CANADIANS FAIL TO APPRECIATE U. OF WASHINGTON GLEE CLUB

$4.50 House at Vancouver, B. C., After $160 Outlay, Causes Manager to Cancel Dates.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The University Glee Club journeyed all the way to Vancouver, B. C., and played before a $4.50 house Monday. The cost of the trip was $160 and as a result of the failure to pay expenses on its initial tour, the Glee Club may cancel all its engagements for concerts in neighboring cities.

The student board of control opposed financing a Glee Club trip, but after a press agent trip by Manager Earl Clifford, it was thought that any trips that would be made would pay expenses. An expensive tour was then arranged for the club, and the Vancouver date was the first one.

Managers of the club favor dropping Vancouver, B. C., from the list.

AGORA CLUB ADDRESSED BY SENATOR CALKINS

State Legislature is Discussed and Woman's Fitness for Political Work Commended.

"The forty days allowed to the session of the State Legislature is entirely too short to take care of the business that comes before it," Senator W. W. Calkins of Eugene stated in an address delivered to the members of the Agora Club Thursday evening on "How Does the Legislature Work?" Enlarging upon this thought, Senator Calkins said also, that the members of the lower house change almost every year, and that the new members are invariably inexperienced in parliamentary procedure. Far less time than is needed is allowed in the short session for new members to become efficient members. Mr. Calkins said further, that he had no use for the Initiative or Referendum as methods of making law.

Mr. Calkins stated that he was pleased with the aptness of the college women in asking questions. The nature of their questions showing that they were already well-versed in the subject matter of his address.

The remaining lectures to be given to the Agora Club this year are: January 23, "A Social Survey of an Oregon City," Mrs. Mable H. Parsons; February 13, "The Minimum Wage Movement," Dr. James H. Gilbert; February 27, "City Government in Oregon," Dr. Joseph Shafer; March 6, "The University and Its Service to the Commonwealth," Professor F. G. Young. On March 20, Professor Sweetser will deliver an address before the club on some phase of Public Health. April 3, "The University and the Political Life of the State," President Campbell. Two other meetings, at which addresses will be delivered, will be held on April 24 and May 1. The subjects of these addresses will be on some phase of Home Economics and Child Welfare. The speakers for these last lectures are not yet chosen.

FACULTY TO CONSIDER A RADICAL REVISION OF COLLEGE CALENDAR

DIVISION OF SCHOOL YEAR INTO FOUR SEMESTERS IS PRINCIPLE REVISION

POSTED ATHLETES CONSIDERED

Will Advise Translation of Diploma Into English—Four Days Given for Inland Trip.

The most important matter to come before the Faculty meeting Thursday evening in Villard Hall was the proposed revision of the college calendar. To this end a committee of three will be appointed next week by President Campbell to take the matter under advisement. Several changes have been proposed, among them is one which is in force at the University of Chicago, by which the college year is divided into four semesters, any three of which the students may attend, and any one of which a member of the faculty may take for a vacation. It has also been proposed to open and close the school year one month earlier than at present, thus making the summer vacation extend from May 15 to August 15. The report of the committee will be considered at the next meeting.

Two other committees will also be appointed to consider the matter of removing posted men from the teams, and to take under advisement the proposed change in the diploma given at graduation, translating its present Latin phrases into English, in accordance with a similar movement in the Eastern colleges. The Faculty granted four days for the Inland Empire trip, instead of three, as formerly. The recent action of the Student Council, making the Treasurer of the Associated Students a member of the Student Council, was also ratified. At the next meeting, Dr. Joseph Shafer intends to introduce the motion that the requirement of one year's residence before graduation be abolished.

HAYWARD MUST NOW FILL SIMS' POSITION

Captain Hurts Knee and Oregon's Chances at Same Time—Pink Griffith Wails.

(By Jimmie Roberts.)

The injury to Captain Sims during Thursday night's practice has put another crimp in the Varsity's chance of trimming Idaho on next Monday and Tuesday. Sims' injured knee will keep him out of both games and will give Coach Hayward another big hole to fill in the Oregon lineup. Boylen or Briedwell will take the place of the captain and Brooks will probably be the choice to start the game at forward. The shift of Fenton to forward and Bradshap to center was tried out for the first time on Thursday night and showed the possibility of a good combination to develop, but it will be practically impossible to use it against the Gem Staters on account of Sim's injury, as Oregon would have to use a green pair of guards to break the Idaho offense.

