possible, true to the time when this was written and not as the famous artist, Cruikshank, burlesqued.

The caste is having regular rehearsals this week and the next.

STUDENT JOURNALISTS TO HEAR ADDRESSES BY OREGON EDITORS

MANY PORTLAND MEN PROMISE TO ASSIST IN COLLEGE WORK

LETTER SENT TO ENLIST COUNTRY EDITORS

Dates Already Set Up to March 5—List Includes Editors of Telegram and Journal.

A number of well known newspaper men has been secured by Professor Allen of the journalism department to speak before the classes in journalism on alternate weeks, during the remainder of the college year. So far, those who have promised to aid in the work of the new department are Portland men and women, but Professor Allen is sending out a circular letter to the country and small town editors for the purpose of arousing interest in the outlying districts.

The schedule up to date is as follows: December 11—Miss Leone Cass Baer, dramatic critic on the Oregonian, will speak on opportunities for women in journalism; December 18—M. E. Miley, manager of the American Press Association for Oregon; January 17—E. N. Blythe, copy editor of the Oregonian; January 31—J. E. Murphy, cartoonist on the Oregon Journal, will speak on his particular side of the newspaper game; January 24—O. R. Ball, manager of the Oregon Type Founders Co.; February 10—O. C. Leiter, city editor of the Oregonian; February 21—Herbert Campbell, copy editor of the Oregonian; March 5—B. F. Irvine, editorial writer for the Journal, will speak on the editorial side of newspaper life.

In addition to those who have already set definite dates for their appearance in Eugene, are some of the most influential journalists in Portland. Among them are C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Journal; Hugh Hume, publisher of the Spectator; Thomas Gallagher, Portland manager of the United Press; John F. Carroll, manager and editor of the Evening Telegram; Colin V. Dymont, Northwest editor of the Journal; Roscoe Fawcett, sporting editor of the Oregonian; and John L. Travis, news editor of the Journal.

OREGON GERMAN CLUB FEATURES SOCIALISM

The German Club held its semi-monthly meeting at the Gamma Delta Gamma house Tuesday evening.

Miss Margaret Rohse gave a short talk on current events. A discussion of the growth of socialism, led by Homer Maris, followed.

Miss Mary DeBar, who has recently returned from an extended tour of Europe, gave a talk on her impressions of Germany.

Plans for the next meeting will be announced later.

JOINT FOOTBALL DANCE FOLLOWING OREGON M. A. A. C. GAME ANNOUNCED BY ALUMNI

The Portland alumni of the University of Oregon are making preparations for the annual dance to be given in honor of the football teams of the University and of the Multnomah Club, Thursday, November 28, at the Masonic Temple, West Park and Yamhill streets.

The committee, consisting of C. N. McArthur, John R. Latourette, Dr. Homer I. Keeney, Lyle Brown, Martin Hawkins, Chester Moores, Harry Stephenson, Dr. F. J. Ziegler and Elmer E. Young, urge the attendance of all University people in Portland during the holidays, on the grounds that it will serve as a reunion for Oregon students and alumni.

Besides University students and club members, the senior classes of the Portland preparatory schools have been invited to the dance, in order to foster an interest in the State Institution.

Announcement of the dance has been withheld because of the recent football controversy, which made the playing of the Multnomah game this year uncertain.

JOURNALISTS OF NATION WATCHING OREGON SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM, SAYS CHAS. S. SMITH

Charles S. Smith, who up to six weeks ago was managing editor of the Nashville Tennessean, visited the University this morning, taking special interest in the department of Journalism and attending one of Professor E. W. Allen's classes. Mr. Smith has property interest in Oregon and Idaho, and while passing through Eugene on business, stopped off to see how the new school of journalism was being received.

Mr. Smith is himself an experienced newspaperman. Previous to acting as managing editor of the Tennessean he was connected with the Washington Post. At other times he has been diplomatic reporter for the Washington Times, the Associated Press Correspondent in Venezuela during the most effervescent part of President Castro's brief career, West Filing Editor of the Associated Press at New York, and Associated Press Correspondent at Washington. Since his graduation from the University of Iowa in '97, Mr. Smith has also found