Very little information concerning the strength of the Idaho team has reached here this season. One wild tale reached the campus a week or so ago of how the Freshmen were trimming the Varsity five in the nightly encounters and later Pink Griffith came forth with the wail that his team would be all freshmen and inexperienced at the inter-collegiate

PROFESSORS SEEK TO UTILIZE SAWDUST AND WASTE OF SAWMILLS

PROF. STAFFORD AND SHINN CONSTRUCTING RETORT IN HOPES OF COMMERCIALIZING BY-PRODUCTS

IMPORTANT IF SUCCESSFUL

Would Create Enormous Industry in Northwest, If Can Be Made Commercially Profitable.

In the rear of the engineering building, under a temporary protection from the rain, is a huge iron boiler, upon which mechanics are drilling and hammering. This is to be a large retort, constructed by the Chemistry department, with which two University professors hope to devise a method of utilizing the wood waste from the sawmills, lumber camps and factories off the Northwest to a commercial advantage. Professor O. F. Stafford, of the department of chemistry, and Professor F. L. Shinn, have been working all fall upon this project. Already the process has been worked out and conducted on a small scale, and the remaining work is to prove its possibilities by an apparatus of commercial size.

The plan is to utilize sawdust, slabs and stumps and waste wood for the manufacture of acetic acid, alcohol, charcoal, tar, and a score of other products of destructive distillation. These can be easily produced on a small scale, but as yet no process has been invented which will handle the enormous quantities of waste wood from the sawmilling industry of the Northwest to a commercial profit. The cost of handling and the operations seem to exceed the value of the products.

Professor Stafford is reluctant to talk about his plan until he knows that it is complete and a success, but he says: "We feel that we have found a slight variation in the process of destructive distillation, which will

BILL HANLEY SLATED FOR NEXT ASSEMBLY

Disciple of Bryan Will Ask More Thorough Irrigation Course From O. A. C.

William "Bill" Hanley, the noted land owner, rancher, and irrigation booster from Burns, Oregon, and prototype of William Jennings Bryan, will speak at Assembly next Wednesday morning. Mr. Hanley will be in Eugene, with a number of his irrigation friends from the recent Irrigation Congress held in Portland, on a tour of inspection and a get-acquainted visit to the University of Oregon. The subject of his address will be announced later.

Immediately after the closing session of the Congress in Portland today, a number of the Eastern Oregon representatives will start on a junketing trip through the Willamette Valley. After spending Monday at Salem, to present the demands and wishes of the irrigators for legislation to the State Legislature, the party under the leadership of Mr. William Hanley, also a prominent Democrat, who accompanied the Western Governors recently on their Eastern trip on a special train, will visit O. A. C. to request a more thorough course in irrigation at that institution. From there they will go to Eugene to inspect the University, which most of the visitors have not seen.

35 JOURNALISM STUDENTS STRUCK WITH SUDDEN RELIGIOUS FERVOR

Must Attend Church Tomorrow, Pay Attention to sermon, and Write Up Services.

Forty-five first year journalists must go to church tomorrow; every one must hear some sermon, and what is more, must know what has been said when he leaves. This is the form of assignment the young newspaper writers received yesterday. The members of the class must take notes of the sermon which they hear, and write a "story" to be turned in Monday. From these accounts will be selected a representative one of each church service and offered to one of the local papers.

The students are in doubt as to the propriety of writing their "story" on Sunday, some declaring that, to be consistent, they should wait until the following morning to perform journalistic labors.

NEW SET OF RULES FOR WOMEN GO INTO EFFECT IMMEDIATELY

FORMER REGULATIONS REVIVED, WITH ADDITIONS, FORM CODE APPROVED BY FACULTY

NOT HARSH SAYS DEAN GUPPY

Regulations Made Rather As Help Than Hindrance, She Affirms—Co-eds Agree.

The revised regulations for the women of the University received approval at the Faculty meeting Thursday evening, and will go into effect immediately. "These regulations are Professor Luella Clay Carson's old rules with such changes and additions as the growth of the University demands," said Miss Ruth Guppy, Dean of Women, this afternoon. "They are not intended in anyway as a criticism of conditions here or because the young women are in need of discipline, but just as a guide and suggestion. It is not the intention to make them ironclad or inflexible. Reasonable exceptions will be granted gladly. Conversations which I have had with any number of young women have convinced me that these rules have the thorough commendation of Oregon women."

Following are the regulations for women of the University, which now govern women of the University, unless under special permission:

1. University women must on all nights of the week be in their rooms at 10:30 p. m., except Friday and Saturday nights, then at 11 o'clock p. m.
